DEFIED, PITT HEADS SILENT

The Prince Flies.
He Sprays Hens.
Mark Hanna's Daughter.
Russia's Program.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE Prince of Wales again flies to visit his father at Bognor.

His increasing use of the airplane will help aviation in Britain and in this country. A considerable number of gentlemen, young and old, in America would rather be like the Prince of Wales than like George Washington or Lincoln. That's fortunate for them, it's easier.

THOUSANDS that would not read an Einstein pamphlet will read this.

Walter Dorsey, colored, of Atlanta, Ga., confessing to chicken stealing on a wholesale basis, tells the judge, "I just sprays 'em with chloroform. Then stand back and wait. In about five minutes they flop off the roost and are ready for my sack."

That's more interesting to many of us than the distance of the farthest star.

MRS. RUTH HANNA M'CORMICK, member of Congress, wants, and should have, a place on the Naval Committee.

She inherits from her father, Mark Hanna, an interest in shipping, and, what is more important, a tendency to have ALL the shipping.

MARK HANNA didn't want part of anything if he could get all of it. And his daughter wouldn't be interested in any proposition to make the United States play second fiddle to Britain or Japan.

RUSSIA announces an industrial program to spread over five years and fight capital with its own weapon.

Russia is to be made the world's industrial giant with the great Ural-Siberian railroads, canals, cheap water transportation, power plants.

Wise men in "capitalistic governments" will not laugh at Russia's pretensions.

PITT laughed at the power of the French Revolution, and thought it was all over when he, at last, decided to join Austria and Russia in crushing that revolution.

Disagreeable surprises awaited him. And still more disagreeable surprises when the power of Napoleon followed the power of the revolution.

A PROFESSIONAL bootlegger who confessed his trade carried on his business along the United States coast, in the Gulf of Mexico, using a Canadian ship.

A coast guard cutter sank the "I'm Alone" when it refused to stop. Now this country agrees to arbitrate with Canada the right of the United States to suppress violation of laws on our coast.

That is satisfactory. We shall probably have "an even break" in that arbitration.

Suppose the United States were in the League of Nations, or the World Court, Canada would take the "I'm Alone" problem across the ocean, to be settled there by a body nicely organized, ten to one, against the United States. What chance would Uncle Sam have under those conditions?

DISASTROUS tornadoes in Georgia and South Carolina, killing nearly 100, emphasize the importance of building to resist wind power.

It can be done. The government will undertake to replace in Porto Rico, 1,400 school buildings destroyed by tornado, with 1,400 new schools that will be tornado proof.

EVERY section of the country is open to tornado attacks that may strike ANYWHERE, at any moment. The entire country is interested in wind-proof building.

ROBERT M. HUTCHINS, dean at Yale Law School, only 30 years old, is elected head of the University of Chicago.

Youngest head of an important college, he will soon have the greatest number of students in any college, if he will include a course in flying as part of his university curriculum.

THOUSANDS of young men who believe that they can get along without a college education feel that they cannot get along without flying.

PRESIDENT HOOVER desires sincerely to enforce prohibition. Nobody can enforce it, unless the prohibition law is made a reality to "respectable" people, that now finance bootlegging.

Congress might easily discourage respectable customers of the bootlegger.

Make it a felony, punished by imprisonment without option of fine, to buy liquor. Respectability may despise constitution and law. But respectability does not want to go to jail, or be blackmailed by its bootlegger.

WHEN Mme. Thuillier was breaking the bank at Monte Carlo, buying large diamonds, enjoying herself, newspapers told about her marvelous winnings.

THE lady, penniless, is now in jail, for forgery That's the other side of the gambling medal.

If men would look at that other side, there would be fewer fools gambling at the race track, or in Wall street.

THE drain on Germany's gold supply causes the French to worry, as the owner of the golden goose would worry if that goose looked sickly.

The Reichsbank increases the discount rate.

People in Germany pay as much as 8 per cent for money. In Wall street yesterday they paid as high as 16 per cent.

HUSBAND CHARGED WITH ODD CRIME

Charges that a husband tried to end the life of his wife by placing an improvised gas mask on her face, causing her to inhale deadly fumes while she slept, were made by city detectives, who early today arrested Charles Petzold, 40, of 2143 Rydal street, Crafton Heights, on complaint of Mrs. Stella Petzold, the wife.

The mask was connected with a hose to a tank outside a bedroom window. The tank, detectives say they believe, contains a deadly gas. The whole apparatus was exhibited by the detectives.

MASK BIRD CAGE, CLAIM

The mask was made of wood and lined with oilcloth. Petzold denied the charges made by his wife.

Detectives say he told them that he constructed the device, but said that it was a bird cage instead of a mask.

Shortly after 4 o'clock this morning Detectives John Barry and Elmer Henry were called to Rydal street by neighbors. Mrs. Petzold told them she was awakened suddenly and realized she was slowly sinking into unconsciousness from sweet fumes which she was inhaling. She struggled and finally threw off the mask, she told detectives. She at first believed burglars had attacked her and her husband.

TELLS OF ATTACK

Mrs. Petzold told them, detectives say, that when she sat upright in bed her husband threw her back and forced the mask back on her face. The two struggled, according to the wife's story, but she finally leaped out of bed and pushed the electric light button. The room remained in darkness as the light bulb had been unscrewed, detectives say they were informed.

After the wife sprang from the bed, she told detectives, they say, Petzold fled from the room, carrying with him the mask which he took to the yard and attempted to destroy. Mrs. Petzold, scantily clad, followed and informed neighbors. Detectives say they found the mask in the yard, along with a long hose, and a tank hidden in some bushes.

Mrs. Petzold was still suffering from the effects of the alleged gas this morning.

Detective Barry said that Mrs. Petzold told him her husband was anxious for her to die, as the house in which they lived was owned jointly by the couple. She told him, Barry said, that the husband wanted to sell the property and go to Florida, but she objected.

A city chemist has been ordered to analyze the contents of the tank.

"I did not attempt to kill my wife," Petzold said this morning in the detective bureau. "She was dreaming and had a nightmare. I was awakened about 4 o'clock this morning by my wife who said there were burglars in the house and that she was being gassed. Believing my wife to be dreaming, I told her to "pipe down, you have a nightmare."

Petzold said the mask was a bird cage he had discarded, and that the tank was a container for whitewash. He is a mechanic working as a machinery repairman in a North Side printing shop. He admitted, detectives say, that there had been domestic trouble. He blamed his wife for the trouble, saying that she was running around.

"Only this morning," he said, "she came home late after being out with her sister."

U. S. CONSULATE HIT BY BOMB

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP.)—The State Department was advised today that three Mexican government airplanes attacking rebels holding Ciudad Obregon, Sonora, dropped a number of bombs on the city Thursday afternoon and one of them crashed through the roof of the American consulate and exploded.

GARDNER CHECK ON LOST DATA

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner's probe into the disappearance of police evidence in the case of Ralph Ranieri, charged with murder, today centered in a check on information gleaned in yesterday's quiz.

No further witnesses are expected to be called until early next week, it was announced.

After questioning 17 officials and others in the all-day session yesterday, Gardner "had nothing to say" when he adjourned the inquiry until today.

Police Superintendent P. P. Walsh and Coroner W. J. McGregor were among those questioned yesterday by Gardner and Assistant District Attorney George H. P. Langfitt.

When the Ranieri case was called for trial an empty envelope was produced in lieu of photographs and statements that the police were supposed to have. Gardner said the purpose of the inquiry is to determine if the police had any such evidence and if they did what became of it.

Now Chicago Wants Its Sneeze Cut Out

CHICAGO, April 27.—(AP.)—A campaign to take the sneeze out of Chicago has been started by the Chicago Woman's Club. Its success depends upon how soon the cause of the sneezing—ragweed—can be eradicated.

Dr. Bernard Fantus, associate professor at Rush Medical College, said that between 30,000 and 40,000 Chicagoans suffer from hay fever. He estimated that the city loses a million dollars a year because thousands avoid the city on account of the hay fever.

SENATE TO VOTE ON MELLON

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Andrew W. Mellon will be branded as ineligible for the post of secretary of the treasury and declared guilty of holding it illegally since 1921 in a minority report from the Senate Judiciary Committee, even though a majority decides in the Pennsylvanian's favor, it was learned today.

The minority report, attacking Mellon's right to remain in the Hoover cabinet and demanding his immediate removal, will be filed by Senator George W. Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, chairman of the committee, and Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, one of the Senate's greatest lawyers.

CALLS FOR SENATE VOTE

The minority report naturally will throw the question of Mellon's cabinet eligibility back into the Senate, which will have to make a decision on an issue which President Hoover hoped to avoid by retaining Mellon in his cabinet without a reappointment.

IN CLOSED SESSION

The Senate Judiciary Committee met today to consider the question behind locked doors. Previously, the committee decided unanimously that Hoover had the right to retain Mellon without reappointing him. This gave rise to reports that the committee would decide the whole Mellon controversy—a question that has arisen time and again in the Senate ever since the Pennsylvanian went into office under the late President Harding—in his favor. Norris and Walsh, however, have decided to vote against Mellon's right to be a cabinet officer.

COURT FIGHT POSSIBLE

If the Senate should uphold this minority view, the question would be thrown into the federal courts since their contention is that Mellon is violating a special law forbidding the Secretary of Treasury from being "concerned or interested" in trade or commerce. If the courts found Mellon guilty of violating this law, he would be fined $3,000, removed from office and for-

AUTO AND BUS CRASH; 1 HURT

George B. Findlay, 60, a salesman, of 1606 Dennison avenue, suffered a probable skull fracture and severe lacerations early today when his automobile collided with an empty Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company bus on the Seventh Street Bridge.

Findley was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital. Charges of reckless driving were lodged against him and the bus driver, Peter Dunbar, 39, of 3446 Fleetwood street.

Motorcycle Patrolman John B. McHugh was injured when his cycle crashed into the rear of a car driven by Carl Och, of 213 East Meyers avenue, Carrick, on the Smithfield Street Bridge. Och took the patrolman to Mercy Hospital, where he was said to be suffering from bruises and shock.

When an auto collided with a Carson street car at the Twenty-second Street Bridge last night, Herbert Gerhardt, 38, driver, and Edward McAnalen, 65, and J. L. Young, 28, passengers, all of 3207 Spangler street, were slightly injured. The street car was slightly damaged but none of the passengers injured. Gerhardt was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

Gary Honor Medal Goes to J. A. Farrell

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—The first award of the Gary memorial medal for distinguished achievement in the iron and steel industry was made yesterday by directors of the American Iron and Steel Institute to James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, on recommendation of the institute's committee. Formal presentation will be made at a dinner May 24.

Daylight Saving Time Begins At 2 A. M.

Pittsburgh and its suburbs will move the clock ahead an hour at 2 o'clock tomorrow morning to gain daylight.

Railroads, the stock exchange, banks, business houses, department stores, schools, courts and city offices will use the new schedule.

Railroads have announced new schedules to be effective tomorrow. These govern all commutation trains in the district and many inter-city trains.

Virtually all boroughs in the district have adopted the daylight schedule. One of the few which had not done so in the 12 years since the inauguration of daylight saving time—Springdale—did so yesterday.

Court will convene at 8 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, Monday, and adjourn an hour earlier to observe daylight time. Two hundred and thirty jurors summoned for duty have been advised to report an hour earlier than the usual time.

Game starts at 3 o'clock.

Our in-and-out Pirates will make an attempt to get back on a 50-50 basis this afternoon as they wind up their series with the Cubs. Remy Kremer cracking again yesterday, the Freebooters tasted defeat, although they were able to get six runs over the plate. The score was 9 to 6.

Acting Manager Ens stated this morning that Steve Swetonic, most impressive of the younger twirlers, would be on the mound in the last contest with the Bears. Boss McCarthy of the invaders said he would put Altoona Pat Malone against the Buccos.

Pirate fans are alarmed over the "staggeritis" condition of Pittsburgh's veteran pitchers. Kremer was one of the best of the sharpshooters during the long training period, but he hasn't been able to turn a lick for his club so far in the race. He started out well yesterday but lost his control and then Rogers Hornsby almost lost the ball, his cleanup triple giving the Bears the bulge on the home team.

Swetonic was so impressive in the relief role of the home opener that Ens was won over to him for today's game. He had considered working Lee Meadows.

The Pirates must rush to a train immediately after today's game, being scheduled to open a series in St. Louis tomorrow. Four games are slated with the Cards, the two clubs to return to Forbes Field for a single game on Thursday. The Yankees will be met on Friday, after which the Pirates will leave for the East.

Succop Improves After Operation

Improvement was reported today in the condition of Col. B. L. Succop, city director of supplies, who underwent an appendicitis operation last Monday in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Whoopee Loose! $100 If You Find Him

WHOOPEE M'GURK, wanted in the Mr. Jiggs-Dinty Moore mystery, is loose in Pittsburgh. The first person who touches Whoopee on the shoulder and declares him "under arrest" will be paid the $100 reward, provided that person at the time has in his hand or pocket, or in her purse, a clipping of the same day's "Bringing Up Father" strip from the Sun-Telegraph. All employes of the Sun-Telegraph and their families are barred. For story and photograph of Whoopee see Page Two.

BRITISH WIN GOLF CUP FROM U. S.

MOORTOWN, England, April 27.—(AP.)—British professional golfers today regained the Ryder Cup by a smashing victory in the singles after their American rivals had established a bare lead in the foursome play yesterday.

The British pros surprised and shocked the Americans by their effective work in the singles after faltering in the foursomes, where the home team was considered in better position. In quick succession today, Johnny Farrell and Walter Hagen fell before Charles Whitcombe and George Duncan. Leo Diegel struck a blow for the United States with a clean cut win over Abe Mitchell, but Compston stopped Sarazen and Turnesa lost to Boomer before the next American point was registered by Horton Smith with a victory over Fred Robson. The final score was registered at 7½ to 4½ when Ernest Whitcombe downed Al Espinosa.

FARRELL DEFEATED

The British team won the first point of the singles when Charles Whitcombe defeated Johnny Farrell, eight up and six to play, in the 36-hole match.

The point gained by the match made the score for the two days' play tied at 2½ to 2½, as the Americans led by a point after the foursomes yesterday.

The British went ahead when George Duncan returned a victory over Walter Hagen, 10 up and 8 to play.

Leo Diegel sent the Americans back level with the British by defeating Abe Mitchell, 9 up and 8 to play.

SARAZEN GOES DOWN

A victory for Archie Compston over Gene Sarazen, 6 and 5, again gave the British the advantage in point scores, 4½ to 3½, with four matches to be completed.

The British moved to within one point of victory when Aubrey Boomer defeated Joe Turnesa, 4 up and 3 to play. The British had a point score of 5½ to 3½ for the Americans.

Horton Smith defeated Fred Robson, 4 up and 2 to play, reducing the British advantage to one point with two matches out.

CUP CHANGES HANDS

The cup changed hands when young Henry Cotton won from Al Watrous 4 and 3, giving the British a point score of 6½.

In the final match, Ernest Whitcombe downed Al Espinosa two up and one to play. This extended the American reversal in the singles to six defeats in eight matches played.

Radio Position Given Democrat by Hoover

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(INS.)—President Hoover today appointed a Democrat, William D. L. Starbuck, a mechanical engineer of New York City, to represent the first zone on the Federal Radio Commission. The nomination will be sent to the Senate for confirmation today. The appointment restores the commission to its five-member strength.

Starbuck is also a lawyer and has been identified with legal work pertaining to radio. He is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

3 Robber-Slayers Sentenced to Death

CHICAGO, April 27.—(INS.)—Three Negroes today faced death in the electric chair for the murder of Martin French, 75, in a bank robbery here. The convictions were credited to Maj. Calvin H. Goddard, New York firearms expert, who showed the fatal bullet was fired from a revolver of one of the trio. They were sentenced last night by Judge Robert E. Gentzel.

Anne Morrow Leaves Texas for New York

LAREDO, Tex., April 27.—(INS)—Miss Anne Morrow, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's fiancee, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, was en route for New York today aboard a Missouri Pacific railroad train, homeward bound on what is believed to be the last international trip to be made by Miss Morrow before she becomes the flying Colonel's bride.

Separated

BLANCHE SWEET

Declaring that she would soon file divorce proceedings against her director-husband, Marshall Neilan, Miss Sweet, film star, revealed that they had been separated for some time. There will be nothing sensational, Neilan says. They were married in 1922.

92 DEAD; GALE AREA ASKS AID

ATLANTA, Ga., April 27.—(INS.)—The human toll in storm ravaged Central Georgia and South Carolina mounted today to at least 92 dead, 447 injured and more than 500 homeless and faced by the greater menace of plague as hastily strung telegraph lines carried heart-breaking stories and appeals for aid northward.

Red Cross workers and voluntary aids groped their way through almost impassable highways to reach the stricken sector and give succor to stranded families who gazed in dull-eyed hopelessness at the ruin wrought by tornadoes which swept through the two states late Thursday night.

As salvaging went forward, protected in some cases by National Guards to forestall looting, estimates of the property loss placed the damage at more than $1,250,000. Even this figure will mount as com-

2 AUTO VICTIMS WEEK IN COMA

Slight improvement was noted today in the conidtion of two children who have been unconscious for a week as the result of automobile accidents. The victims are Pauline De Simone, 9, of 6365 Shakespeare street, and Philip Muth, 12, of 429 Westinghouse avenue, Wilmerding.

One entire week has passed while the De Simone girl has lain unconscious in the Pittsburgh Hospital. She was struck by an automobile last Saturday and suffered a fractured skull. The Muth boy is suffering a similar injury, having been hit by an automobile Sunday night while playing near his home.

This morning the De Simone girl regained partial consciousness, but was unable to talk to her nurse. Last Tuesday the Muth boy was conscious long enough to speak a few words to a friend. Mrs. Anna L. Miller, of 214 Denniston avenue, whose automobile struck the De Simone girl, has been a daily visitor at the hospital to inquire about the child.

LIBERALS' CHARGES IGNORED

University of Pittsburgh authorities had an order of trouble on their hands today—and none would say just what would be done about it.

It was, in brief, the defiance by the Liberal Club yesterday of a school order forbidding its meeting on school property and ordering its immediate dissolution.

Chancellor John G. Bowman was extremely reticent. He refused to be quoted concerning his views on the right of free speech.

So far as George H. Clapp, president of the university's board of trustees, knew, there had been no trouble on the campus. In fact, in Mr. Clapp's estimation, the "Liberals" weren't even people to be considered as a part of the university life.

DEAN SILENT ON CHARGES

Dean L. P. Sieg, of the college, refused to deny charges made against him by Frederick E. Woltman, graduate assistant instructor in psychology. Woltman said, and last night reiterated, that he and William L. Nunn, instructor in economics, had been severely rebuked by Dean Sieg for a magazine article they wrote about the Pennsylvania coal strike.

According to Woltman, he and Nunn—neither of whom, it is said, will be at the university next year—were told they were endangering the university's financial opportunities.

It was further charged that University authorities became alarmed after Woltman and Nunn wrote their article, which condemned the State police system, and to appease the governor a committee rushed to Harrisburg. The governor denies such a visit was made.

OTHER CHARGES INCLUDED

That the curbing of free speech at the University included the insistence of Pitt authorities that a professor who had planned to speak from the Pitt radio station on the Pennsylvania Tax Commission speak instead on "Abraham Lincoln," because the subject was considered controversial.

That a professor received a "tip" that it would not be wise to stump

JUDGE CLEARED IN AIMEE CASE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 27.—(INS.)—Judge Carlos S. Hardy, white-haired veteran of the Superior Court bench, was on his way back to Los Angeles today absolved of misconduct charges arising from participation in the Aimee Semple McPherson disappearance scandal.

His complete exoneration came late yesterday at the conclusion of a sensational three weeks' impeachment hearing before the State Senate.

Told of the Senate's vote clearing him, the aged judge breathed, "Oh, I'm glad, mighty glad; God bless you," to his informant, a reporter.

The Senate chamber rang with applause from the galleries and floor as the vote was announced and Lieut. Gov. H. L. Carnahan concluded with the words, "—and he is therefore acquitted."

The charges had set forth that Judge Hardy practiced law in advising Mrs. McPherson and Mrs. Minnie Kennedy; that he accepted

PARK BRIDGE BALUSTRADE SAVES AUTO FROM PLUNGE

A heavy stone balustrade on the Panther Hollow Bridge, Schenley Park, cracked when the automobile of Attorney John Kulamer, 52, of 2840 Shady avenue, crashed against it this morning, but saved the driver from plunging into the ravine below.

Stone from the broken balustrade showed around William Steele, park foreman, working on the hillside below. He narrowly escaped injury by the falling debris.

Kulamer suffered a probable fracture of the nose and numerous cuts about the head and body. He was taken to the Oakland Police Station, charged with reckless driving by Patrolman William Madine. Later he was attended by his family physician and taken home.

BUSINESS DISTRICTS GO SOLID FOR INCOME TAX CUT

NEW REWARD FOR FORNEY PREPARED

The next development in the offering of a $5,000 reward for Alfred W. Forney, alleged slot machine "king," will have to come from the county solicitor, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner said today in commenting on the apparent worthlessness of the reward as it stands.

Gardner said that he will abide by the counsel of W. Heber Dithrich, the county legal adviser, in any future reward offering.

NO OPINION ASKED

"Gardner has not asked me for an opinion," Dithrich said this morning. "We simply discussed the act of 1919 over the telephone. I have done nothing in the reward matter and will not do anything until the County commissioners direct me to."

This act provides that the County Commissioners obtain approval of the presiding judge of Common Pleas Court before offering a reward for persons wanted for felonies or misdemeanors.

The 5,000 circulars delivered to Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren for distribution to the principal cities of this and other countries are lying in his office. Gardner said they will probably be destroyed.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, who presented the Forney resolution, said, "this business seems to have developed into a lawyers' battle. I don't want to get mixed up in it."

M'GOVERN PLAINT

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern issued a lengthy statement last night in which he asked, "Why not make an honest effort to get Forney and not waste the county's time and money? The Commissioners should have had the sheriff handle the promulgation of the reward in the first place. No other reward with trick specifications ever has been offered by the county."

Judge James B. Drew, who started the movement to offer the reward for Forney's capture when he failed to show up for trial on 18 counts of maintaining gambling devices and being a common gambler, declared: "The Commissioners were within their rights when they offered the reward. In spite of all this bickering, the man who captures Forney will get the $5,000 reward."

SHERIFF RETICENT

In the meantime Forney is safe from reward seekers, at least until the Commissioners and other county officials get the reward business straightened out.

Sheriff Robert H. Braun was asked today what he thought about the Forney reward. He said he did not care to voice an opinion as to the legality of the reward. He also said he did not want to enter into a controversy as to whether it was the duty of the district attorney or the sheriff to announce the amount of a reward offered by the commissioners.

munication with the storm-swept area is re-established, it is believed.

Citizens of Statesboro, Ga., who were cut off entirely from the outside world for a day, have broadcast a call for help in their fight against the plague menace. A serious situation is said to exist. Many injured face danger of infection. Physicians are handicapped by lack of medical supplies.

The storm swept in a wide swath from Macon, southeast through Bibb, Laurens, Dooly and Chandler counties, its freakish course strewn with dead and injured, and demolished buildings.

Reports from Georgia towns give the known toll as follows, with many more feared dead in outlying farm sections: Statesboro, 34 killed, 70 injured; Cochran, 20 killed, 110 injured; Metter, 24 killed, 50 injured; Dexter, 6 killed, 17 injured, and Rentz, 1 killed, 10 injured.

NO WARNING GIVEN

Dispatches from isolated South Carolina communities placed the death list in that state conservatively at seven and the injured at 20.

No twisting clouds or the peculiar eerie whistling that usually precedes tornadoes heralded the coming of the storms, the sufferers said. Many persons were caught in the streets and dashed to death. Others sought safety in their homes and were killed when the dwellings were demolished. Others met death on farms and highways.

WHOOPEE MEETS A HERO

M'GURK FRANK FROELICH ALEX MORRISON

If you can believe your own eyes, here is the irrepressible Mister McGurk, worth $100 to the first man, woman, child or policeman to capture him for the Sun-Telegraph, meeting up with two of downtown Pittsburgh's mounted policemen. Officer Morrison, you know, and "Georgie" (that's the horse) were good enough to trap a daylight bandit two weeks ago, but they didn't nab Whoopee.

WHOOPEE HUNTERS TALK WITH FUGITIVE HIMSELF

By WHOOPEE M'GURK

Your old boiler-house friend Whoopee has a couple more victims to report to the taxpayers:

1—Harry Lochbaum, the host at the South Side's swell Lotus Club.

2—Policeman Barton, attached to No. 4 Police Station.

3—Jake Theobald, one of Carrick's proudest citizens.

4—Green Cab Driver William Patton.

I sauntered into Harry Lochbaum's for dinner, and we talked about these and those, but never did he suspect that a fugitive from justice was almost sitting in his lap.

DRIVER CARRIES COPY

Officer Barton was taking things easy in front of the Craft avenue carbarn when I skipped by. At that, I was afraid to split a couple of adjectives with him because he's a sharp copper, he is.

Ah, but I'll wager Jake Theobald is a bit downcast today. I talked with Jake for a half hour, and I even mentioned how nice it would be to collect the 100 green ones—and Jake agreed with me!

Driver Patton fell completely. I handed him my daily masterpiece and advised him to take it to the Sun-Telegraph. He did, and I want to thank him, and I want the Houston brothers to know he's a valuable man.

SWITCHES MENU

I hired the cabbie at Carson and Brady streets, South Side, so that gives me a unanimous decision over the South Side. I thought the natives on that side of the river were as smart as Joe Armstrong says they are—but maybe I'm wrong.

You remember I told you yesterday what I'd eat for lunch. Well, I didn't. I picked out a safe hash house in Smithfield street, because I was afraid I'd be caught—and the cook didn't have spinach. Oh, but I was disappointed.

Lovingly,

WHOOPEE.

Things are getting tough for Whoopee. The public's closing in on him. He's even afraid to give u all a clue. However, Bringing Up Father in the comic section of the Sun-Telegraph may furnish a tip. Turn to it now.

$100.00 Reward

Whoopee McGurk, wanted in the Mr. Jiggs-Dinty Moore mystery, is loose in Pittsburgh. The first person who touches Whoopee on the shoulder and declares him "under arrest" will be paid the $100.00 reward, provided that person at the time has in his hand or pocket, or in her purse, a clipping of the same day's "Bringing Up Father" strip from the Sun-Telegraph. GIRL GOES FREE IN RUM KILLING

ZANESVILLE, O., April 7.—(AP.)—A verdict of acquittal was returned by a jury late yesterday afternoon in the case of Miss Thelma Bonifant, 24, charged with first degree murder in the slaying of W. S. Walbrown, 30, last September.

Prosecutor L. M. Soliday based the state's case on the allegation that Miss Bonifant attended a drinking party at the home of Charles White, where Walbrown was present, and later was seen with the victim.

The defendant denied she was with Walbrown before he was shot.

Miss Bonifant testified that Charles "Chuck" O'Connor, a mine guard who attended the party, was the slayer of Walbrown. O'Connor, she said, also threatened her own life because he feared she would "squeal." His whereabouts is unknown.

An indictment is pending against Harold Smith, 35, Steubenville mine guard, who is now serving a prison term for carrying concealed weapons. Called as a witness in the Bonifant trial, he corroborated the testimony that O'Connor did the shooting.

Aged Man Ax Victim, Housekeeper Jailed

AUBURN, Me., April 27.—(AP.)—An autopsy yesterday on the torso of Elihu Turner, 75-year-old Hartford farmer, found in the ruins of his home after a fire, disclosed, physicians said, that the man had been decapitated and both arms and a leg severed.

Mrs. Anne M. Welch, 26, Turner's former housekeeper, is being held in the county jail for questioning. A stained ax head was found in the ruins.

Man Caught by Mine Cave-In Found Dead

KITTANNING, April 27.—James John, 25, was found dead in the coal mine of his father-in-law, James Crissman, near the family home. He had been at work in the mine and when he failed to return search was instituted. He had been caught under a fall of the roof. He is survived by his widow and a six-months' old daughter, his parents and several brothers and sisters.

for Alfred E. Smith during the last presidential campaign.

Woltman said he was told by Dean Sieg that his state police article "made the Governor as mad as a hornet" and that keeping the Governor's favor was a matter of "bread and butter" since there was a possibility that the whole appropriation might be cut off.

"Did you read the statements made by Mr. Woltman and attributed to you?" Dean Sieg was asked.

"Yes."

"Did you tell Woltman the financing of the Cathedral of Learning depended upon wealth and that Chancellor Bowman could permit no antagonizing of such interests?"

"No."

"Did you warn Woltman of a possibility of Gov. Fisher cutting the university's appropriation as a result of utterances by Woltman, Nunn or other members of the university faculty?"

TALK TERMED PRIVATE

"My conversation with Mr. Woltman was a private one."

"Did you tell Woltman that it was a matter of bread and butter to the university and that he had better refrain from talk contrary to designated university policies?"

"It was a private conversation, I tell you. It was of no interest to the public."

"Do you believe the question of whether the right of free speech is permitted the university faculty and students is of no interest to the public?"

"I tell you our conversation was private."

"Private, after Mr. Woltman made public its text? Didi he misrepresent it?"

"I don't care to discuss my conversation with Woltman."

And that was Dean Seig's answer to Woltman's specific charge that he had been ordered by the dean to refrain from any writing or talking which might arouse the ire of Gov. Fisher or of the "wealthy class" upon whom the university was depending to finance the Cathedral of Learning.

Chancellor Bowman flatly refused to answer a question as to whether he believed the right of free speech should prevail on the university campus.

"What action," the chancellor was asked, "if any, are you going to take against the members of the Liberal Club for their defiance of Dean Armbruster's orders?"

"That is something I cannot now discuss. This whole affair, in fact, is something I beg to be excused from discussing."

"Have you been forced to curb the utterances of some members of the faculty whose individual beliefs may not have coincided with the university policies?"

"That is something I am not prepared to discuss at this time."

"Would you answer just one question, Mr. Bowman?"

"What is it?"

"Do you believe in the right of free speech for members of the faculty and of the student body?"

"I'm sorry, but I'll have to beg to be excused from becoming involved in the matter at present."

"NOTHING TO SAY"

News of the university troubles traveled swiftly in Pittsburgh. In the suburbs, however, it was different.

Late last night, President Clapp of the trustees, had not heard of yesterday afternoon's trouble on the campus. He was at his home in Sewickley.

"Is the board of directors going to take disciplinary action against members of the Liberal Club for their open defiance of Dean Armbruster's orders?" he was asked.

"I know of no defiance of any orders."

"Did you read the papers today?"

"Yes, but not in reference to the school trouble."

The school trouble was explained.

"Well, I haven't heard of it yet. I have nothing to say."

Mr. Woltman had little to say himself.

He merely stood by his accusations of yesterday.

"I hope," was his only addendum, "that the school will not take harsh action against members of the club. They are all fine young students."

MELLON STATUS UP TO SENATE

ADMITS STOCK HOLDINGS

Mellon already has told the committee, by letter, that he owns stock in the Aluminum Company of America, the Gulf Oil Refining Company and the Standard Car Construction Company. He stated he merely owned minority stock in these concerns and had resigned from their management when he became Secretary of the Treasury.

In a recent suit brought by George D. Haskell, a New England businessman, against the Aluminum Company of America, Mellon, however, filed a deposition, saying he had conferred with Arthur V. Davis, president of the Aluminum company, on business affairs of the company. The Secretary even told of inviting Davis and some other persons to his house for a business conference.

The law itself reads:

"No person appointed to the office of secretary of the treasury, or treasurer, or register, shall directly or indirectly be concerned or interested in carrying on the business of trade or commerce . . ."

The question before the Senate, therefore, will be whether ownership of a substantial part of the stock of a company, actively engaged in business — an ownership which led Mellon into holding business conferences with its president —is to "indirectly be concerned or interested" in business. The majority of the Senate committee very likely will find it does not—but the Senate itself will render the final decision.

A report in the capitol had it that at no time during the six hours' deliberation behind locked doors did the prosecution have as many as 20 votes against Judge Hardy on any of the four counts.

Mrs. McPherson issued a statement flaying the prosecuting assemblymen and declaring, "One would be led to bellieve that I was on trial rather than Judge Hardy."

Circus Elephants, Like Ringling, Shun G. O. P.

RIPON, Wis., April 27.—(AP.)—Ripon needs a good elephant to lend pachydermal prestige to the diamond jubilee of the Republican party here, June 8; but John Ringling, the circus man and an admirer of Alfred E. Smith, was probably not the proper man to ask for one.

After canvassing Wisconsin zoos in vain, the committee wrote Mr. Ringling. One of his assistants has made reply as follows:

"Yes, we have elephants, but our elephants are very clubby. If we sent one away he would probably run back to the herd the first chance he got. Since we'll be in the East then, he might run himself to death."

Low pressure, in the form of a trough covers the entire Plains states section with centers of disturbance over the panhandle of Texas and over Minnesota. While it has produced little precipitation up to 8 a. m., it is causing cloudy weather throughout its area, and as far east as Indiana in the north and Georgia in the south. The temperature is rising from the Rocky Mountains eastward to the coast, and it is not quite as cold in the Mountain states as yesterday morning.

Democratic Women Choose Johnstown

HARRISBURG, April 27.—(AP.)—Johnstown was selected yesterday as the 1930 convention city for the Pennsylvania Federation of Democratic Women, the decision being reached at a meeting of the executive board of the federation here. The next quarterly meeting of the executive board will be held at Erie during the last week in July.

NOTABLES HERE FOR DINNER

Amen Corner in the William Penn Hotel was the gathering place today of many notables who are here as speakers for that organization's dinner tonight in honor of its retiring president, Dennis A. Harris.

While the program promises to be the outstanding event in the life of the famous group composed of men in all walks of life, it also gives indication of being the largest banquet ever held in a local hotel. The demand for reservations so exceeded expectations that it was necessary for the William Penn officials to open the new addition to the dining hall several weeks before its scheduled inauguration.

Two of the principal guests for the night arrived yesterday to take advantage of the Pirate-Cub series at Forbes Field. They were James J. Corbett, former world heavyweight champion and now an actor and writer, and Neil O'Brien, famous minstrel man. A luncheon was to be held at noon today for the many visiting guests, with Forbes Field the magnet for some of the speakers this afternoon.

Among the prominent speakers at the dinner will be Arthur "Bugs" Baer, humorist and columnist who contributes daily to the Sun-Telegraph; Count Felix von Luckner, noted for his raiding exploits during the World War, and Edgar A. Guest, poet. Mayor James J. Walker has been forced to cancel his trip owing to pressure of official business in New York City.

PAY THEFT TRIO ELUDE POLICE

Detectives today still were searching for two bandits who held up two employes of the Ruud Manufacturing Company here yesterday and robbed them of a $5,921 payroll, and for their driver-accomplice.

Three men of the Hays district, arrested as suspects last night by detectives, were discharged by Magistrate Thomas Jones today, when they proved they had no connection with the case.

A former penitentiary inmate was being sought today. Police said he answered the description of one of the men who staged the holdup. This man, police said, was released from prison two months ago.

A report that the men had been apprehended by Steubenville police proved false. Police of the Ohio town said they had made no arrests on the case, although they were keeping a watch for a car such as the bandits used.

The employes, John Richardson and Norman Doyle, were confronted by the bandits in front of the company's offices at Twenty-ninth and Smallman streets. They had just returned from the Mellon National Bank.

Richardson demurred to the demand of the bandits that he turn over the packet of money, but Doyle said, as a bandit prodded Richardson with his pistol, "Go ahead, let them have it."

Richardson handed over the money and the holdup men dashed to their car, a blue sedan, where a third man was waiting at the wheel, and sped away.

PETITIONERS ENROLL IN SWARMS

Petitions by the thousands opposing the system of federal taxes on earned incomes are pouring into the office of the Sun-Telegraph. Pittsburgh is demanding of Congress that there shall be prompt action in a downward revision of the tax rates on workers.

One of the largest batches of petitions was received through the Harris Amusement Company, combining great sheaves of signatures from the various Harris theaters and a ream of sheets bearing the autographs of stage personages who had signed in the headquarters of the Variety Club in the William Penn Hotel.

BUSINESS AREAS SOLID

Business houses in Fourth avenue, Wood street, Fifth avenue and Diamond street added other thousands of signatures obtained through the canvass made by volunteer students from the University of Pittsburgh, Carnegie Institute of Technology and Duquesne university. In shops, small stores and large mercantile establishments the response is as great as in the pace set earlier in the week in the big downtown office buildings.

Dennis A. Harris, president of the Harris Amusement company, and John H. Harris, president of the Variety club, were the first men in Pittsburgh to put the petitions in circulation. For several weeks the signatures were confined to persons who paid extraordinarily high assessments on earned incomes. Among these were stage stars whose salaries run up in five and six figures and are heavy contributors to the government. It was understood, however, that the comparatively small contributor in taxes felt the burden even more keenly, and as the campaign progressed the small payers pleaded a chance to enter their protests.

POPULAR MOVE

"This has been a democratic movement," said Dennis A. Harris, "and it seeks to lift the burden from the shoulders of wage earners who can ill afford to part with incomes which come from hard work. The wage earner is always uncertain of the future, and it is agreed on every hand that there should be a reduction on his taxes. It is a popular measure and Congress doubtless will take the hint when these petitions are brought out."

The Variety club and the Amen Corner were headquarters for energetic workers in the tax reduction campaign. In one set of petitions from the Variety club there are more than 800 signatures. Petitions from the various theaters have not yet been tabulated.

In men's Bible classes and other church organizations petitions have been distributed and many of these will be signed after church services tomorrow. Boy Scouts in some districts have offered their services as volunteers in circulating petitions. At the same time large numbers of individuals are sending petitions clipped from the Sun-Telegraph. These are coming in from readers in all parts of Western Pennsylvania and go far toward heaping the immense total of signatures.

Naming Boulder Dam For President Urged

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 27.—(AP.)—A proposal that the Boulder Canyon Dam be called "Hoover Dam" in recognition of the part played by President Hoover as chairman of the Colorado River Commission, has been advanced by governors of the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce.

A resolution by the board declares that "the designation 'boulder' is meaningless and even derogatory, inasmuch as the structure is to be located in Black Canyon and will be constructed of solid masonry."

Scientists Find Seeds Buried 11,000 Years

VIENNA, April 27.—(AP.)—The Austrian Academy of Sciences announced yesterday that grain believed to be 11,000 years old had been discovered in a buried settlement on the western border of the delta on the Nile by its archaeological expedition. The seeds were in a perfect state of preservation. They will be examined to determine their exact variety.

BIG BUSINESS FIRMS PLAN NATIONAL CHARITY SURVEY

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—Plans for a nation-wide survey by big business firms of the relationship between charity work and large corporations were revealed yesterday with announcement of the appointment of Paul D. Cravath, New York lawyer, as chairman of the survey committees.

The committee, on which are representatives of banking organizations and corporations whose aggregate wealth runs into billions of dollars, hopes to formulate general principles for contribution to charitable and philanthropic works. The survey is to be made under the immediate direction of Dr. Edward F. Gay, of the Harvard school of business.

Prominent in the corporations represented are the United States Steel Corporation, General Electric Company, General Motors Corporation, Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the F. W. Woolworth Company.

Explaining the necessity for the survey, Dr. Gay said that it flowed from the consolidation of business interests which tended more and more to become national in character while charity and welfare work must remain local. According to the program laid down field men will canvass the corporations as to their practices in giving to charity in the past. From their findings, it hoped, definite principles of procedure can be laid down.

PRIVATE, A. W. O. L. WITH PLANE, STARTS YOUNG WAR

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 27.—(AP.)—A fledgling pilot, Private F. F. Fietz, Sixty-second Service Squadron, Brooks Field, was shorn of his wings today and housewives and motorists in Highland Park, a suburb, breathed a sigh of relief.

Without authority, Pvt. Fietz, lacking a pilot's rating, took up an airplane for an airing yesterday, zoomed low over housetops, cut circles around chimneys and even argued right of way with motorists. One driver was reported to have wrecked his car in dodging the plane.

After police received approximately 100 telephone calls from residents complaining of the "acrobatic" flying, a half dozen planes took off in war formation. They returned surrounding Pvt. Fietz. He made a perfect landing.

Pvt. Fietz, who was placed under arrest, said the mere study of airplane engines bored him and he had longed for the freedom of the air and the roar of an open exhaust.

BUSINESS MAN'S THRIFT PRECAUTION WINS AWARD

When James Pearson, retired Detroit business-man, stopped in Pittsburgh last June to visit relatives before sailing to Sweden, his native land, he handed a sum of money to his nephew, C. A. Pearson, 122 Crawford avenue, Bellevue, and asked him to deposit it in a bank for him, as it was well when one was along in years to have such "a sheet anchor to the windward."

The elder Pearson's prudence has brought him reward, for the savings account thus started, No. 20,418, in the Pennsylvania Savings Bank, has been enriched by a $10 deposit from the Sun-Telegraph, one of hundreds of gifts offered by this paper to savings bank depositors to reward thrift and induce others to save.

ROCHESTER, Pa., April 27.—Passing of a new public service law by the Pennsylvania State Legislature is the only solution to the water rate controversy in Beaver County and other sections of the state, in the opinion of members of the Beaver County Federation of Boroughs.

At the monthly meeting of the Federation held here, representatives of Rochester, East Rochester, Freedom, New Brighton, Beaver Falls, Koppel and Homewood boroughs, decided to make renewed efforts to have a new law enacted by the Legislature to regulate the activities of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission.

PLAN TO RECLAIM SAHARA WITH CANALS FROM SEA

PARIS, April 27.—(AP.)—Formal incorporation today of a company headed by an American engineer brings near realization one of the greatest and most daring land reclamation schemes of all time. By it science is to wave her magic wand over 100,000 square miles of the great Sahara desert, and make them produce wheat, corn, cotton and sugar cane for the sustenance of 4,500,000 families.

Dwight Braman, New York engineer and originator of the scheme, is to incorporate the Sahara Company at a nominal capital of 400,000 francs (about $16,000) which under the articles of incorporation may be expanded without limit.

He and his associates think they can transform the climate and the conditions of life of a stretch of the desert by connecting dry lake beds and areas below sea level in Southern Tunis and Algeria and along the western borders of Tripoli with the Mediterranean Sea at Gabes, Tunis, through three great canals.

Enough salt water to flood 60,000 square miles of desert will be let in by the canals. Evaporization of water from this artificial sea would affect the climate of the Sahara and by storing up water for irrigation change an arid region into a district as fertile as Tunis and Algiers themselves, it is claimed.

Fifty million dollars is the estimate for the first expediture, which will be used to reclaim 100,000 square miles of territory. The company would get its returns in land concessions.

Mr. Braman's co-founders of the company include Sir George Armstrong and Col. Henry Warre, of London; John L. Stevens, of Ames, Ia.; Herbert L. Bickford and Stewart Ellett, of New York, and Prince Francis Ruspoli, of Rome.

ROBBERS LOOT STORE SAFE

Two robbers who crawled through a coal hole into the store of George Wetherill & Co., paint merchants, at 910 Federal street, today, cracked a small safe and obtained a small quantity of loot.

Patrolman Robert Graves, passing the rear of the store in Nance way, saw a cellar door leading from the coal hole open and entered to investigate.

On the ground floor he found the safe broken open, with a chisel, a punch and the smashed combination knob nearby.

Officials of the company were notified, and they asked police to nail up the cellar door until an investigation of the robbery could be made.

Man to Face Court In 'Noise' Shooting

The shots that police allege Clarence Boddie, 43, of 1528 Montier street, Wilkinsburg, fired into a group of street railway repairmen to halt noise that disturbed his sleep will have an echo in court. At a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace George Shields, of Wilkinsburg, last night on charges of pointing firearms and assault and battery Boddie waived hearing for court. According to police one shot struck a workman and another struck an air compressor. The compressor's gasoline tank exploded, injuring another man.

Woman Seriously Hurt in Attack By Gander

LOYALHANNA, Pa., April 27.—(AP.)—Attacked by a large gander in the barnyard of her home yesterday, Mrs. John Gordon, 76, was seriously hurt. The gander became angered when Mrs. Gordon approached a goose which was on a nest. It charged the aged woman and sank its beak into her head, severing an artery. The victim was rescued by other members of her family.

NEGROES CLASH, ONE SLAIN

William Barrox, 51, Negro coal miner, was shot to death by another Negro this morning in front of his home at Smithdale, according to a report to the coroner.

Police were reported to have arrested the alleged slayer. County Detectives James P. Reddington and James O'Brien were detailed to investigate.

Both men were said to have been employed at the Ocean mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

Firemen Extinguish Blaze in Awnings

Firemen were called out this morning to extinguish an awning fire at the Crutchfield Building, Second avenue and Short street. Three awnings on the sixth floor windows and three on the seventh floor windows were burned. The damage will be about $100, firemen said. The cause of the fire was not learned.

LIMIT ON ARMY RESERVES OUT

GENEVA, April 27.—(AP.)—Despite strong German and Russian objection, limitation on trained army reserves was ruled out of the draft treaty of the preparatory disarmament commission today.

The action was in line with the announcement of Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, American representative, made at yesterday's session, that the United States, in the interests of making progress toward disarmament, would not insist upon trained reserves figuring in the treaty, although it still believed that they should.

After clear evidence that a majority of the countries at the conference favored taking no action on reserves, President Loudon this afternoon ruled that no limitation of them could be invisaged in the treaty.

Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet delegate, demanded a vote, but President Loudon refused this, as the question involved a principle.

It became certain that conscription countries like France, Italy and Japan, would win their point that trained reserves should not be included when Lord Cushendun, delegate of Great Britain, disclosed that Britain, like the United States, in the interest of making progress toward disarmament, would not insist upon reserves being restricted.

2 Hurt in Auto Crash, Another Hit at Scene

Dophlos Ham, 29, of 54 Roberts street and Neal Matthews, 29, of 1213 Epiphany street, were cut and bruised this morning when an automobile driven by Ham sideswiped another machine in Galveston avenue near South avenue, according to a report at the North Side Police Station. Both men were given medical attention at the Presbyterian Hospital. Police arrested Ham and R. C. Ellison, 52, of 1317 Orchlee street, driver of the other car, on reckless driving charges.

While the damaged automobiles were being moved to the side of the street and while the injured were being taken to the hospital, George Gray, 60, of 406 Taylor avenue, a pedestrian, was knocked down by a hit-and-run motorist. He was standing in the street near the wreck when knocked down. He suffered cuts and bruises.

RUM KILLING STIRS HOUSE AS DRYS APPLAUD SLAYER

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Seething dissatisfaction over recent shootings and gun-play by prohibition enforcement officers reached the floor of the House late yesterday.

Confusion and disorder rocked the chamber in a violent discussion of the slaying on Wednesday of Ottmer Fleming, 21, by a Washington policeman during the chase of a rum-laden motor car which laid a smoke-screen through Capital streets. The policeman has been suspended pending investigation.

Representative Holaday, dry Republican from Illinois, unloosed the torrent, when he offered a defense of Policeman Clyde O. Rouse, who did the shooting. Drys applauded.

BRAND TAKES UP CUDGEL

Representative Brand (D.), of Georgia, who said he had voted for every prohibition measure that had come before Congress during his long term, jumped to his feet and shouted:

"I contend as a lawyer, that if an officer has no warrant in his possession or lawful authority to arrest, that where a man has committed only an ordinary felony, less than a capital offense, that to kill any one under these circumstances is not justifiable homicide, but is offensive homicide."

LA GUARDIA JUMPS IN

Then LaGuardia (R.), of New York, jumped into the fray with:

"I did not expect to hear applause at the shooting of any human being, even though that human being might have been transporting liquor for prominent people in the District of Columbia.

"If you want to justify the shooting of a human being on the charge that in the car he is driving there are alcoholic beverages, then to be logical you should call out the Navy and send it out 12 miles from New York and sink the steamship Leviathan.

"By your applause today you are starting on a new era in prohibition enforcement. I say that prohibition is not worth putting this country into civil war."

Representative Black (D.), of New York, said:

"This is the most outrageous scene I have ever encountered in the House of Representatives. To think that a boy riding over the Anacostia Bridge, with some bottles of liquor, was shot to death and his assassin should now be applauded by the members of the House of Representatives."

Fugitive Canary Caught in Hat Of Woman

The story of the hat and the canary was in the annals of Frankstown Avenue Police Station today. The canary escaped from its cage while its owner, Sam Chemese, of 7 Meadow street, was cleaning the cage yesterday. Chemese and many small boys pursued it, and Acting Lieut. Henry Russell joined the chase at Meadow and McDonald streets. The canary alighted upon the hat of a woman pedestrian. Russell pounced upon it, knocked the hat to the ground, but captured the bird.

NAVAL BALLOON OUTFIT ARRIVES

Equipment for the two Navy balloons entered in the 1929 National elimination balloon race, to be held in Pitt Stadium, May 4, as the climax of a three-day aeronautic exhibit, arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday and was taken to the Stadium. The material for the three entries of the Army has been at the Stadium for several days. The seven civilian balloons in the race are expected here early next week.

Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the Army Air Corps, notified the balloon race sponsors yesterday that three airplanes from the Washington pursuit group which will give a demonstration of formation flying here in connection with the balloon race, would arrive at Bettis Field Friday morning.

Some of the pilots and aids in the race will arrive tomorrow and all are expected to be here by Wednesday.

"Flying Grocery" At Bettis Field

A "flying grocery"—the giant tri-motored Ford plane, Independence—landed at Bettis Field yesterday, laden with groceries which it is hauling on a coast to coast tour in the interests of independent grocers in 125 cities and towns. It will be on public exhibit today, tomorrow and Monday at Bettis Field.

The plane is equipped with radio and a phonograph for the entertainment of the pilot and passengers, and its interior is fitted up as a small but model store. The airship, built at a cost of $60,000, is owned by Reid Murdoch & Co.

Man Crushed by Mine Car

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., April 27.—Kenneth Brady, 21, of Springdale, is in the Citizens General Hospital here today suffering from serious injuries. He was crushed by a car in the Barking mine of the Hillman Coal and Coke Company.

PRACTICING WHAT THEY PREACH

They practice what they preach, these folks who tonight and tomorrow night at Y. M. & W. H. A., Bellefield avenue, play in the "Queen's Husband," Robert Sherwood play. Mr. Payne, professor of drama at Carnegie Tech, plays the lead. Mr. Story teaches dramatic at Fifth Avenue High School and Lydia Patterson is well-known for her years on the stage.

BOTANY EXPERT LIKES BEST TO WRITE MUSIC

There's the story of the banker who paints; the capitalist who collects butterflies, the bricklayer who does marathon dancing, and——

Here's one of the biologist and botanist, the scholar whose major attainment is to be able to tell why we haven't tails, or why plants have petals. And his diversion is the composition of music.

G. A. Schnabel never bothered much about a musical education. He was, as a student at the University of Pittsburgh, more curious about bugs and humans and plants.

But he discovered that he liked music and could play the piano. Then he decided to write scores. Then he was persuaded that Pitt's annual Cap and Gown Club would like to use his music in their plays.

Today, Prof. Schnabel, teacher in Oliver High School, has completed his seventh Cap and Gown show score, and the music, his pupils say, is full of zip. He is assisted by his wife, Eliza Schnabel, who is training the boys of Pitt to do girl-like dances.

HOBO MEETING ON IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(INS.) The I. B. W. A. meets here today—and How!

How is the James Eads fellow St. Louis and tank town way points, while the I. B. W. A. is none other than the International Brotherhood Welfare Association, technically speaking, hoboes.

Serious business confronts the association. They're figuring on asking President Hoover what's become of the three-million dollar revolving fund for public works he talked about before election. How says, and when will the revolving begin.

The association disclaims any connection with ordinary tramps.

"Tramps don't work," one grimy delegate explained, the inference being that hoboes do.

Jacob S. Coxey, the "General," who marched at the head of an army of unemployed from Massillon to Washington in Cleveland's heyday, was expected to put in appearance at the meeting today.

11 Boys Held After Wrecking Old House

Charged with wrecking the old W. J. T. Baine homestead, a landmark in Etna, 11 boys were held for court by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones last night. All the boys are under 16.

James H. Firtune, real estate dealer in charge of the house, alleges that the boys destroyed a stairway, wrecked plumbing fixtures and broke practically every window in the 12-room house. Each of the boys was released under $300 bond.

WHEATLAND, Pa., April 27.—Three small children were rescued by the Rev. D. O. Washburn when he discovered the home of William Crosby, a neighbor, in flames. The house was burned to the ground.

DRAMA TEACHERS IN CAST OF 'QUEEN'S HUSBAND' AT 'Y'

The Barrymores, Otis Skinner and other famous actors would like to see the rehearsals of "The Queen's Husband." And so would many younger and less noted actors like to sit in the auditorium of the Y. M. & W. H. A., in Bellefield avenue, these days.

For there a director has turned actor and, instead of giving orders, is taking them. He is B. Iden Payne, for many years head of Carnegie Tech's Dramatic Department, and who has often cracked the whip over famous actors on the professional stage. Payne, now director of the Goodman Memorial Theater in Chicago, is playing the leading role in "The Queen's Husband," by Robert E. Sherwood, to be presented tonight and Sunday night in the "Y" playhouse. He is acting under the direction of Helen R. Stout.

The cast also includes Chester Story, teacher of drama in Fifth Avenue High School; James Stinchcomb, teacher of Latin and Greek at the University of Pittsburgh, and E. Martin Browne, of the Carnegie Tech School of Drama.

Gala Ceremonial Marks Raising of Curtain in New Tube City Playhouse

NEW JOHN P. HARRIS THEATER IN M'KEESPORT OPENED WITH MUCH ECLAT

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS.

WITH eclat appropriate to the birth of an infant having the proverbial golden spoon in its mouth, golden because its grandparent, born with a pewter spoon, had laid solidly the foundation that provided lavishness for its descendant, the new John P. Harris Memorial Theater, McKeesport, was opened last night. Formality had its part, after which the theater immediately began to function, giving the multitude in attendance a demonstration of the uses to which the new structure is to be devoted—that of entertaining the public through the medium screen features and music.

In this aim it will follow the most modern methods, as was proven by the program which was presented as the culmination of the impressive routine speeches, congratulatory greetings, some of which, from distant places were voiced from the screen, via Vitaphone, a novel demonstration of the effectiveness of one part of the equipment of this latest marvel of theater construction.

Following the reception of visitors and informal greetings in the flower bedecked lobby—flowers in huge bouquets being one of the beautiful forms of congratulations of friends of the builders of the theater—the dedication program was begun with speeches by John H. Harris, and D. A. Harris, and a ceremonious parting of the curtains by Mrs. John P. Harris. In the Vitaphone greetings were compliments of many notables, including Mayor James J. Walker, of New York; Al. Jolson and other Hollywood stars.

Opening Bill's Star Is Rogers

Peter Higgins sang, Frank Dixon being the accompanist, after which came the regular bill, first in the new theater. It included a song novelty, "Yankee Doodle;" Phil Baker on the Vitaphone in "The Bad Boy from a Good Family;" a comedy skit, and the feature picture, "Close Harmony," an up-to-the minute talking, singing and dancing film, with Charles "Buddy" Rogers and Nancy Carroll in the principal roles.

Thus did the latest addition to the extensive chain of Harris theaters begin its career in the town in which the first John P. Harris theater was located. It was in the Tube City that the late Senator Harris began his career as an independent showman, after having been associated with his father in the World's Museum, Federal street, near the Sixth Street Bridge, North Side. As a mark of the achievements in entertaining the public there is in a wall of the new theater a memorial tablet, privately dedicated Thursday in the presence of members of the Harris family.

This magnificent new playhouse has a seating capacity approximating 2,500, and it represents an entirely new thought in theater architecture, one which has found somewhat similar expression in the West.

An Illusion Of Out-Doors

It is architecturally what is known as an atmospheric theater, created by John Eberson, a New York and Chicago architect. It reflects a Spanish style, colored by marked Italian influence. The front facade of the building is designed with tapestry panelled brick work surmounted by a terra cotta trimmed arch. The lobby has a high ceiling of a heavily beamed design. Here the walls are treated with niches, between which hang colorful banners. At one end of the lobby is a decorative fountain recessed into an alcove where hidden lights play on the water.

From the lobby a stairway enclosed by a hand-hammered wrought iron railing leads to the mezzanine promenade, from the overhanging balconies of which the observer obtains a better view of the foyer below. Off the promenade are located the men's smoking room, women's parlor and cosmetic rooms and checkrooms.

Gay Garden Represented

All of these are handsomely decorated and furnished in keeping with the atmospheric style of architecture. The entire interior of the auditorium carries out the effect of a Spanish patio garden in gay regalia, ready for a moonlit festival. Low garden walls executed in palm plaster and rough cast ornaments, enhanced with statuary, tree tops, climbing vines and blooming plants and flowers, gives an illusion of the open air, further typified by the great sky dome, which forms the ceiling of the theater, and through which floats fleecy clouds in actual movement. There are stars which twinkle and fade and pass and come again, and birds on the wing, spotted by a concealed light.

All this forms an imitation of nature's own setting scarcely to be pictured in the imagination. It creates a warm and friendly feeling of comfort and ease by the artistic play of lights and shadows and the colorful treatment of the decorative theme of the auditorium.

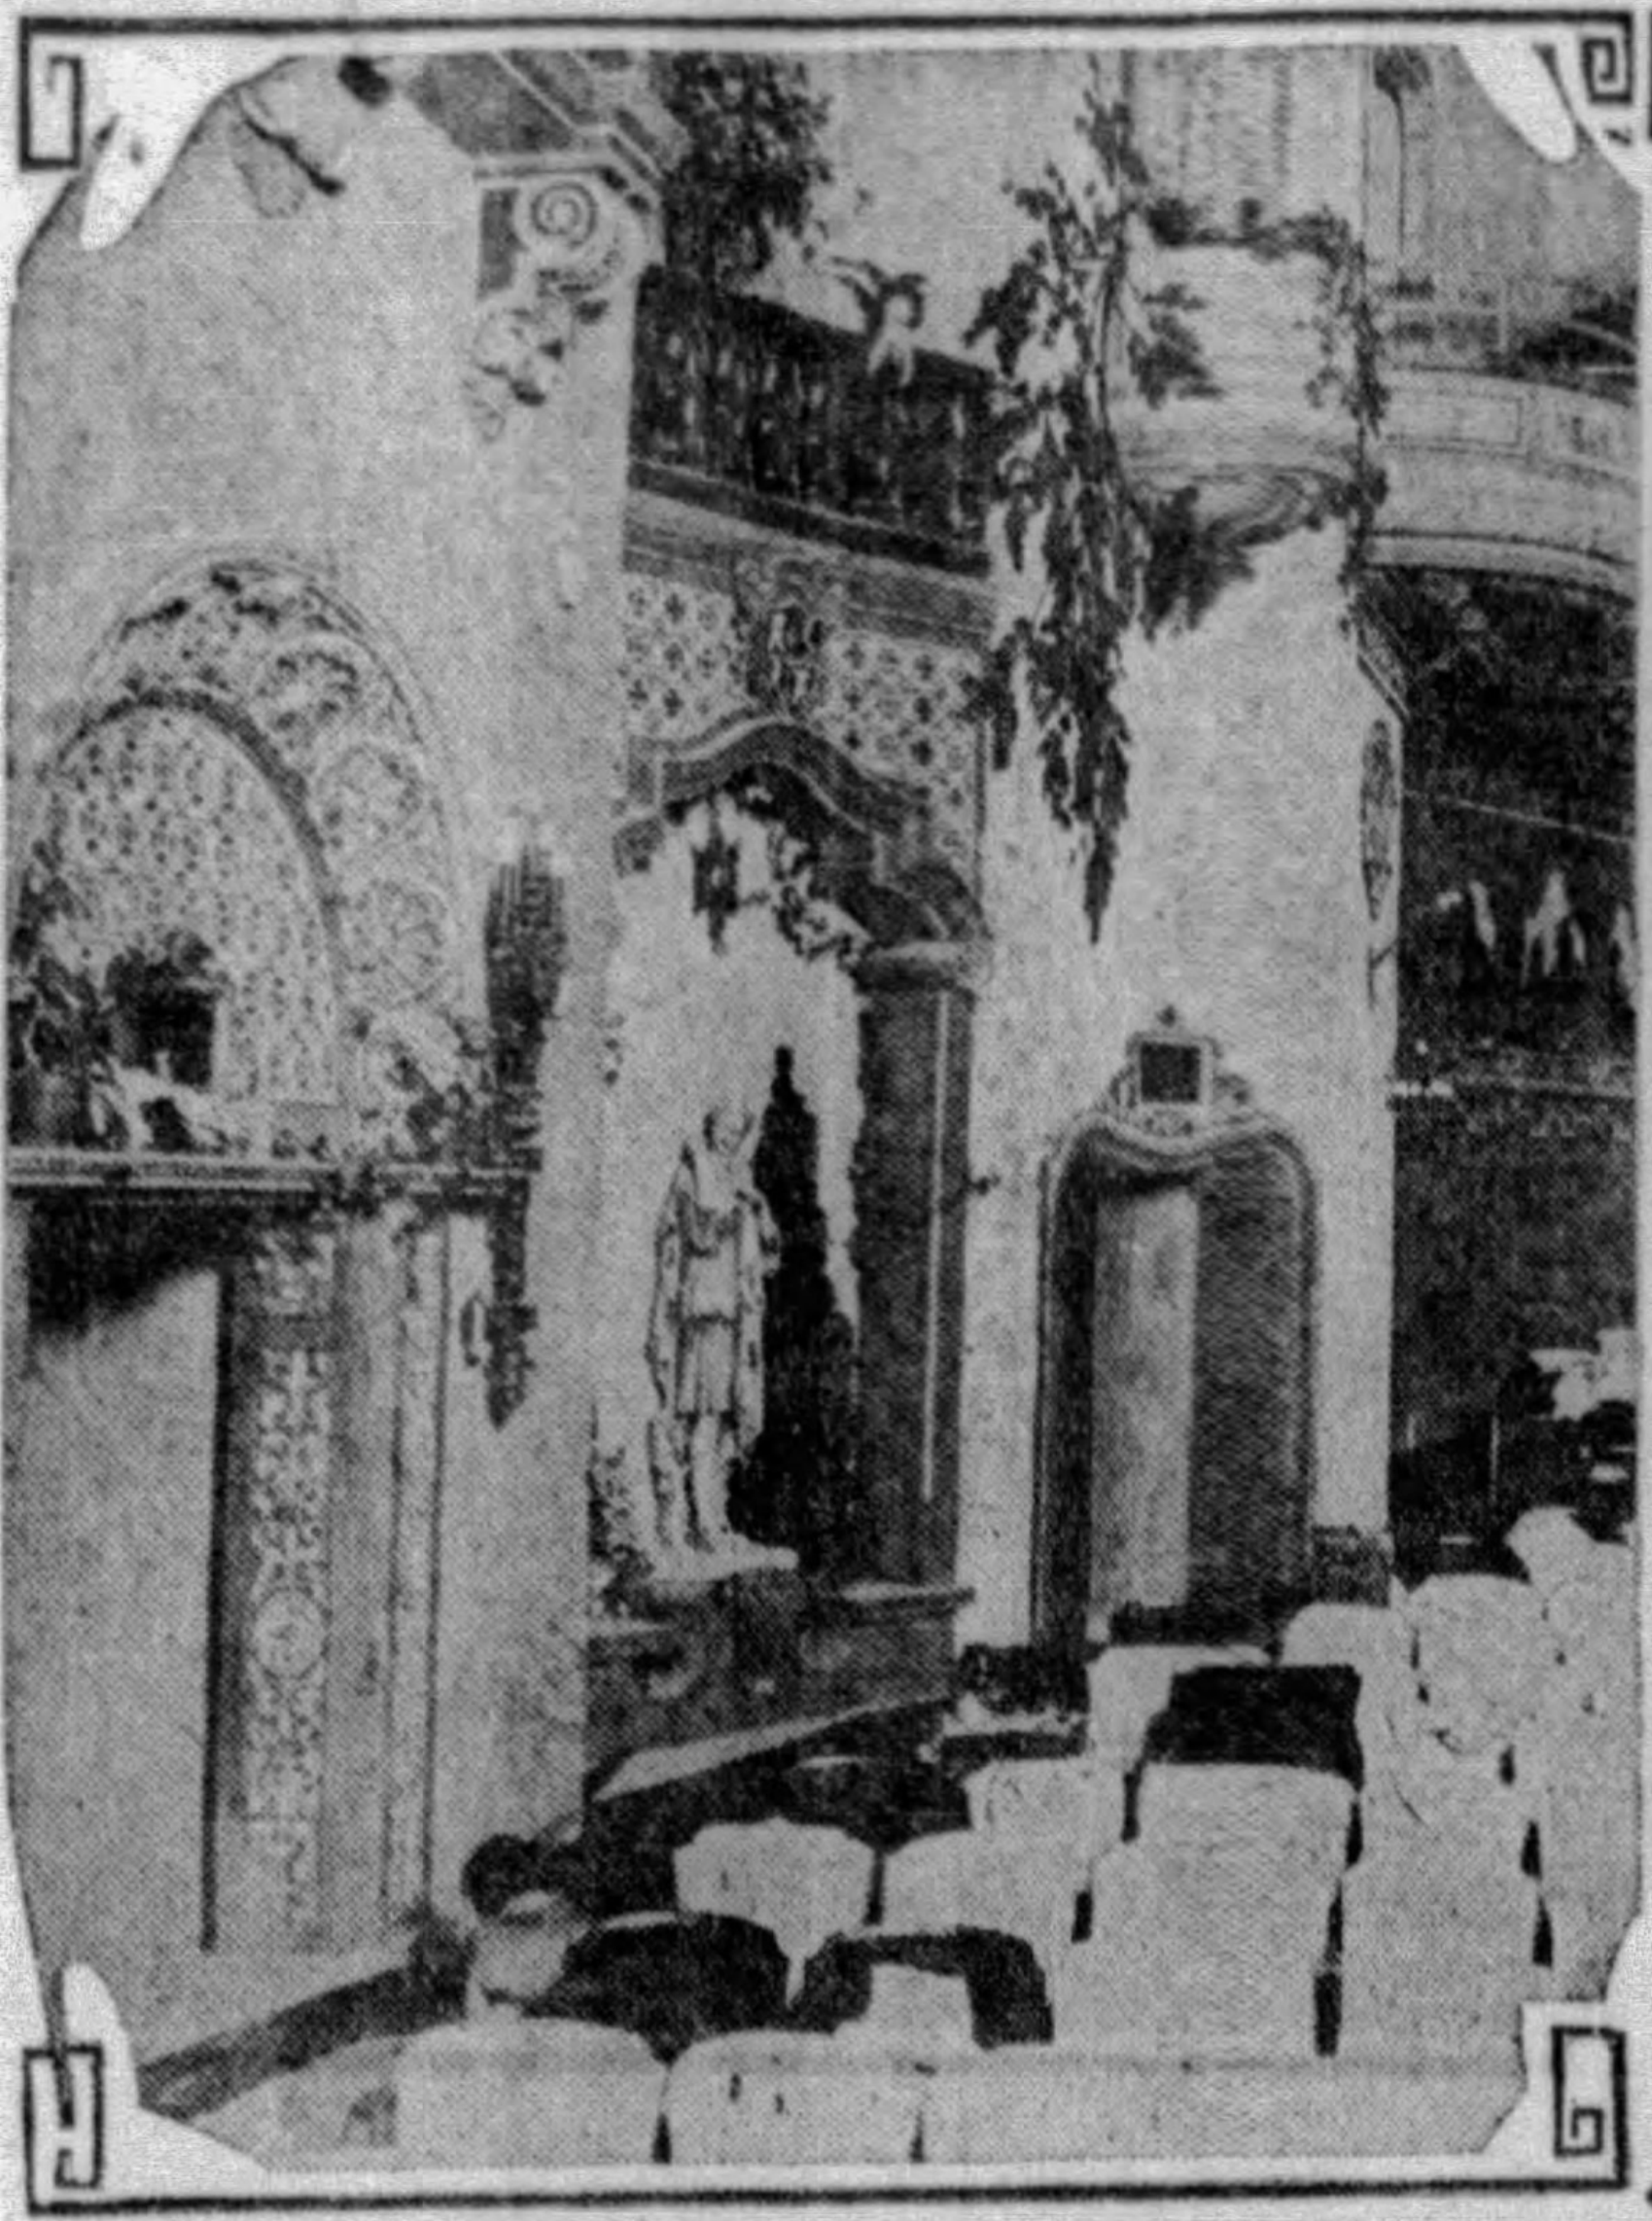
The elaborate lighting system makes it possible to add to the deep blue sky illusion the illusion of moving fleecy clouds, twinkling stars, and the warm glow which comes from the entire garden and palace interior.

In furnishings and equipment for the presenation of its programs the theater is equally modern and marvelous in completeness.

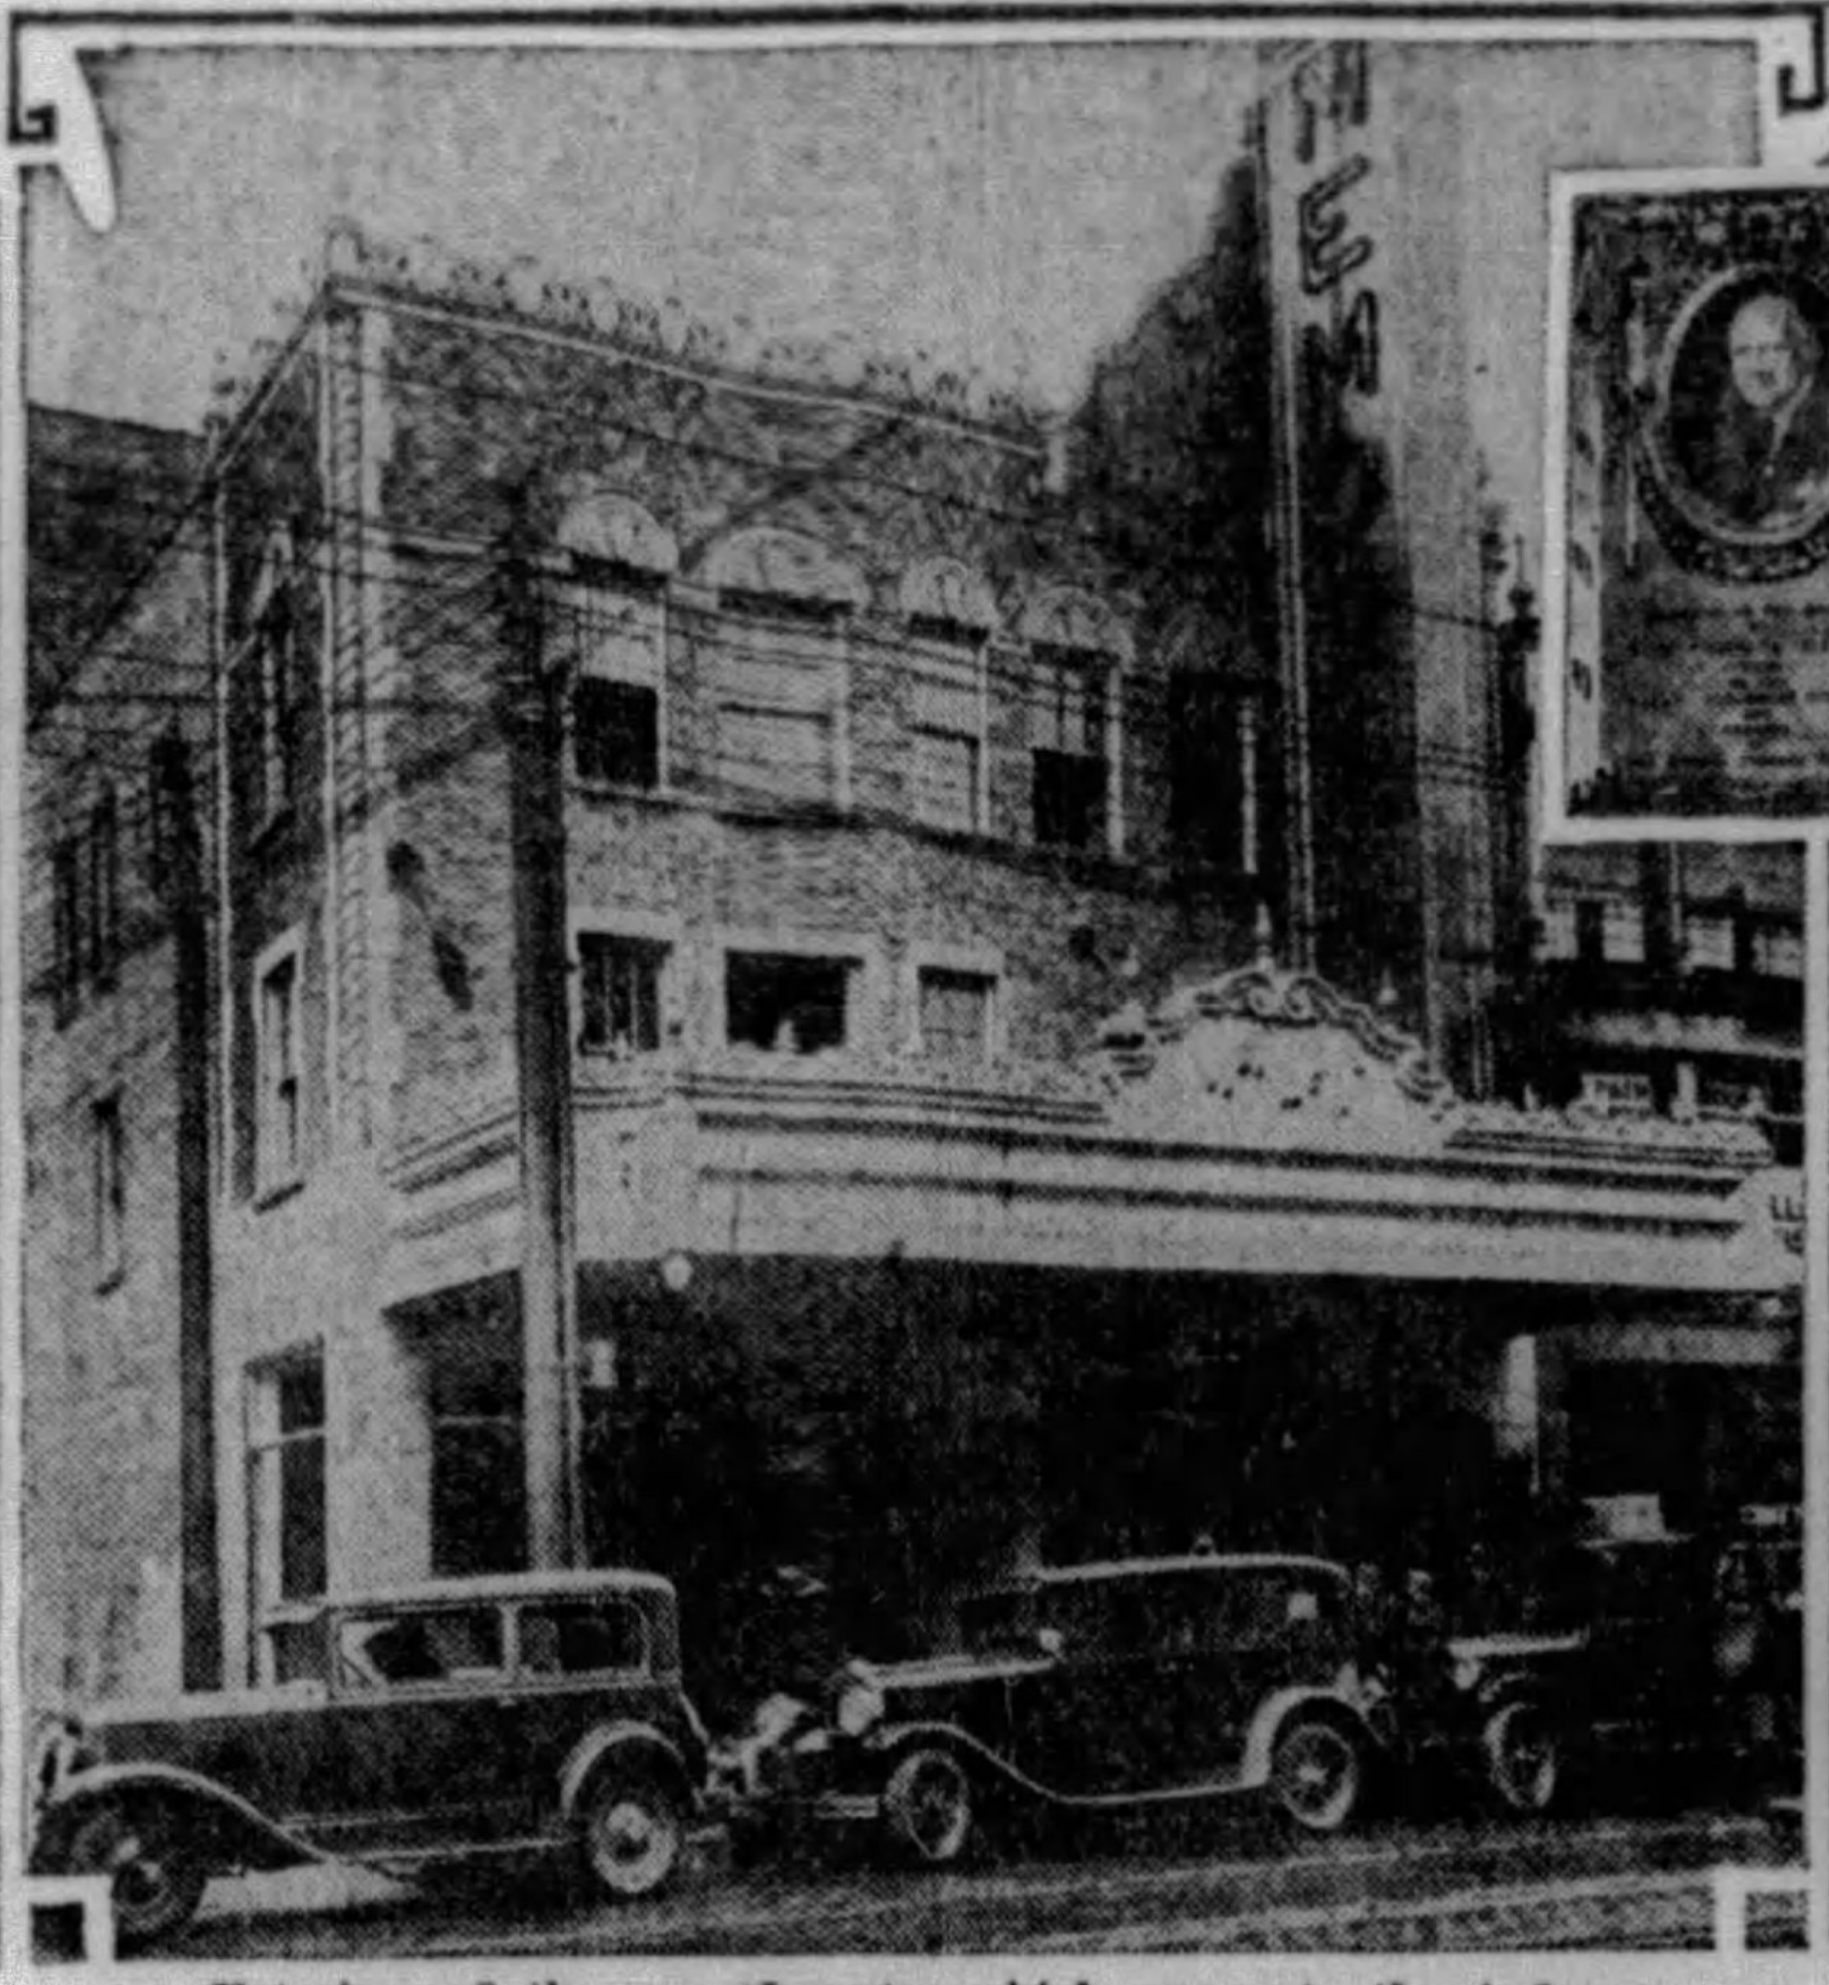
Concerts, Dancing In Kennywood Park

Kennywood Park is now open Saturday nights for dancing and Sundays for amusements and family picnic gatherings. Bill Hollins and his Blue Ridge Serenaders will play for the dancing tonight. Tomorrow afternoon and evening concerts will be given by the Westinghouse Band, under the direction of Lieut. T. J. Vastine.

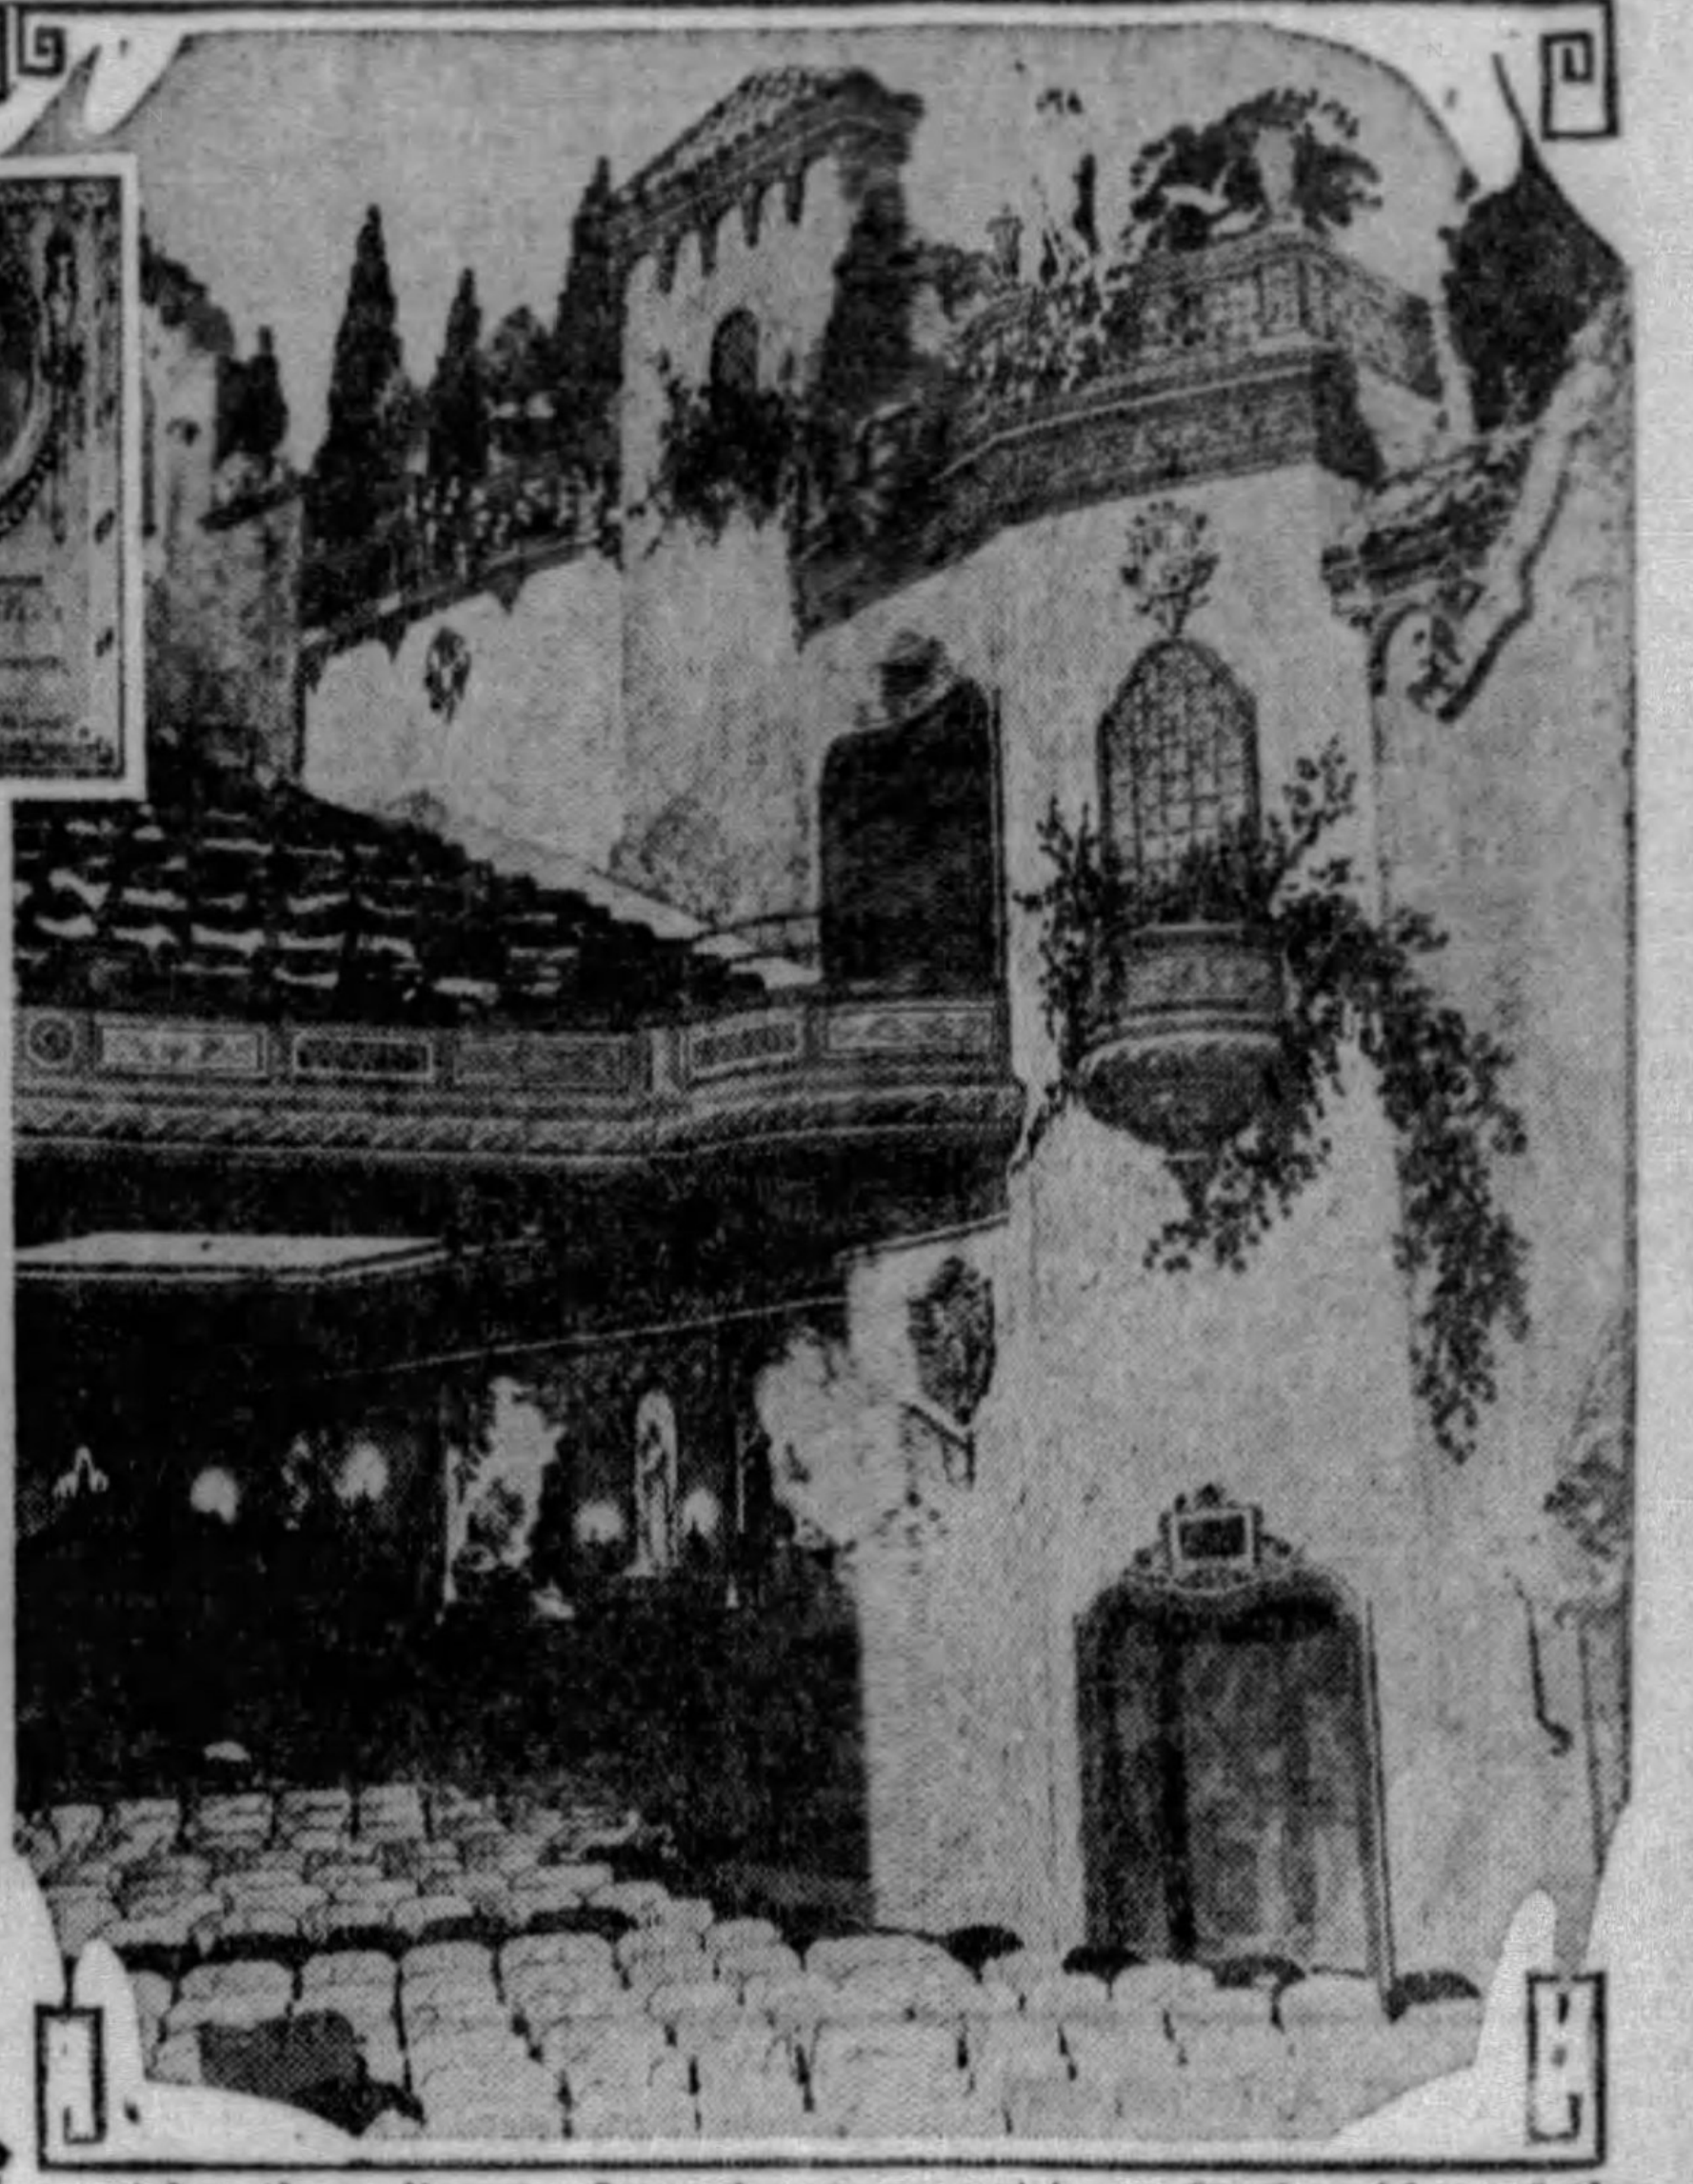
THEATER MAGNIFICENT :: HAS ADVENT :: IN M'KEESPORT



View of interior from stage of John P. Harris Memorial Theater, McKeesport, illustrating the treatment whereby an atmospheric effect is achieved, giving an impression of the outdoors, as can be seen in several of the openings.



Exterior of the new theater, which suggests the influence of lands that border the Mediterranean, which is carried out with more elaborate detail on the interior of the new temple of amusement in the Tube City. The insert is the tablet to the founder—John P. Harris.



Another glimpse from the stage, giving a further idea of the beauty of the interior, in which the beauties of Italian and Spanish gardens are made to seem real. Here is illustrated how the walls appear to have no roof, the dome of the theater seeming to be the open sky.

TWO WILLIAM BOYDS ONE TOO MANY FOR SCREEN, SO SUITS THREATEN

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 27.

LITA GREY CHAPLIN'S contribution to a recent radio program vocalized the promise: "I'll never ask for more." There is no fire exit.

They do tell a story regarding a W. K. producer who enjoys his little chuckle. He decided to fire one of his writers. He 'phoned him: Quoth the writer: "What have you got on your mind, boss?" Quoth the producer: "Nothing. From now on you're just a memory." Though, personally, I think it much too subtle for a—er—producer.

And now the colony discusses the situation of William Boyd versus William Boyd. From Broadway comes one William Boyd to enact a featured role in George Fitzmaurice's initial U. A. outloud, "The Locked Door," or is it plural? The Pathe studio has had its William Boyd for years. Two Boyds with but a single screen complicates matters. But "Broadway" Boyd asserts when he breezed onto this lil' planet, his grandfather wired: "Glad you arrived safe." It remains as summarized in four words. I suggest the Pathe brains change their Boyd's first name to Pathe. 'Tis a bit complicated, of a surety, but when each studio stands on its publicity legs and rages: "I'll bring suit and MAKE your Boyd change his name," one just settles back and applauds the old army game.

William Boyd Of Stage.

William Boyd Of Screen.

The local Music Union permits no grass to take root under its feet. Recently, Clarence Brown started rehearsals for his new picture. He decided to have a Victrola on the set and play records that would aid his players in grasping the mood of each scene. A prop man took charge. About half an hour later a man pushed open the door to the set and walked on. He was informed no visitors were allowed. "I ain't no visitor," indifferently. He showed his union card and strolled over to the Victrola. The record ended and the prop man made a move to take it off. "What you wanter play now?" asked the union man, who was a violinist in disguise. The prop man told him. The U. M. put on the record. He stood by all day and for as many days as the Victrola was in use. He was paid regular union wages for his services! About $10 per. Verily, the confederates shall not pass today.

MUSIC SHOW AND STOCK IN BILLS

After next week's engagement in the Alvin, "The Desert Song" will play a week's stand at Baltimore and be withdrawn from production for all time. Alexander Gray, Bernice Claire and Bernard Granville are featured.

The Belasco success of a decade ago, "Daddies," will be offered by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week.

"Close Harmony," song, talk and dance picture, comes Monday to the Penn. Charles Rogers and Nancy Carroll are featured.

"The Broadway Melody" will open a fifth week in the Aldine Monday. Anita Page, Bessie Love and Charles King are featured in this sensational all-talk, song and dance film.

ANOTHER ALL-TALKIE

Claudette Colbert, who plays the lead in "The Hole in the Wall," the all-talking picture coming to the Stanley Monday, was born in Paris and spent the first 15 years of her life there.

Bert Rose, comedian; Gaby Fields, Ina Thomas and other burlesquers support Teresina, dancer, in "Radium Queens," opening in the Academy with a Sunday midnight show.

James J. Corbett, ex-champion of the world, and Neil O'Brien, minstrel man, will top the vaudeville bill in the Harris the first three days of next week. The talk screen will present "The Office Scandal," with Phyllis Haver.

The Sheridan Square Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will show "The Veiled Woman," introducing two new stars, Lia Tora and Paul Vincenti, its screen feature. The stage vaudeville will have Harry Weiman and his 10 girl musicians as the headliner.

ZIEGFELD ON SCREEN

Florenz Ziegfeld himself appears in a talking prologue to the film, "Show Boat," which opens in the Grand today. Laura La Plante and Joseph Schildkraut head the dramatic cast in the picturization.

Monte Blue and May McAvoy, two Warner Brothers' stars, who have previously been seen separately, are united in the talking picture, "No Defense," which comes to the Enright today.

George Fawcett, character actor, is seen as the attorney for the defense when Dorothy Mackaill is tried for the murder of her husband in "His Captive Woman," which comes to the Liberty today.

Audrey Ferris and George Fawcett have been daughter and father in two recent Warner Brothers' pictures, "The Little Wildcat" and "Fancy Baggage." The latter film opens as the attraction in the Regent today. "One Stolen Night," starring Betty Bronson and William Collier, Jr., will come to the Regent Wednesday.

Lightning Destroys Barn, Stuns Farmer

DOVER, O., April 27.—John E. Dessecker, Wooster road farmer, was stunned and hurled 40 feet by a bolt of lightning which caused his barn to be destroyed by fire.

Thousands at Tech For Annual Exhibit

Thousands of Pittsburghers last night visited the various departments of the Carnegie Institute of Technology on the occasion of the Institute's twenty-third annual exhibit. A six-room bungalow built by students was a feature. Other attractions included an exhibit of advertising promoted by 21 firms in the Department of Commercial Engineering and a demonstration of Televox, mechanical man.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgh's Travelers Returning Home From Winter Vacations

THIS is an "off" Saturday again, so far as weddings are concerned. It's odd, isn't it, how the weeks seem to be alternating this spring, one full of all sorts of interesting things and the next—empty? One of our local girls is an attendant at a wedding in the East today, though. This is Priscilla Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Webber Barnes, and she is a bridesmaid at the marriage of her cousin, Priscilla Rhodes, and Robert Coburn, both of Boston, which is set for today in the new Old South Church, Boston.

But even if there isn't much entertaining today, I can, at least, tell you about some of our folks who are away from home. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Flaccus and their family, of "Red Gables Farm," and Mrs. Flaccus mother, Mrs. George Warren Bliss, of Shady avenue, have been traveling in Italy, you know, for the last three months. The latest word from them came from Florence, and from there they were planning to go on up to Switzerland and France. After spending about a week at the Hotel Meurice in Paris, their plans include sailing next week on the Ile de France for home.

Then from Asheville comes word that several local people are spending some time there. Among them are the Nielien Otterbeins, who were married, you remember, on April 15. Mrs. Otterbein was Mary Kathryn Knapp, daughter of the Lawrence Wendell Knapps, of the Schenley Apartments.

At Asheville, just now, interest is centered upon coming golf tournaments and other outdoor sports. The date set for the second annual invitation tournament at the Malvern Hills Country Club is co-incident with the Southern intercollegiate tournament at the Biltmore Forest Country Club, which gets under way next week. Many stars of the links from various sections of the country will play in these two major spring golf events. And doesn't it seem quite in the nature of events that the names of W. C. Fownes, Jr., and C. B. Fownes are also included in the list of local people at Asheville?

Returning from Pinehurst are Anne and Margaret Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Rose, of Sewickley, who have been spending several months there. They will motor north with Dr. and Mrs. DeWitt Nettleton and Mrs. Nettleton's mother, Mrs. Francis M. Hutchison, whose guests they have been all winter. The Rose girls, you know, will be presented to society in June.

ANOTHER daughter of the Andrew Ellicott Maccouns, of North Braddock, is going to be married. Mr. and Mrs. Maccoun are announcing the betrothal of Martha Hughes Maccount to I. Manning Parsons, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Manning Parsons, of Baltimore. Martha is a graduate of the Masters School, and she made her debut at her old home, Baltimore, this winter, being presented at the first Bachelor's Cotillion. Her fiance was graduated from Lehigh University. They are planning to have an early fall wedding, I understand.

Martha was maid of honor just this month at the wedding of her sister, Carolyn, and John Hanson Croker, of Baltimore. This ceremony was performed April 2 in the Maryland capital.

MR. AND MRS. H. J. KUMER, of Grandview avenue, Crafton, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Kumer, to Gilbert A. Friday, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Friday, of Steuben avenue, Crafton.

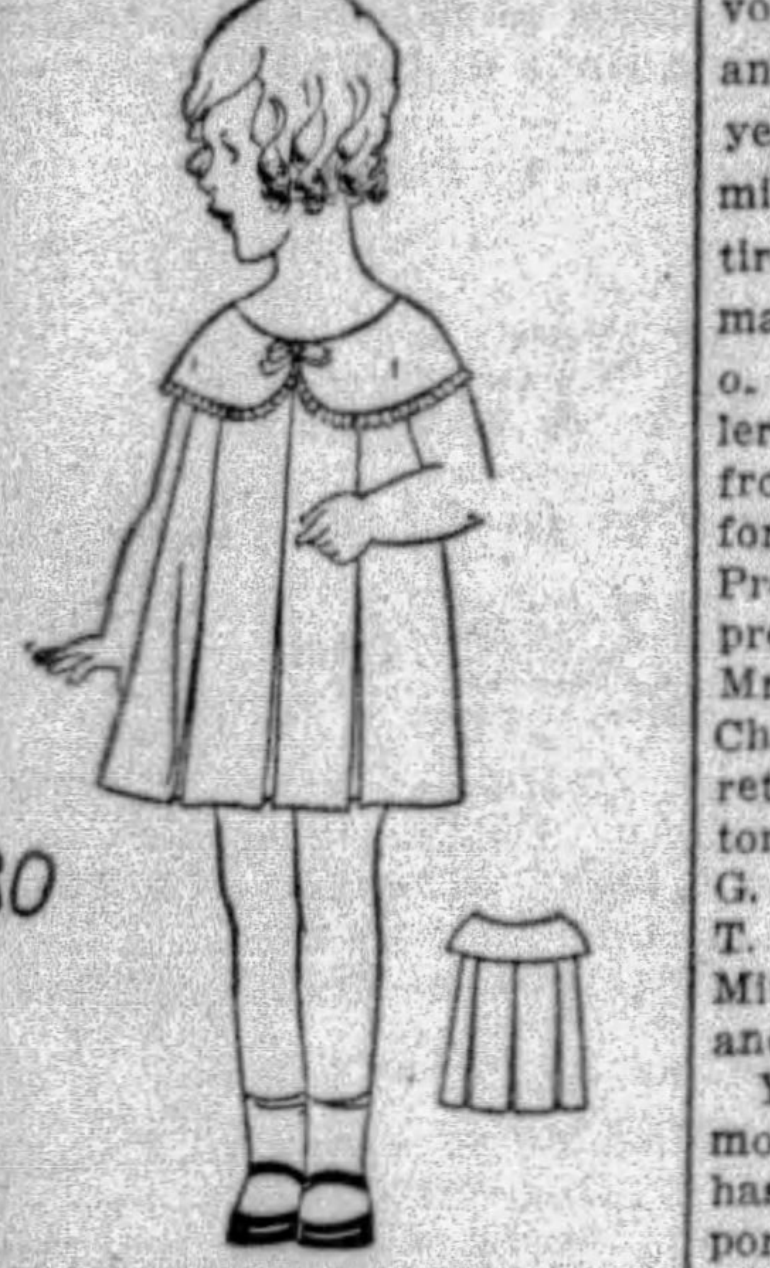
The active chapter will hold its annual supper dance Friday night in the Pittsburgh Country Club.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern



A DAINTY FROCK FOR A LITTLE MISS.

Taffeta, China silk, voile or cotton prints may be used for this design. The front and back have seamed sections, above plait extensions. The dress is sleeveless, but the bertha covers the top of the arm in sleeve cap effect. Pongee in a natural shade is suggested for this model with a finish of piping or plaiting in a contrasting color.

The pattern is cut in five sizes: 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. To make the dress for a 3-year size will require 1⅞ yards of material 32 inches wide. To trim bertha edges with plaiting will require 1½ yard. To make the collar of contrasting material will require 1-3 yard 39 inches wide and cut crosswise.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mrs. R. W. Johnston New Congress Head

MRS. RALPH W. JOHNSTON, the new president of the Congress of Clubs, was elected by a vote of 465 out of the 559 cast at the annual election in the clubhouse yesterday. The nominating committee's ticekt was elected in its entirety, although the ballots were in many instances scratched. In spite of the fact that Mrs. D. Edwin Miller had declined the nomination from the floor, she received 99 notes for the presidency. The ticket was: President, Mrs. Johnston; vice presidents, Mrs. F. H. Burdick, Mrs. T. M. Stahlman and Mrs. Charles S. Miller; corresponding secretary, Mrs. James C. Mace; directors, Mrs. J. W. Briggs, Mrs. John G. Daub, Mrs. H. Francies, Mrs. H. T. Frauenheim, Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell, Miss Miriam Schonfield and Mrs. Carl J. Proessler.

Yesterday's meeting closed the most successful year the Congress has ever had as shown in the reports of department and committee heads. Miss Alice Hall, chairman of the budget committee, reported $70,733.44 worth of business handled in the house, an increase of $8,333.44 over the budget. The dining room alone handled business amounting to $47,074.18 with a net profit of $6,873.47, and service to 53,571 persons.

Both afternoon and morning sessions were given over entirely to business, but while waiting for the report of the chairman of tellers, Mrs. John Henry Bricker, the women sang Foster melodies and Elsie Breese Mitchell, chairman of music, never did a more gracious thing than when, in response to several requests, she seated herself at the piano and, to her own accompaniment, sang "Love's Old Sweet Song." Nor has Mrs. Mitchell ever sung more beautifully. Mrs. Johnston received a stirring ovation at the close of the meeting, among the first to congratulate her being Mrs. Miller, her only opponent.

MAJ. HAMILTON DIES IN HOME

Maj. James Christy Hamilton, 53, who fought as a rough rider under Col. Roosevelt, chased Villa on the border, and was cited for bravery in the World War, died yesterday at his home, 18 Forbes Terrace.

Maj. Hamilton was born in old Allegheny, the son of William and Sarah Gillespie Hamilton. His father was superintendent of North Side parks for 30 years.

When he was 17, Maj. Hamilton became a rancher in the West and in the Spanish-American War joined the Rough Riders. He served under Pershing on the border, and entered the World War as an officer of the New Mexico National Guard. He commanded a battalion of heavy artillery in the One Hundred Forty-sixth Regiment and earned the stars of five major engagements, among them Champagne-Marne, Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne.

After service in the Army of Occupation in Germany, he returned to the United States in 1919 and made his home in Pittsburgh, where he became associated in business with his brother, the late A. R. Hamilton.

He was a member of the Masonic order, thirty-second degree; past master of his lodge in Roswell, N. M., a Knight Templar and a Shriner, a member of United Spanish War Veterans, American Legion Post No. 5, and the East End Christian Church.

He leaves four children, Mrs. Joseph Benkert, an instructor in the University of Pittsburgh; Robert K. Hamilton, an instructor in Iowa State College; Richard G. Hamilton, a student at Pitt, and Jean B. Hamilton, a student at Smith College; two brothers, William G., of Los Angeles, and Harry W. SENATE FAVORS WAR ON DOPE TRAFFIC

WASHINGTON, April 27. — The Senate is in entire accord with the proposal to reorganize and tighten up enforcement of the federal narcotic laws, a poll just revealed.

Senators enlisted in the fight declare that present abuses can be corrected only by a thorough revamping of existing administrative machinery and by creating an independent narcotics bureau.

Representative Porter (R), of Pennsylvania, head of the American delegation to the Geneva opium conference, is preparing the bill. Legal experts of the government are going over it to make it constitutionally airtight.

SOLELY REVENUE LAW

"One of the inherent weaknesses of the Harrison narcotic law is that it is a revenue measure solely," said Senator Walsh (D), of Montana, recognized as one of the outstanding constitutional authorities of the Senate.

"All of us are convinced of the necessity of doing everything within our power to lessen the horrible affliction of drugs and wipe out the illicit traffic.

"A reorganization, giving the government more complete control over those who handle narcotics, I believe to be essential.

"The narcotic law should be made impregnable from attack from the reprehensible traffickers."

Correction of the system of licensing dealers in narcotics was urged particularly by Walsh.

CANNOT WITHHOLD LICENSE

Under the present law the government cannot withhold licenses, even though the applicant may be an addict, or may have been convicted of a narcotic crime.

During his broad experience on the bench, Senator Wagner (D), of New York, became thoroughly acquainted with the ravages wrought by dope.

His study has convinced him, he said, of the urgent need for a revision of the method of fighting the menace. He announced his support of legislation to effect reforms.

Sign This Petition and Help to Cut Taxes

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

To the Congress of the United States:

We, the undersigned, respectfully urge that the Congress of the United States give immediate consideration to the proposition that there be a downward revision of all income taxes on all earned incomes such as salaries or fees, or commissions for personal services. We urge this because of the many instances where wage or fee or commission earners sometimes have just a few years of good incomes and prior to and after that period have substantially less incomes. Their period of better earnings which might give the average wage earner a chance to accumulate some capital is heavily taxed, and they seldom have a new opportunity which might tend to make more useful citizens of them.

Labor in general, lawyers, doctors architects, clerical workers, salesmen, dentists, engineers, journalists, accountants, actors, motion picture actors, singers, musicians and all the other professional people are in the same plight in the matter of earned income as distinguished from earnings on capital, and, since they represent a great percentage of the citizenry of the country, we beg the gravest consideration of this proposition. Each signer below hereby enrolls as a member of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph League for the Downward Revision of Taxes on Earned Incomes and will work with that newspaper toward the end stated.

Permission is hereby granted the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph to list the signer in the proper Labor, Clerical or Professional Division of the said League for presentation of our signatures to the United States Congress for the stated purpose.

The signer is not obliged to make any kind of contribution or to do anything except to give his moral support to this movement.

BYRD BROADCAST FEATURES AIR PROGRAMS TONIGHT

GOOD, BINGHAM, SOUSA BAND ON RADIO

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, RADIO EDITOR.

"Honey"—whose love notes to her husband with the Byrd Expedition have aroused the curiosity of radio fans everywhere—will step into the KDKA studio tonight at 11:05 o'clock to send a personal message to her beloved in Little America.

"Honey" is Mrs. K. F. Bubier of Washington, whose husband is an aviation mechanic on the "City of New York." Her sweet radio messages, sent to KDKA religiously every week signed simply "Honey" and addressed "To My Dear Husband," became of such import to listeners that KDKA received hundreds of letters requesting that arrangements be made to have her appear on the air in person.

Another stellar attraction of tonight's Byrd Broadcast will be the barking of dog messages from the KDKA studio to the dogs with the Expedition. P. A. Boyd, publicity engineer for KDKA, has asked the Sun-Telegraph to call for "dogs with loud barks" to handle the local end of the broadcast. Meanwhile Commander Byrd has raidoed Mr. Boyd that he will have all the dogs with the Expedition in the mess hall tonight to hear what Pittsburgh dogs have to say.

Bark that off!

Other outstanding features tonight include a special concert by the three national service bands, directed by John Philip Sousa, over WJAS at 9 p. m., addresses by Secretary of War Good and Senator Hiram Bingham, WJAS at 10 o'clock, and the Pittsburgh Period, KDKA at 10:01 p. m.

From WCAE at 8 o'clock fans will hear a new feature, the Salon Singers and Salon Ensemble, which gives every promise of being something good.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

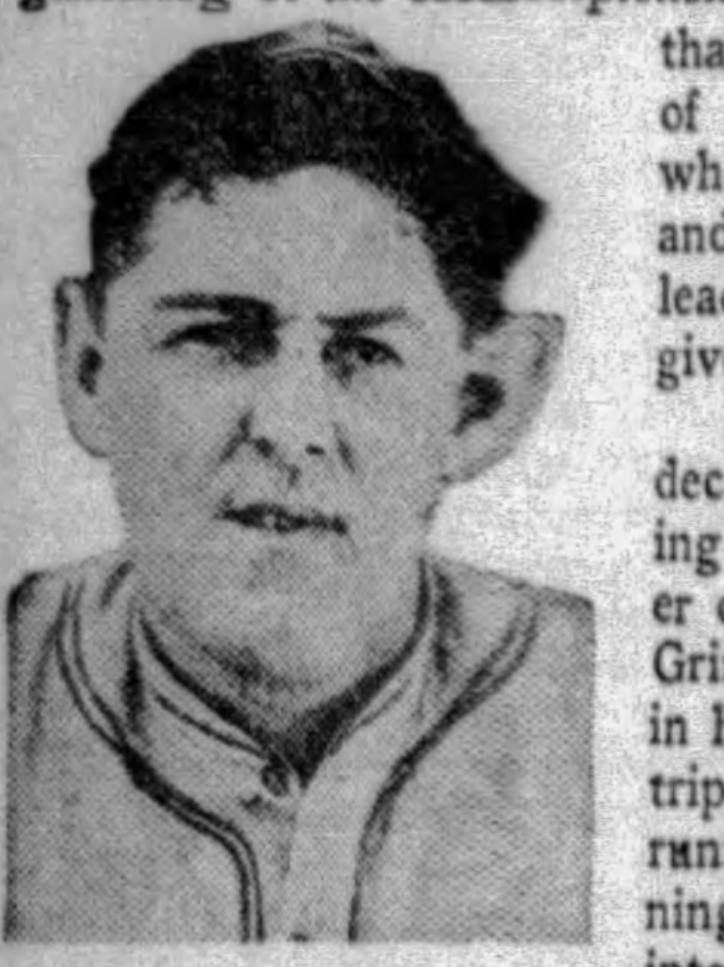
LLOYD WANER ONLY BUC IN STRIDE



Remy Kremer

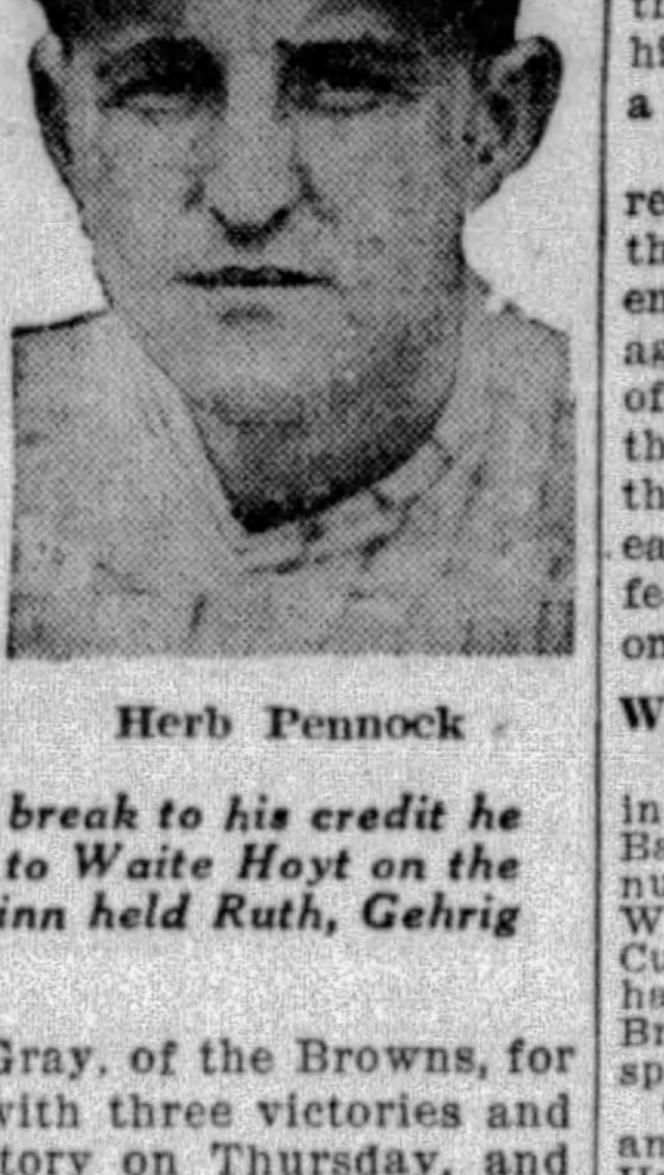
WHAT happened to Remy Kremer, Pirate pitching ace, between the closing stages of the training trip and the beginning of the championship season? That's more of a mystery than ever to local baseball fans in view of Kremer's latest blow-up yesterday, when he exploded in the third inning and permitted the Cubs to wipe out a lead of three runs that his mates had given him in the preceding round.

Kremer's spring form-reversals are decidedly puzzling. On the conditioning tour he surpassed every other pitcher on the staff, not excepting Burleigh Grimes. He was particularly brilliant in his last two slab appearances on the trip, permitting Detroit to get only two runners as far as second base in six innings, and then tying the Memphis club into knots. But since the pennant race began the big Frenchman has been far below par. On April 17 the Bruins knocked him out in four innings, in which they scored six earned runs on four hits. On April 22 he relieved Carmen Hill in the seventh inning against the Reds and was nicked for two more hits and one unearned run before he could retire two batters. Yesterday he started off in fine style by bowling over the first seven men to face him, but before he could retire another batter he was walloped for four hits and five earned tallies.

SUMMING up what Kremer has done in the three games in which he has taken part to date, as a starting or a relief hurler, it is seen that he has started twice and been knocked out both times, and that all told, in a total of only seven innings, he has allowed 10 hits, given five bases on balls and allowed 11 earned runs to be scored against him. That's about as far from major league pitching as any big-show hurler could drift, and the fact that Kremer has shown the same lack of edge every time out makes the case all the more serious.

Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Washington are only clubs in the big leagues that have not yet won two games in succession, and on two occasions the Pirates' failure to follow up one victory with another has been due chiefly to the Frenchman's ineffectiveness. Kremer should be given no more starting assignments until there is no longer any doubt that he is "right," which he certainly is not at present, whatever the cause.

FINAL judgment, of course, cannot be passed after only a single performance, and there is a chance that the pitcher may come through later, but Herb Pennock's first start yesterday in his attempted come-back as a Yankee pitcher was none too promising.



Herb Pennock

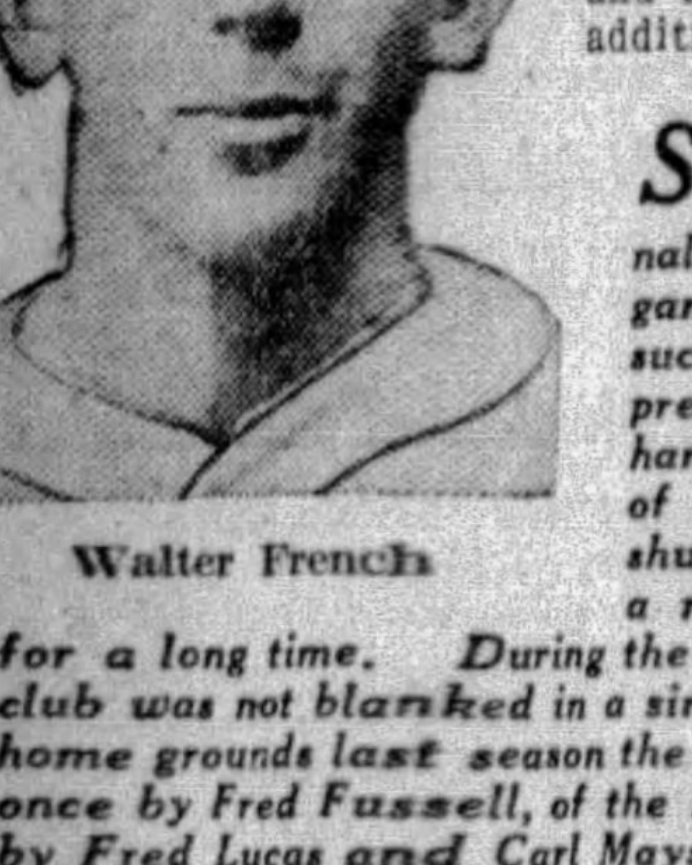
Huggins' star southpaw, who had not been seen on the mound since August 12, last year, was batted off the hill by the Mackmen in the sixth inning, and reports of the game indicate that he showed little of his old stuff or steadiness. He was knocked out only five times last year in 24 starts.

WHILE Pennock was showing that he had not yet recovered from the effects of his severe attack of neuritis, age and wear and tear of many seasons were being ignored by the man who was pitching against him. Old Jack Quinn, not far from the 50 mark, was the Athletic flinger to get the verdict over Pennock. It was Quinn's second start of the season—both made against the Yanks—and though he has only an even break to his credit he pitched remarkable ball each time. He lost to Waite Hoyt on the first occasion, 2 to 1. In two full games Quinn held Ruth, Gehrig & Co. to four runs and 11 hits.

A NEWCOMER in the majors has tied Sam Gray, of the Browns, for the leadership of the big-show pitchers, with three victories and no defeats. Gray won his third straight victory on Thursday, and yesterday Wes Ferrell, of Cleveland, also hung up his third consecutive win by defeating Detroit. Ferrell is a 21-year-old right hander from Terre Haute in the Three-I League.

Another new hurler to loom up in the victory column yesterday was Harry Seibold, of the Braves, who copped a decision over the Giants. Seibold is far from being a youngster, however. He is 33 years old, formerly was an infielder, and was tried by the Athletics 10 years ago. He went to the Braves from the Cubs in the Hornsby deal.

WHILE on the subject of new pitchers, Larry French's first appearance in a Pirate uniform before the home fans must not be overlooked. The left-hand recruit from Portland hurled the last two innings against the Cubs yesterday and came through in fine style.



Walter French

But for an error by Traynor, only seven men would have faced French in the two innings he worked. The long hit charged against him was an infield single by Guy Bush. French's best bets are a fast ball and a screw ball. He looks like a helpful addition to the Pirate staff.

SEVENTEEN hits against the Red pitchers yesterday gave the Cardinals a total of 33 blows in their last two games, making up, in a sense for the two successive shutouts they suffered in the preceding two games in Chicago at the hands of Guy Bush and Perce Malone, of the Cubs. Incidentally, those two shutouts on consecutive days interrupted a record the Redbirds had maintained for a long time. During the entire season of 1928, the St. Louis club was not blanked in a single game on the road. Even on the home grounds last season the Cards were blanked only three times, once by Fred Fussell, of the Bucs, and on the two other occasions by Fred Lucas and Carl Mays, of the Reds.

THE Pirates' club batting average took a further tumble yesterday and is now down to .207. That's 102 points below the team average of last year and will give an idea of the extent of the brace the hitters must take before they can be considered as being in their normal stride.

Lloyd Waner yesterday kept up his record of having batted safely in every game played to date. Lloyd has not failed to connect in any one of the seven contests. Paul Waner has missed in four out of

Local Boys Win Tiger Swim Letters

PRINCETON, N. J., April 27.—(AP.)—Sixty eight Princeton athletes yesterday were awarded insignia for their work on seven winter sports teams at a meeting of the undergraduate athletic association. For the first time indoor polo received official recognition, members of the team receiving a "P" over crossed mallets.

The association also ruled that to be recognized as a championship team the Princeton baseball nine must win the Yale series and the twelve games scheduled with Amherst, Cornell, Columbia, Dartmouth, Holy Cross, New York University, Pennsylvania and Williams. Among the varsity awards were: Swimming, Allen K. Shenk, '30, Pittsburgh and Charles C. Shenk, '30, Pittsburgh.

Rosenbloom Wins Over Belanger

CHICAGO STADIUM, April 27. —(AP.)—The claim of Maxie Rosenbloom, of New York, to the right to meet Tommy Loughran for the lightheavyweight title was not particularly improved by his 10-round victory over Charley Belanger, of Canada, here last night. Rosenbloom did not appear impressive except for a strong finish.

Dick (Honey Boy) Finnegan, southpaw Boston lightweight, gave Eddie Anderson, Chicago, a fancy beating in the best of the four 10-rounders. The other two engagements resulted in a slow draw between Tommy Freeman, Cleveland welter, and Andy Di Vodi, New York, and a decision win for Haakon Hanson, Chicago, over Vincent Forgione, Philadelphia, middleweight.

Camera Study of Coburn Jones, New Pirate Shortstop

LITTLE WELSHMAN BECOMES REGULAR IN LINEUP

Coburn Jones, of Denver, the new Pirate shortstop, who has supplanted Sparky Adams between second and third and as leadoff man in the batting order, appears above in various poses. He injects a lot of life and sparkle into the Corsair array and will keep the position if he can maintain a fair hitting pace.

GIANTS, TIGERS IN FRONT IN TEAM HITTING

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—Frank O'Doul, the Philadelphia swatsmith obtained last winter from the Giants, set the pace for National League batters of greater fame in the first 1929 averages, issued today and including the first eight days of the campaign through the games of Wednesday. O'Doul hit safely 13 times in six games for a mark of .542.

The pitching laurels, of course, remained in dispute, since many of the boxmen failed to find time to enter a defeat into the record against themselves. Carl Hubbell, of the Giants; Burleigh Grimes, of the Pirates, and Perce Malone, of the Cubs, headed the procession, each with two victories and no defeats. Eleven other pitchers won one game each without defeat.

WILSON LEADS IN RUNS

Hack Wilson, the Cub slugger, led in runs scored with eight, while Babe Herman collected the greatest number of hits—14. Herman and Wilson tied with Stephenson of the Cubs for the lead in doubles, each having four, but Nick Cullop of Brooklyn stood alone in triples despite his having only two.

O'Doul inserted three homers among his 13 hits to match Chick Hafey of St. Louis in long-distance clouts. Hafey led in runs batted in with a total of 10. Reese and Lindstrom of the Giants and Rabbit Maranville of the Braves shared base-stealing honors, each having three thefts.

The team batting table found the Giants on top with a margin of .329 to .310 over the more widely heralded Cubs. Cincinnati was third with .288 and Brooklyn, fourth with .079. The Cubs, however, led the league in batting in runs, 42 being their total.

GIANTS TOP FIELDERS

The Giants also led in team fielding with a mark of .988 against the .980 which left the Cubs and the Braves in a tie for second place.

Following O'Doul in the individual batting table were these regulars: Harper, Boston, .500; Herman, Brooklyn, .467; Frisch, St. Louis, .444; Cuyler, Chicago, .419; Allen, Cincinnati, Douthit, St. Louis, and Jackson and O'Farrell, New York, .400, and Stephenson, Chicago, .393.

Charley Jamieson, veteran fly ball hawk of the Cleveland Indians, hung up an average of .524 to lead the American League's batting parade during the first eight days.

Finding spring pitching to his fancy, Jamieson made 11 hits for 14 bases, scored four runs and batted in five, in his first 21 official trips to the plate. His mark was 24 points better than Blue of St. Louis, and Phillips of Detroit, who tied for second place with .500 averages.

VETERANS AT TOP

Contrary to general opinion, the veterans and not the flashy rookies did most of the heavy stick work in the first stage of the batting marathon, unofficial hitting averages which included games of last Wednesday revealed. Of the 10 leaders, only two were newcomers—Edward Phillips and Henry Schuble, both of Detroit. Most of the rookies were far down the list

Goslin Wrests Big Six Lead From Lou

Associated Press.

Goose Goslin turned loose his guns against Boston yesterday and regained his position at the top of the Big Six standing almost unopposed. The Goose pounded out three hits in four trips to the plate to pass Lou Gehrig, of the Yankees, who could not get one hit in four tries. Goslin now is the only Big Six member whose average is above the .400 mark.

Jim Bottomley also did a bit of clouting, getting two hits in three trips to the plate and going into fourth place. The standing:

GIZZY TAKES LACING FROM CRAWLEY

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

The fight fans who settled themselves comfortably inside the Moose Temple arena last night witnessed four of the "fightingest" fights of the season and went away talking to themselves and brushing imaginary punches from before their eyes.

They saw Tom Crawley, of the South Side, in his first appearance in a home ring in many months, administer a sound thrashing in every round to Battling Gizzy, of Donora, in the 10-round windup; Jackie Murray, of the Hill, do ditto to Joe Corelli, of Erie, in five rounds of the six-round semi-final, and then lose the last round and with it the unanimous decision of the judges and the referee; Charley Wolfe, of Rochester, Pa., cleverly outbox Harry Spencer, of Washington, Pa., in the second battle of six rounds, and Nat Litfin, of the Hill, spray punches over one Nick Malone, of Wellsville, O., so profusely in the first six-rounder that Nick appeared to think he was being ganged.

ACTION THROUGHOUT

There were few idle moments in any of the battles, and even the sour decision in the semi-final went well with the fans. The hot fighting seemingly made them forget the tab on rounds in this melee.

A few months ago, Gizzy handed out a severe trimming to U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, in the same ring. Last night, Crawley dished out to Gizzy twice the lacing the latter dealt to Carpentier. Gizzy didn't win a round against the greater experience, superior generalship, faster maneuvering, hard infighting and straighter punching of Crawley.

The only time Gizzy had a chance to win the fight was just as the bell clanged for the end of the first round. Crawley missed with a right swing and Gizzy countered, nailing the South Sider flush on the jaw and forcing him to hang on. Gizzy continued to fight after the bell and when they broke Crawley walked unsteadily to his corner. He recovered during the minute rest period, however, and resumed where he had left off in the opening round, forcing Gizzy about the ring and scoring at will.

Gizzy, with his limited experience, and his penchant for swinging his blows, was lost in the maze of straight punches that Tommy showered on him and in the latter rounds was guilty of considerable running and back-pedaling and holding. He was glad to hear the final bell. From the middle of the fight on, he was bothered by a badly cauliflowered left ear that Crawley hung on him. The pace was so hot all the way that the fans were in a fever of excitement until the finish.

Crawley weighed 132½ pounds and Gizzy 131½.

CORELLI GETS GIFT

In the semi-final, Corelli, a short, stocky Italian, shaped up as nothing more or less than a rugged catcher until the last round, when Murray, with the fight safely won, foolishly elected to slug it out with him and was hurt in the exchanges. Then Corelli took the offensive and carried the round, his only one of the fight, but it proved to be enough to gain him the nod of the judges and the referee.

Murray was caught off balance in the fifth and sixth rounds and sent to his knees for no count in each session as Corelli connected with his wild right swings to the head, but the blows did not hurt Jackie, who immediately sprang up.

Corelli weighed 144½ pounds and Murray 142.

WOLFE DEFEATS SPENCER

For close competition and damage done on both sides, the Wolfe-Spencer second bout was the best on the card. The elongated and elusive Wolfe made Spencer do a lot of missing as he rode punches and at the same time stalked Harry about the ring and nailed him cleanly with lefts and rights to the head, aided by his advantage in height and reach. However, Spencer was the more solid hitter and he carried the first round, broke even in the second, and then, after losing the next three, in which at times he appeared to be outclassed, he rallied in the last round, and, inducing Wolfe to mix with him at close range, had the latter in trouble before the final bell. Wolfe deserved the decision that went his way.

BERLINGER WINS PENN DECATHLON

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's strapping young all-around ace, Barney Berlinger, crowned the opening of the two-day Penn relay carnival yesterday with a smashing victory in the decathlon championship.

Brawney Barney, driving or hoisting his 200-odd pounds through the 10-event grind from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m., beat his foremost rival, Tom Churchill, of the University of Oklahoma, by approximately 135 points, and shattered the record for the carnival decathlon.

SETS RELAY RECORD

Berlinger's total of 7298.978 points eclipsed the former carnival decathlon mark of 7236.5575, made two years ago by Vernon Kennedy, Missouri star, but fell nearly 300 points short of the American record held by the Indian, Fait Elkins. Churchill, who furnished the main rivalry for Berlinger after the Pittsburgh Negro sensation, Everett Utterback, had won three of the first five events, wound up with a total of 7163.928 points. Utterback faded to fifth in the final standing in a field of nine starters.

Berlinger's performance overshadowed the opening day's program, which otherwise was featured by the establishment of a new American outdoor two-mile record of 9:15 2-5 by Paavo Nurmi, Finland's celebrated "old man of the cinders."

SIX RECORDS FALL

All told, six records were toppled, including four in the decathlon, Nurmi's mark and a new carnival record for the interscholastic distance medley relay by the crack school boy quartet from Lakewood, O. They were timed in 7:48 4-5 for the route of 1⅞ miles.

The final decathlon point totals: First, Berlinger, Pennsylvania, 7298.978; second, Churchill, University of Oklahoma, 7163.928; third, Todd, Indiana University, 6602.603; fourth, Cosh, Georgetown University, 6364.901; fifth, Utterback, Univresity of Pittsburgh, 6302.211; sixth, Wilczewski, Boston College, 6200.719; seventh, Gunby, Dickinson College, 6020.173; eighth, Holsinger, Juniata College, 6384.61; ninth, Swamer, Gettysburg College, 4446.939.

Most of the big college relay championships are on the card today. New York University's fleet runners, led by the spectacular Negro, Phil Edwards, yesterday won the middle states one-mile race and sprint medley. Ohio State's sprinters got off to a good start with the quarter-mile relay in their bag. George Simpson, Buckeye ace, is favored to defend his honors in the 100-yard dash special this afternoon.

West Pointer Sets Discus Record

DES MOINES, Ia., April 27.—(AP.)—A strapping 200-pounder, Carl Jark, wearing the colors of the United States Military Academy, came back to the corn belt yesterday and set a new world's discus record of 158 feet, 3 inches in the preliminary of the Drake relay carnival.

Jark, whose home is Beatrice, Neb., beat the former world's record established by Clarence (Bud) Houser, of the University of Southern California, in 1926, by one inch and a quarter. The blonde Cadet, who is six feet, four and one-half inches tall, made his record toss on his very first attempt. His best previous effort was 142 feet, 8 inches, made a year ago.

CHICAGO BOSS PLEASED WITH SCHULTE

Catcher Johnny Schulte, who joined the Cubs yesterday and went under the bat against the Pirates, made a deep impression on Manager McCarthy, especially at the plate. Any unsteadiness that Schulte might have displayed in his catching was due to the fact that Johnny came to the Cubs yesterday direct from his St. Louis home without having taken part in any spring training work.

Schulte last year caught for the Phillies. At the close of the season he was transferred to Cincinnati, which club controls the Columbus team of the America Association. Now, it seems that the Reds, thinking they were in a fair way as far as catchers were concerned, and wishing to make Columbus appear strong, sent Schulte to the Ohio capital. That is they thought they sent him, but when Johnny gazed upon the figures in his contract he decided to stay at home.

NEEDED CATCHERS

It's an ill wind that blows no good, in baseball as in any other phase of life. Lo and behold, the Cubs, reputed to have the best catchers in baseball, suddenly found themselves in dire straits owing to the injuries that befell Hartnett and Gonzales. Marse Joe realized the predicament of his team so he negotiated with Columbus with the idea of getting Schulte. Of course he had to deal through Cincinnati, but he must have had quick success for he quickly got in personal touch with Schulte and soon Johnny was on his way to join the Bears. A little limbering up around his home constituted all the work that Schulte experienced before he went to his task yesterday. His hitting started the five-run rally put over by the Cubs in the third.

Mike Cvengros, is up to his old tricks in the relief role. Many a contest did the Austrian lad save for the Pirates of 1927, his emergency performances having distinctive bearing on the pennant won by the Buccos that season. In one afternoon in Philadelphia, Cvengros twice held the Quakers in check when defeat stared the Pirates in the face in the ninth inning.

ENGLISH BOOTS THREE

Woodie English, owner of three errors in yesterday's contest, is the sort of a boy who will turn in a lot of "boots" but Woodie is in there making smart and fast plays nearly ever afternoon. He is just a boy and apparently he is improving all the time. To show that he can keep his head up in adversity, English nicked the Pirate pitchers for three hits.

And that is a reminder of the one amateur boxing smoker to be held by the

STEVE BUCCOS' HOPE IN ODD CONTEST

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Their reputed aces falling down dismally, the Pirates today found comfort in th thought that the most promising of the younger crop of sharpshooters would be on the slab this afternoon in the finale with the Cubs. Acting Manager Ens announced this morning that Steve Swetonic, North Side youth who received credit for winning the home opener Wednesday, would grace Fogarty Knoll today.

Ens had figured on using Lee Meadows on the mound, but he eventually was swayed to Swentoic, who seems to be close to top form; moreover the Native Son seems to radiate confidence when he goes to work, so much so that the remainder of the cast has a tendency to work smoothly. This is a lot to say of a kid pitcher, but in the case of Steve, it goes.

HAS FINE POISE

Swetonic was not in Paso Robles more than a week before the older observers were commenting on his poise. Of course he has to have skill to match his poise, but there are hundreds of boys who display fine stuff when they cut loose but who, when pressed, lose their equilibrium. Not so with Swentoic. The Indianapolis graduate makes a study of all conditions and he goes to work accordingly. Steve prob-

LOCAL COLLEGE SPORT TEAMS ABROAD

By JESS CARVER

The "talkie" appearance in Pittsburgh of Hugo Bezdek, Penn State's football coach and athletic director, constitutes the most important collegiate happening of the day. Bez is to speak at a dinner of the Pittsburgh Alumni Chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity, of which he is a member. The affair will be held at the Fort Pitt Hotel this evening.

There is only one affair scheduled in the way of competition here in town. The track and field stars of Pitt, Tech and Duquesne are all in action elsewhere, the Panthers and Dukes at the Penn relays in Philadelphia, and Carnegie's heroes in Grove City, meeting the Crimson in a dual meet.

The lone bit of competition in the city for today finds the Pitt and Wash-Jeff tennis teams in action on the Panther courts. This match was originally scheduled for yesterday, but the heavy condition of the rectangles made it impossible to run the match off.

TECH NETTERS AWAY

Carnegie Tech's tennis team clashes with Bethany at Bethany, W. Va., and the Duquesne net varsity, following its close 4-to-3 win over the Bisons here yesterday, meets Thiel at Greenville in a second conference match.

Four baseball games of more or less interest are booked. St. Vincent's meets Slippery Rock State Teachers at Slippery Rock; Davis-Elkins engages the Clarksburg Middle Atlantic League club at Clarksburg; West Virginia and Marshall, rained out yesterday, will try it again in Morgantown today; Penn State and Lebanon Valley, Bill Evans' school, play at State, and Jakie Bohren's Bellefonte Academy nine is host to Juniata College at Bellefonte.

Wash-Jeff will take a look at its track and field team as the Presidents meet Bethany in a dual meet at Washington, Pa. This meet will be the first of the season for both teams.

GENEVA MEET TODAY

Down in Beaver Falls, the first annual Geneva College interscholastic track and field championships will be run off, with close to 500 schoolboy athletes competing. Events have been scheduled for both Class A and Class B schools, with special relay races featured.

Tech's plebe track team won a very closely contested dual meet from Turtle Creek Union High yesterday. A first place in the javelin throw by McCurdy brought Tech the victory.

DORFMAN LOSES TO CANZONERI

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—Tony Canzoneri, bull-chested Italian boy, who once held the featherweight championship, soundly trounced Sammy Dorfman, New York rival, in an interesting 10-round feature match last night n Madison Square Garden.

Canzoneri toyed with the clever Ghetto boy, winning every round and the decision with debonair ease. Tony dropped Dorfman for a count of nine with a right to the chin, the first punch of the opening round. He knocked Sammy down again with a left hook to the head just before the round ended. There were no other knockdowns, although Dorfman at one time or another was rubber-legged in every round thereafter.

The bout was fast although one-sided and kept a crowd of 8,800 highly interested. The match reopened the Garden to boxing after the annual six-week invasion of a circus. Canzoneri weighed 130, Dorfman 129¼.

What is the proper way in which to play a ball out of water?

One's stroke in a water shot must depend on conditions. As a basis, however, consider a ball lying in an inch of water. Using my niblick I would hit about three inches back of the ball with the usual stroke, so that the water would not deflect it.

In deeper water, hit closer to the ball, shortening the distance according to the depth. Also hit down at a more acute angle and pick up the club head straight. In deep water, that is, five or six inches, brute strength counts and you must hit almost straight down, picking the club up in similar fashion.

and only Mike Donlin when Michael broke into a big league box score. He was an infielder, but he chalked up something like five errors in his first engagement. To match these misplays he made five hits. His fielding continued to be loose, but his bat threw spark all the while. Eventually his manager became disgusted with his defense play "What can you do, anyhow?" he demanded of Donlin.

"I can hit," retorted Mike and his manager, as Ring Lardner would say, had no comeback.

Don't be surprised to see Jim Stroner included in the next move made in the Pirate infield. Cicero Jim has taken on the glow of health and he frolics about with much zip these days. The fact that Jim is fiddling around second may or may not have some significance. There's one thing fairly sure—he can drive the ball better than most of the Pirates.

Mon. Valley Loop To Lift Lid Today

DES MOINES, April 27.—(AP.)—Gus Sonnenberg retained his world heavyweight wrestling championship last night by throwing Charles Hanson, of Omaha, in 27 minutes, 6½ seconds with his famous flying tackle.

MACKS, BRAVES WIN, LEAD LEAGUES

By LES CONKLIN,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The Philadelphia Athletics, who kidded themselves out of the American League pennant last year when they dropped 16 out of 22 starts to the Yankees, had shed their inferiority complex as they faced the New Yorkers in Philly today. By trimming the world champions yesterday, 5 to 2, the Mackmen made it two wins in three starts against the Hugmen this year and now hold undisputed possession of first place.

Herb Pennock, making his first start for the Yanks since neuritis crippled his pitching arm last August, was knocked out in the sixth after being nicked for 10 hits. Unless the New York southpaw ace shows more stuff than he did yesterday, American League fans are going to see a real race instead of a runaway one.

QUINN TAMES YANKS

The Yanks got only six hits off Jack Quinn, who was canned nearly 15 years ago by the New York club because he was alleged to be too old. Quinn would have scored a more decisive victory had not the Yanks pulled the first triple play of the season in the sixth inning. With the bases full, Hale's grounder was converted into a double play and Cochrane was picked off third base for the third out.

The St. Louis Browns kept pace with the Athletics by knocking Red Faber out of the box and beating the White Sox, 7 to 3.

Those amazing Boston Braves regained first place in the National League by trimming the Giants, 4 to 2. Socks Siebold, with Reading last year and a minor leaguer a dozen years before that, outpitched the veteran Carl Mays. George Harper, former Giant, won the game by smacking a homer with two on bases.

ROBINS QUIT CELLAR

Aided by Hornsby's triple with the bases full, the Cubs outscored the Pirates, 9 to 6. Chicago is still tied for second place with the Cardinals, who celebrated the raising of last year's pennant by trouncing Cincinnati, 9 to 2. Jess Haines, the leather-faced right-hander, held the Reds to four hits.

Ad Liska, of Washington, the submarine twirler from Minneapolis, held the Red Sox to six hits, but lost a 2-to-1 decision when Rothrock doubled in the eighth.

The Brooklyn Robins staggered to the wire ahead of the Phillies, 7 to 6, for their third straight victory, and climbed out of the National League cellar. The slow-footed Robins surprised by pulling a triple steal.

Cleveland collected 20 hits, including four by Joe Sewell and four by Jamieson, in taking an 11-to-5 slugfest from Detroit.

CRAWLEY WINS OVER GIZZY

He scaled 156 pounds and Spencer 158½. The referee's vote, which did not count, went to Spencer.

Litfin threw too many gloves for Malone in the opener and the latter, purely a slugger, never had a chance. Litfin weighed 120¾ pounds and Malone 121½.

Joe Keally refereed all of the bouts. The judges were Frank Ferris and Jim McLaughlin, and Ray Eberle, of Aliquippa, all togged out in spring regalia, was the announcer.

FISTIC CHATTER

Jack (Buck) McTiernan, of Swissvale, will make his local debut as a main-bouter against Johnny Pial, of Oil City, at the Moose Temple next Friday night.

Jack Sharkey is under contract to the Madison Square Garden Corporation to meet the winner of the Max Schmeling-Paulino Uzcudun bout, slated for the Yankee Stadium, New York, June 27, at the same place in September. The bout will be labeled a championship affair. If he wins, Sharkey plans to defend his "title" at Miami, Fla., next February, and in Chicago in September of next year.

Johnny Dunn's bout with Archie Bell at Wilkes-Barre will be staged May 15, instead of next Monday night. He is in Wilkes-Barre training for the event.

Tommy Crawley's next start will be against Basil Galiano, the New Orleans veteran, at El Paso, Tex., next Thursday night.

Frank Wiener, chairman of the State Athletic Commission is in town today to attend the Amen Corner banquet at the William Penn Hotel tonight.

Reed Brown is booking the bouts for an amateur boxing show to be held by the Beltzhoover Baseball Club in the Beltzhoover Liederkrantz Hall, May 9.

T. N. T. Gibbons, of Donora, and Don Garcia, coast middleweight, will box the eight-round main event of a show at Wellsville, O., Monday night. Freddie Edwards and Joe Todd are in the semi-final.

Jack Zivic is requested to call this office today.

Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City heavyweight, and Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, have been signed to box in Cleveland May 7.

Phillip Granville, of Hamilton, Ont., was seventh and Guy Shields, of Picher, Okla., and Harry Abramowitz, of New York, tied for eighth.

DUKE NETTERS WIN OPENER

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

Grant Siverd's doughty Duke varsity host blasted the lid from the Steel City inter-collegiate racquet campaign on the Bluff rectangles yesterday and in so doing displayed dogged grit to emerge from behind and nose out a clever Bethany aggregation by the slender margin of 4 to 3. Pete Collodi and Andy Smeaton, veteran Hill mainstays, garnered major glory of the occasion by triumphing in both singles and doubles.

Immediately prior to yesterday's contest, Collodi and Keller, each in his last season of varsity racqueting, were elected co-captains of the Duquesne combine. The summary:

Singles—A. Smeaton, Duquesne, defeated Mutchler, Bethany, 6-0, 6-2; Dallas, Bethany, defeated Keller, Duquesne, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4; Collodi, Duquesne, defeated W. Erskine, Bethany, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4; Nelson, Bethany, defeated Boland, Duquesne, 6-3, 6-0; H. Erskine, Bethany, defeated W. Smeaton, Duquesne, 6-4, 6-3.

Doubles—Smeaton and Smeaton, Duquesne, defeated Mutchler and Nelson, Bethany, 6-3, 6-2; Keller and Collodi, Duquesne, defeated Dallas and W. Erskine, Bethany, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2.

COLUMBIA CREW MEETS NAVY

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—Columbia's big varsity crew rested on its oars today, fit and ready for its opening race of the season against the Navy on the Harlem where the charges of 'Young Dick" Glendon will meet his father's proteges.

Reports arriving ahead of the Middle oarsmen last night indicated that the Navy would be represented by a far more formidable boatload than that which lost to Massachusetts Tech in its first start last Saturday.

Containing only two members of that beaten eight and featuring six of last season's crack plebe crew, the Navy entry stacks up on almost even terms with Columbia in such important details as average weight and height.

Cubs to Beat Other Clubs by 72 Miles

CHICAGO, April 27.—(AP.)—Sam Potts Hall, who deals in statistics, made a discovery that has caused even Manager Joe McCarthy to ponder.

Hall figures that because a right-handed hitter in baseball takes one more step than a southpaw in going to first base, the Cubs, who are almost all right-handers, will run 72 miles farther than any other National League team this season.

seven events. Traynor and Bartell have failed in only one. Lloyd Waner continues to be the club's lone .300 hitter.

BROOKLYN has won three games in a row after losing five straight, but the Phils, as is their custom this spring against every opponent, kept them hustling right up to the finish.

Manager Shotton continues to talk seriously about getting the Phils out of the cellar this year. "Look at that line-up," Burt says. "Only one thing wrong with it. Give me a few pitchers—give me just two good pitchers and watch us move up."

Hugo Quist

RECOLLECTIONS of the feats of the Nurmis, the Ritolas, the Kolehmainens, the Purjes, the Rotkos, the Sipilas and others are enough to make one marvel at the number of distance runners Finland has produced, yet the men who are known to American running fans form only a slight percentage of Finland's output, according to Hugo Quist, manager of Paavo Nurmi, who set a new American two-mile record yesterday and seeks a three-mile mark today. Quist says that distance runners in his country are so numerous that a man must be a record-breaker to gain recognition, or to be heard of by the outside world. Nurmi's pilot declares that marathon competition is so popular in Finland that it is often unnecessary to offer prizes in order to stage a race. He tells of cases where entire towns turned out to cheer their representatives, and where there would be greater interest in the last two men than in the winner.

BILLY BARTON RUNS FIFTH

SANDOWN PARK, England, April 27.—(AP.)—Monduco won the Grand International here today, finishing first in a field of eight. Savernake was second and Rhyticere was third.

Billy Barton, famous American steeplechaser, owned by Howard Bruce, of Baltimore, finished fifth.

Monduco, the winner, is owned by A. Bandon and is by Isard II out of Mary Adaene.

The betting was 11 to 10 on Monduco, 5 to 1 on Savernake and 15 to 2 on Rhyticere.

Monduco won by eight langths while 10 lengths separated second and third.

Jamieson, Cleveland, .524; Blue, St. Louis, and Phillips, Detroit, .500; Gehrig, New York, .437; Foxx, Philadelphia, .421; Fonseca, Cleveland, .419; Clancy, Chicago, .417; Goslin, Washington, .400; Schuble, Detroit, .400; Tate, Washington, .400.

Dale Alexander, another Detroit rookie, was eleventh in batting with .380, but first in runs batted in with 14.

Uhle of Detroit, and Ferrell of Cleveland, Hoyt of New York and Gray of St. Louis made good starts in the race for pitching honors with two victories each.

Detroit took the lead in team batting with a .327 average, while in fielding, Washington gained an early edge with a .988 average. Cleveland executed 13 double plays in its first seven games to lead in that department.

GERKEN LEADS IN A. A.

George Gerken, who was sent to Kansas City by the Cleveland Indians, led American Association batters in the first batch of averages released in 1929.

Gerken, an outfielder, was at bat 33 times and smashed out one homer, two triples, two doubles and 11 singles for an average of .485, unofficial averages including Wednesday's games reveal. His teammate, Grigsby, and Nicolai, of Columbus were tied for second place with .429 averages.

Other leaders were: Shannon, Louisville, .423; Chapman, St. Paul, .417; Monahan, Indianapolis, .390; Emmer, Minneapolis, .387; Freigau, Toledo, .381; Neis, Columbus, .375 and Shidley, Minneapolis, .364.

Fifteen pitchers got off to perfect starts in the race for hurling honors, but Wingard, of Toledo, and Murray of Kansas City held a lead with two victories each.

Minneapolis, one of the favorites in the pennant race, led the field in both team batting and team fielding. The Millers had a hitting average of .295, and fielded with but five errors in eight games, for a .985 average. Kansas City was second in both departments, batting .291 and fielding for a .981 average.

Other leaders: double plays, Indianapolis, 11; stolen bases, Minneapolis, 12; home runs, Columbus, 7; runs batted in, Shirley, 13, and individual stolen bases, Bohne, Minneapolis, and Simon, Louisville, 3.

Kiski Nine Face Collegians Today

SALTSBURG, Pa., April 27.—Kiski will open its baseball season today, meeting the Pittsburgh Collegians here. The game will see many of the men who starred on the football field for Kiski last fall holding down the regular berths on the baseball team with Werner catching, Ott at first; Montgomery at shortstop; Fife at third; and Port and Gallus in the outfield.

MacKinnon, leader of the Kiski swimmers, will probably pitch, Trenchard at second and Gosnell in the outfield, will make up the nine.

SWETONIC BUC HOPE TODAY

ably will be received by Charlie Hargreaves.

Joe McCarty, the Chicago pilot, has announced in favor of Perce Pat Malone as the day's pitcher. Altoona Pat almost blanked the Buccos about one week ago in Chicago. The Pirates, therefore, have their work cut out for them if they are to take the "rubber" game of what started out to be a four-game series.

BUCS UNIMPRESSIVE

The Freebooters yesterday were unimpressive as they swallowed a 9-to-6 setback. It might seem a bit hard on many members of the club to state they were unimpressive, for some of the Pittsburghers rose to brilliant heights in a desire to win. Frenchy Kremer collapsed in a terrible manner and Ervin Brame, who succeeded him, didn't get along so well. Jess Petty and Larry French also had a turn on the mound, the latter showing for the first time before a home audience. French held the Cubs runless in two rounds.

Kremer started beautifully by fanning Woodie English on three pitches and he retired seven men in a row before an enemy reached base. But when the Bears did start to find the route to first open they put on a big stampede, the thing reaching a painful climax to Pittsburgh supporters when Hornsby tripled to the flagpole in deep center with three of his mates on the paths. The inning produced five runs.

The big offensive launched by the Cubs in the third overcame a niec advantage the Buccos gained in the second. Doubles by Capt. Traynor and George Grantham in this inning started the Pirates on their way to three tallies that made 8,000 onlookers feel just about right. They had a different mood before the third was "in."

GRATHAM HITS HOMER

Grantham, by the way, was the big punch man of the contest, his three-run homer in the eighth being an unusually long swat. Boots clipped Guy Bush for a smash high into the rightfield seats, the ball going into the lower tier at a point where the section reaches great depth.

Grantham's homer gave the Bears a big scare and the Cubs were panicky in the ninth when Bush was chased from the mound. Claude Linton batted for French and walked. Sparky Adams ran for the big fellow as Mike Cvengros came in to pitch. A passed ball let Adams advance and Comorosky, batting for Jones, walked. At this point the Cubs benefitted through a "break." Lloyd Waner's liner was straight at Hornsby, who turned in a double play, and the game was over when Beck threw out P. Waner.

Signs that Schenley and Langley will pit their baseball teams against each other in the championship playoff series in the City League again this spring are very much in evidence today. Yesterday the two sectional leaders, Schenley in Section I and Langley in Section II, came through with additional triumphs to support these signs.

Schenley downed Peabody in division one by a 9 to 2 score, Studnicki limiting the East Enders to five scattered hits, while his mates pounded out nine for as many runs. Joe Mihm featured with a three-base clout.

Langley walloped South Hills, 11 to 4, retaining the lead in the second section. The Tunnelites were held to four safe hits. Langley garnered 11.

Westinghouse set a season record for run scoring by walloping downtrodden Fifth Avenue, 30 to 6, in a second Section I game. The Silver Lakers scored nine runs in the first inning.

The Allegheny-Perry game in Section II was postponed until next week, owing to the poor condition of the Perry diamond.

Vocational topped Ralston in the third Section I contest of the day, 10 to 4. In Section II, Carrick scored a close 4-to-3 win over Oliver.

The Fifth Avenue Juniors downed Herron Hill, 13 to 2, in a junior section contest. North Braddock defeated Rankin, 6 to 0; Holy Name Cards won over Holy Name Cubs, 18 to 17 and the Duke Preps defeated Shady Side, 9 to 6, in independent school games.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Marriage Trust

THE four cornerstones of marriage are mutual trust, understanding, tenderness and self-sacrifice.

There are no "bargain days" for would-be profiteers in domestic happiness. Marriage is a large order, the price of love is a standard price, and there's no cheating Fate, the bill collector.

* * *

Marriage is a jealous deity, who says, "Thou shalt have no other idols before ME!" Yet most of us enter the temple of matrimony, unconsciously carrying our "other idols" with us—our vanity, our ambition, our self-love.

We SAY that we marry "for better or for worse"—but, alas, most of us marry just "for instance."

* * *

For a passing fancy, for an escape from the loneliness of bachelorhood or spinsterhood or widowhood—for a change from a job, for a home, for a romantic adventure—for almost anything, except the things to which we promise allegiance at the altar.

And most husbands and wives are unfaithful—not to each other—but to the great MARRIAGE-TRUST! To Marriage, itself!

A wife is unfaithful to marriage when she puts her own whims and caprices before her husband's love.

When she sacrifices her husband's strength and peace of mind on the altar of her social ambitions; when she backs a tired, overworked man into evening clothes and drags him around to dinner parties and trotteries, for her own glorification.

When she makes a fetich of her vanity, and dedicates her soul to the worship of clothes.

When she loves her own ease and her own good times better than she loves her husband's comfort and his digestion.

When she gives her life to an art or to success, and to the making of books, or pictures, or money, rather than to the making of happiness.

And a husband is unfaithful to marriage when he makes a god of BUSINESS!

When he loves making money better than making love.

When he loves his golf better than he loves his wife's company.

When he loves his club better than he loves his home.

When he loves his amusements, his grouches, his digestion and his personal indulgences better than his wife's happiness.

It is all very chic and smart to chatter about "personal liberty" and the "preservation of the individuality" in marriage.

* * *

But these are the rewards of single blessedness.

When you MARRY you lay down your freedom, take off the armour of your individuality and hand over your personal liberty.

And your reward is LOVE—and love, alone.

But "love is enough!"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Diet Varied Daily Is Essential to Health

IT IS unfortunate that many persons fill their stomachs, satisfy their hunger and grow fat perhaps, but still are neglecting to get all the food they really need. Far too often we act as if quantity were the only factor to be considered.

DR.COPELAND

Let us think about this for a moment. What would you think of the owner of an automobile who never bought oil for his car, but stopped at the filling station twice a day to get gasoline? You know the machine would rebel very quickly.

Perhaps you remonstrate with him and, to "even things up," he quits buying gasoline, but fills the oil tank two or three times a day. Of course, the car won't run long.

The fact is that there must be a proper proportion of oil and gasoline. Both are essential to the continued operation of the car. It is necessary, too, to add water to the batteries. There must be some of this, that and the other and enough of each of the essentials.

If it is true of a mechanical device that it must have just the right quantity of several "foods," it is plain that the human machine must have an unfailing supply of every single food that each individual cell and fiber and organ requires. Without such a supply there will be trouble. Sooner or later there will be uncomfortable symptoms.

Perhaps I can illustrate what I have in mind by speaking about goiter. You know what that is—"thick neck," it is sometimes called.

In the neck, on each side of the "Adam's apple," are the parts of what is called the "thyroid gland." When this gets out of order, there may be enlargement of the organ and disturbance in the normal generation of its juices. Since this secretion has an important part to play in mental and physical activity, unless this organ operates normally, the afflicted individual is in danger.

It has been found that the absence of iodine may produce goiter. If we do not take the foods which carry iodine and get that element in sufficient quantity, the trouble develops.

It is interesting that in countries or localities remote from the sea, goiter is much more likely to occur. This fact drew attention to the use of fish as a possible means of escaping the disease. A chemical analysis of several varieties of fish revealed that iodine is found in sea fish and not in fish from fresh water.

Then tests were made to find out if canning or preserving the fish altered the iodine content. This was important, because it is not easy, even with modern methods of refrigeration, to get salt water fish to these sections where goiter is prevalent.

It was found, fortunately, that the preservative processes do not destroy the iodine. Among the sources of iodine supply, therefore, we have in the eating of sea fish, one way to help overcome the dangers of goiter.

THE GUIDING STAR

Drawn By Dorothy Flack

LOVE—the guiding star of the ages! The one star whose brightness is like a beacon, ever guiding those who follow its beams to a safe heaven. For what could be safer and sweeter than the haven of Love? And for those two who are starting on the path of life together, with Love ever before them, how will it be possible for them ever to know anything but supreme happiness?

Sometimes the star goes behind the clouds of strife and misery, but if the thought is ever before you that somewhere, even though hidden, is the star of Love, you will never give way to the fears and doubts that might otherwise ruin your whole existence.

Watch carefully this star and follow it wherever it may lead, for Love never leads astray; nor will it ever guide you to anything except the greatest and finest thing in life. Not riches, perhaps, nor the material things that so many mistakes for Love. But the true, fine things which make life worth living will be yours.

Riches beyond the wildest dreams of avarice will be at your command—the adoring love of your beloved and the trusting clasp of tiny rose-leaf fingers. And what can compare to these?

So follow the star of Love and you'll find all these and more, for you'll have Peace and Happiness and Contentment—and a Love that will ever guide, ever brighten your life.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

The Princess Tells Madge That She Fears Owen.

THE voice of Princess Olina as she put her excited question concerning Charles Owen, was almost shrill, utterly unlike her usual beautifully modulated tones. I put my hand upon her arm and drew her across the hall into the library and closed the door.

"You don't want anyone else to know about this, do you?" I asked, and at the question she stiffened her body and lifted her head resolutely.

"No, indeed," she said. "Thank you for warning me. I'm perfectly all right now."

"Then I'll answer your question as best I can," I said. "I am reasonably sure that this man's name is really Charles Owen. He is the half-brother to Samuel Brixton, a business associate of Mrs. Underwood's first husband. Mrs. Brixton was Mrs. Underwood's best friend years ago, and all the members of the family are visiting here for a day or two. I do not like or trust either Mr. Brixton or Mr. Owen, but Mrs. Brixton is beyond reproach, and as both her children call Mr. Owen 'Uncle Charlie' and appear to have known him as an uncle since their infancy—why!—"

"Yes, you're right," she said. "But he didn't call himself Owen when I last saw him. To think that he, of all men, should turn up here!"

There was a distinct fear in her voice, but she waited through seconds that seemed hours before she gave me any reason for those fears. And when she did finally explain, she gave no clue to the man Charles Owen had claimed to be, or to the conditions surrounding her acquaintance with him. But that he knew the Court of Transvania I guessed when she said tensely:

"I'm so afraid he'll tell Mamma where I am. There's a reward out for me, you know."

I nodded a startled assent, realizing fully now why she was so fearful. Having successfully staged her disappearance from the royal suite in a New York hotel on the eve of her family's return to Transvania, and eluded pursuit ever since, her only chance of escaping marriage with the ugly old King of Trees, whom her mother had selected as her husband, lay in keeping hidden until her mother should relent. Queen Olga knew that she was safe and well, for Olina had sent that relieving word to her almost immediately. But the girl never had received the message in the newspaper personal columns for which she had asked, the message pledging the royal word that she should not be compelled to marry the King of Trees.

True, Queen Olga had sent messages, each one more frantic than the one before, entreating her daughter to reveal her whereabouts. Studying them, I had been sure that it would not be long before the arrogant woman who was the real ruler of Transvania would capitulate. But if she should find out Olina's hiding place before giving in, it would entail much hardship on the girl.

She faced me tragically, her body tense, her face working pitifully, all her regal composure gone. She was only a frightened despairing girl.

"I'll never go back and marry that old man. I'll kill myself first."

It was no idle, hysterical boast. Knowing the girl, I was sure of that and with the need for drastic action upon me, I looked at her sternly.

"I did not think you were a coward," I said slowly. "I should like to think out some plan for aiding you, but it would be rather useless, I think, if possible failure would mean I should have your death upon my conscience."

I was glad to see outraged pride and anger flash in her eyes.

"You—are—presumptuous," she gasped, then she broke—holding out her hands to me entreatingly.

"Please, forgive me," she begged. "I did not mean to say that. And you are right. I am a coward; I give you my word I will not say or think that again. And—after all, my mother expects no more of me than almost all women of royal blood have to endure. If Fate wills it, I shall have to meet it. But it is hard—hard."

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Garbing "America"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me the correct dress or your own idea of how "America" and her attendants should dress for an All Nations Carnival? Would "America" herself dress after the Goddess of Liberty? This affair is to be given by a fraternal organization.

READER.

IN the All Nations Carnival that was held in New York some time ago, America was dressed to represent the Statue of Liberty, and this I suggest you plan to do.

Semi-Engraved Cards

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

What is meant by "semi-engraved cards?" You spoke of this in your column the other day, and I am not sure that I understand what it is—indeed, I am sure that I don't. But I'd like to, so will you please tell me? For what uses are they?

CONSTANT READER.

SEMI-ENGRAVED cards are invitation cards that have a few engraved words on them—the skeleton of the invitation, so to speak—and the rest of the invitation is filled in in ink. The card is usually the size of the invitation to a wedding reception, of heavy stock, white or very light cream, and often has the margin-indentation. These are the words that are engraved:

company
at
at o'clock

The hostess' name (or the names of the host and hostess) is written on the first line, and the guest's name on the line with company—(Miss Stoughtenburg's company). After the first "at" is written the type of entertainment (tea or bridge or dinner). After the "on" is written the day, the month and the date (Monday, July the tenth). The last "at" means the hour (at five o'clock). The address is generally written in the right corner. If you wish to remind your guests that an answer will be appreciated, you may write "R. S. V. P." or "An answer is requested" in the lower left corner. But, of course, the expression "requests the pleasure of your company" should, strictly speaking, carry with it the idea that an answer is expected.

This kind of invitation is of the formal variety—the "third person" type of invitation—and the person invited should answer formally, in the third person.

Horoscopes

Sunday, April 28

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows advantage and progressive conditions for things mystical or pertaining to the Sabbath, and at the same time accepts social or romantic activities. But in other directions there may be need for fortitude and wise application, as there are signs of setbacks and delays. Be careful with funds.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of rather conflicting conditions. Some new ventures may thrive and personal affairs may give satisfaction, but also there may be some stubborn obstacles and disappointments.

A child born on this day may be endowed with many excellent traits, making for its popularity, but it may be obliged to cultivate much fortitude and industry in order to win.

Monday, April 29

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a conflicting one. While there is promise of a sudden and important opportunity, with possible change of employment and residence, all is not plain sailing and there will be much need of prudence and good judgment in embracing such advantages. Sign all papers cautiously and beware subtlety and betrayal.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of opportunity and important change of travel, but these must be embraced with precaution as to duplicity and subtlety. Sign writings cautiously. Employment is under an excellent rulership for promotion or preferment.

A child born on this day may have many splendid qualifications and talents for success, but may be temperamental or eccentric or may lack stability.

EMSWORTH CLEARS WAY FOR BOULEVARD

COUNTY TO ASK FOR BIDS BY MAY 15

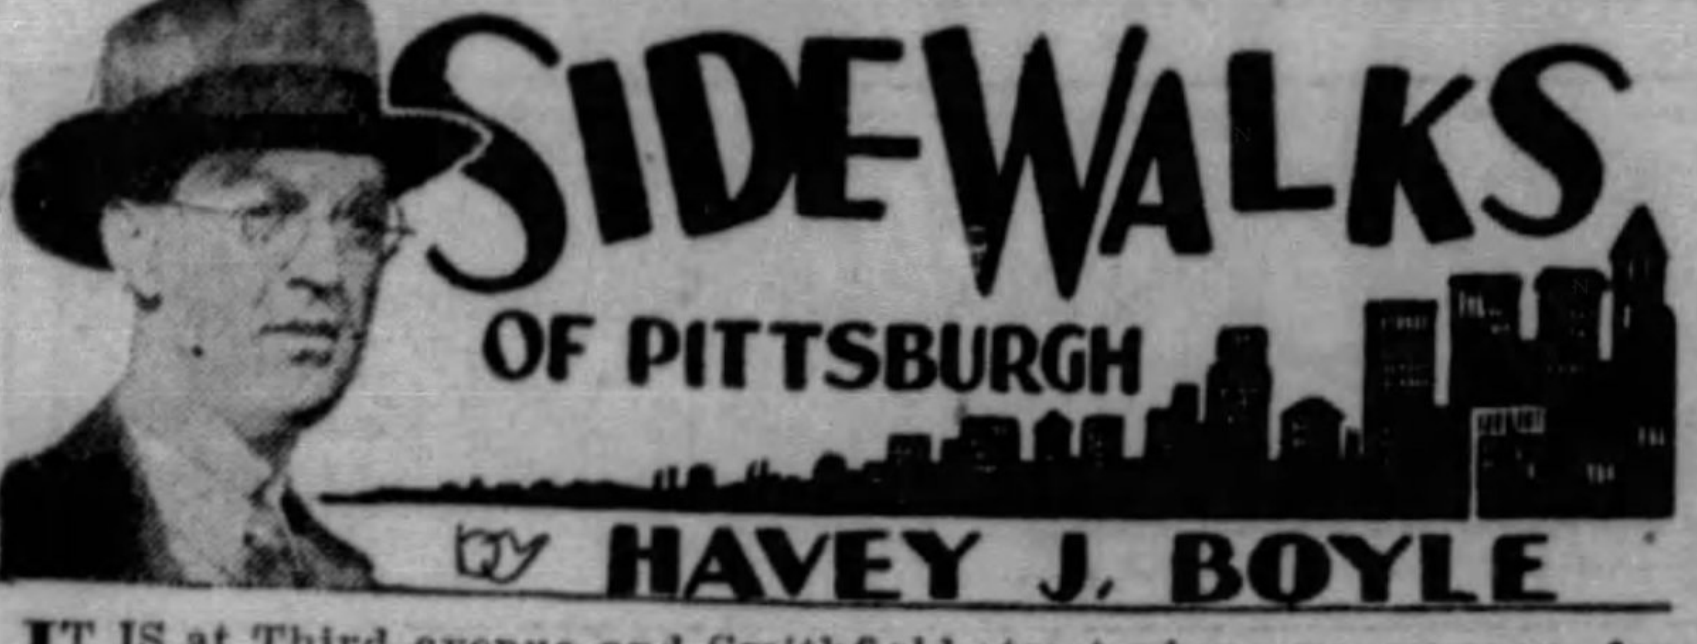
Emsworth has led the way in clearing away barriers to the Ohio River boulevard.

At a special meeting the council passed finally the ordinance fixing the grades and route of the proposed highway through that borough, along with a maintenance agreement submitted by the county.

Other North Borough councils are expected to take action within a week, enabling the county engineers to advertise for bids on the project by the middle of May.

County engineers today said that two separate contracts on the boulevard were likely. The first section constructed probably will extend from the circle marking intersection with the proposed McKees Rocks bridge over the Ohio River in the vicinity of Davis avenue to the outer terminus of the boulevard at Emsworth.

Negotiations are still pending with the Pennsylvania Railroad and other corporations relative to the boulevard at the city terminus. It is hoped that these will have been completed by midsummer.



SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

IT IS at Third avenue and Smithfield street where young men, for all sorts of motives, linger around the recruiting stations and gaze at pictures of jaunty Marines idling in the balmy sunshine; a dapper sailor sitting on top of the world, or an infantryman enjoying the luxury of Army life.

Salesmen for Uncle Sam's forces in the persons of recruiting agents, when approached, give the glamorous details of the services they represent.

Motives are decidedly mixed. Patriotism in a peace time enlistment may be a factor, but quite often it may be the girl a boy wants to leave behind him and forget—a father who time after time has grumbled his son is a no-account fellow, or perhaps that itch which boys feel at various ages to go places and see things.

There aren't many boys who at one time or another didn't fully decide to run away to the Navy. Such impulses came when the hand of parental discipline seemed (although it wasn't) extra heavy. Entirely fatuous, of course, was the adolescent notion that family discipline is tighter than the famed discipline of armed forces, but the boys always toyed with the notion.

* * *

THE service men who act as salesmen for Uncle Sam's military answer all questions intelligently and point out the many advantages gained from a hitch in service. And, if they see a boy who looks as if he hasn't had a good meal recently, there might be a discourse on the way Uncle Sam almost overfeeds his boys. I think they accent such things as mashed potatoes and gravy, and now and then the breast of turkey.

SURE - GOOD EATS, AND Y'SEE TH' WORLD!
YEH?

And the recruiting station has, too, an appeal for young things with romantic hearts. These girls giggle and act coquettish, charmed by the uniform and by the tradition of the fighting men. Soldiers run second only to professional baseball players in this regard.

AND this leads gently up to something we wish to boost a little. The Marine Corps, League, Pittsburgh Detachment, according to a letter from William McConnell, is to stage a show in the Moose Temple on next Tuesday night. Money derived from this goes to mark graves of Marines and to help widows and children of men in this branch of the service.

And comes a letter from a reader who accuses this writer of being the mysterious Whoopee McGurk. (He's the fellow you have to catch to get $100, as you know from reading his most amusing stories in another part of this paper).

SINCE he disappeared Whoopee has had a terrible time. I spent an afternoon with him recently. He's getting thin and worn, from the constant chase, and narrow escapes. I don't think he can remain uncaptured many more hours. I know one detective who is using every spare hour looking for Whoopee and that century and once or twice this detective was pretty hot, but Whoopee got away in time.

* * *

Harry Lochbaum, of the Lotus Club, could have got Whoopee if only he knew it was Whoopee who talked with him; Ollie Lobert might have nabbed the $100 if he would have come up to Whoopee and yours truly when he saw us together the other day; Big George Cunningham, a railroad engineer, was within a few inches of Whoopee, to say nothing of Jake Theobald, who conversed with Whoopee for several minutes.

YEH!— THAT WAS WHOOPEE!
WHAT!

BUT the trouble is so few of us have that detective complex. The way to do is to suspect everyone, keep the current Sun-Telegraph in your pocket, and challenge any fellow you see who has baggy pants.

C. S. COLER SUMMARIZES RADIO USES IN SCHOOLS

An interesting summary of the uses to which radio could be put in the school room is made by C. S. Coler, manger of the Educational Department of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

"I see many ways," he says, "in which radio could be used to advantage as a part of an educational program.

ADVANTAGES CITED

"It would make available to all, the thoughts of those preeminently qualified to speak on important topics.

"It would bring the students under the influence of the masterpieces of music.

"It could be used to direct simple setting-up and breathing exercises.

"It would bring into the classroom a vivid picture of important current events and civic affairs.

""The radio would add variety and interest to the routine daily program of the classroom by bringing in an outside viewpoint.

"Radio can never take the place of a real teacher in the life of the student, but it will undoubtedly become a helpful instrument in making instruction more interesting and effective."

The Sun-Telegraph and the Stanley-Warner Theaters evolved a plan whereby radio was made available to the various schools of the Pittsburgh district.

THE PLAN OUTLINED

Setting a standard of 125 new 13-week subscriptions, the sponsors of this campaign agreed to install in the school or schoolroom reaching that standard an eight-tube set, hundreds of which are already in use in the schools throughout the country.

Schools throughout the district are working on the campaign; American Legion posts, business organizations, Haller Bakeries and the United Laundries, clubs, and individuals are all striving to benefit the school through the Sun-Telegraph-Stanley-Warner Brothers Theaters plan.

Order blanks may be obtained at any Stanley theater, from a large number of school children, from the Haller Bakeries and United Laundries, or from the Sun-Telegraph. The name of the school should be indicated in filling them out, that the proper institution may obtain credit for the subscription.

School Radio

C. S. COLER

"The radio would go one step further toward making education a part of life rather than a thing apart," says Mr. Coler, manager, educational department, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

The zoning board of appeals does not want or need two more members at annual salaries of $4,000 each, Maurice R. Scharff, president of the Civic Club of Allegheny County, last night told Gov. John S. Fisher, urging him to veto a bill providing for the additional members.

Few knew that a bill providing for the new posts had been passed in the final rush of legislative work, Mr. Scharff said, until an applicant for one of the jobs turned up.

"The zoning board," said the club's telegram to Gov. Fisher, "has demonstrated that it is to be relied upon for impartial consideration of the needs and rights of property owners. It would be a great mistake to add two members, because the present board has never intimated that it needs help."

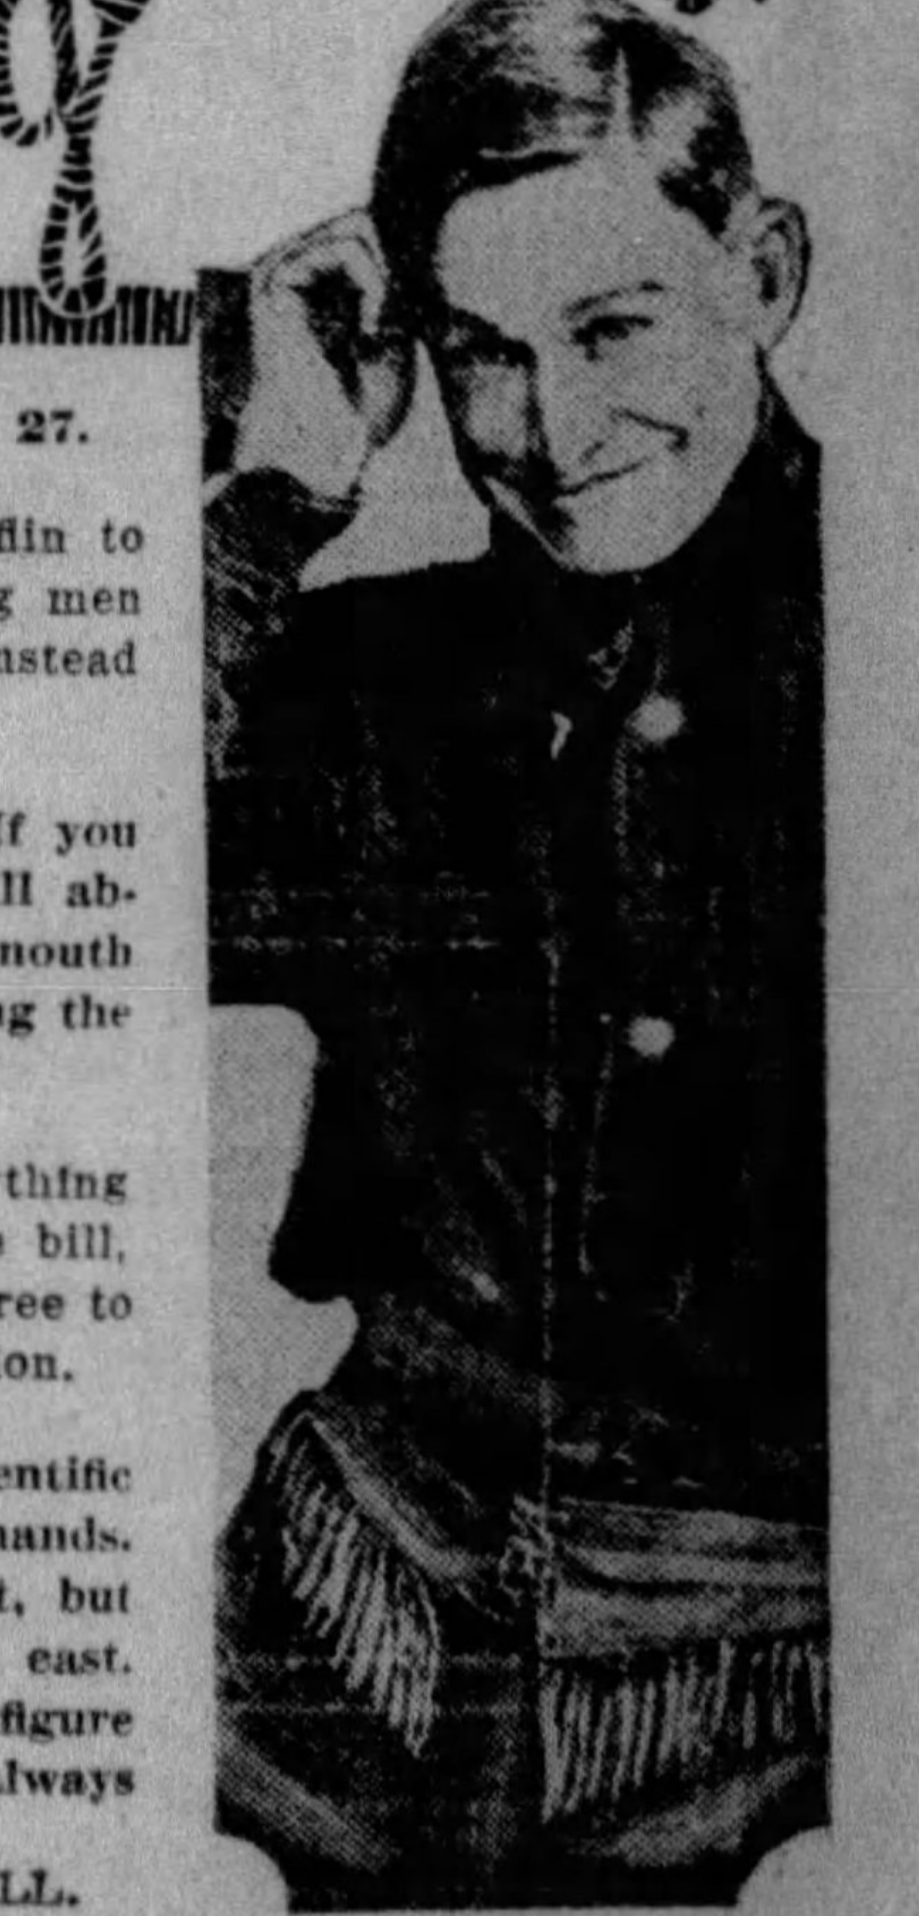
Will Rogers Says



BOSTON, April 27.

I believe I got a plan for Heflin to get his resolution by, denouncing men who throw bottles at Senators instead of handing 'em to 'em.

Insert the following clause: "If you will pass this bill of mine, I will absolutely abstain from opening my mouth on this or any other subject during the rest of this season."

If he tacks that clause on, anything else he wants in the body of the bill, they will pass. They will even agree to sever Massachusetts from the union.

The Leviathan has got a scientific and mechanical problem on their hands. They can sell liquor coming west, but can't have any on leaving going east. So to make money, they have to figure out some way where they can always travel west.

Magnus, who has been directing the fund raising campaign, announced today that the success of their efforts gives assurance of the award of the contract for the parish house in the near future. It will be erected on the church property in the Washington road comprising a site of more than two acres. It is planned to dedicate the building next Christmas Day, according to Mr. Elkins.

Detective Myers Has a Clue That Bobby Is Hiding at Beebe's Apartment

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Bobby Doyle, framed by the Wilkes gang and sentenced to prison for 20 years for killing a policeman, is aided to escape from jail by his fiancee, Beebe Barrett, with whom Bobby's sister, Mary, lives. Beebe is assisted by Johnny the Hop, a dope fiend.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER II.

INSPECTOR WILMOT was in a bad humor this evening. He was at his desk at headquarters, writing reports and routine orders. But as he wrote, he scowled.

He had been engaged in tracking down crime for 20 years. The oldtimers knew him as the man who had caught Joe Goldoni, who had shot his way out with fur-storage thieves, who had, single-handed, pierced through a veil of complete mystery again and again to find the hidden culprit.

But times were changing. The mobs and their leaders often had pull from men who were far above his head. These days gunmen, made rich by the booze racket, rode in high powered cars and spent money like water in the night clubs.

There was the case of Don Wilkes, for instance. Inspector Wilmot could remember when Dapper Don had stropped a razor in one of the big barber shops. Today Wilkes was a power in the town, ran his game like an organized business, took what he wanted—above the law.

He was thinking of Wilkes in connection with this prison break. Young Doyle, he knew, had been part of the Wilkes' outfit.

The inspector frowned. Thirty-six hours before, Doyle had broken out of Sing Sing. Though suspects had been arrested up-state, and in fact, one wild wire had even come in from Butte, Montana, Inspector Wilmot knew that Bobby Doyle would make tracks for New York. It was the best place in the world to hide, and, besides, all his friends were there.

The newspapers had printed some sharp editorials about the Commissioner, blaming him because a convicted killer was still at large. The Commissioner had had Wilmot up on the carpet that afternoon.

Wilmot had continued the process by sending Biff Myers out on another chase.

"Don't come back if you don't find out something," he snapped. "Just send in your shield by mail."

Biff grinned and departed. He had a bull neck, and a face the color of a brick. He looked like a man who had been on the sea all his life, instead of someone who played his game in the sunless streets of New York.

But Biff was a tough customer. Obstinate and surly as a bulldog, with enough courage to face a machine gun single-handed, he was the best man Wilmot had.

The inspector continued at his work, which was now and then interrupted by 'phone calls from the outer office. Presently he was informed that Biff was on his way in. The inspector shoved his papers one side and looked expectantly at the door.

He did not need to take more than one look at Biff's disgruntled face to realize he had had no luck.

"Well?" he barked.

"I've talked to the whole lot. They don't know where he is."

"See Wilkes himself?"

"No. Besides he wouldn't have talked. I couldn't scare Wilkes."

Inspector Wilmot swore softly. "We've got to get that boy, Biff, and send him up for good this time. Understand?"

Biff scowled. "You see, Chief," he explained, "if he was a real gunman, it would be easy, because he'd do the usual thing. But being poor, scared punk, he's likely to do most anything."

"He was a real gunman enough to shoot Blake."

"Ah, his finger probably slipped on the trigger. I know gunmen—Doyle was just a nut."

"And I know it's put to you to locate him right here in this town, Biff. You go out and talk to Wilkes."

As he said that the 'phone rang insistently. Inspector Wilmot listened at the receiver with a surprised grin. "Send him in," he snapped. He put down the receiver and looked at Biff. "Here's Wilkes now, and what's more, he wants to see you."

Biff Myers' jaw jutted out. He swung towards the door. Presently this was slowly and carefully opened. A man in his middle thirties with a close-shaven face, sleek hair, and a flashy get-up strolled in. There was a cigaret between his gloved fingers, a handkerchief thrust into the breast pocket, a stick crooked over his arm. Except for his colorless, wedge-shaped face with its heavy eyelids and expressionless eyes, he might have been an actor in a popular Broadway show.

"Evening," said Don Wilkes in his casual, almost tired voice. "How are you?"

"What's on your mind?" Biff asked.

Wilkes glanced towards the inspector. "Any news of Doyle? Haven't picked him yet, have you?"

Inspector Wilmot, his hands locked in front of him across his desk, gave an indignant grunt.

"You see, Inspector," Wilkes continued coolly. "I just stopped by to tell you and Biff I don't want him picked up."

Biff exploded, his face seeming almost to turn purple.

"You don't want him picked up?" he burst out.

The racketeer smiled, with a flash of white teeth. "Oh, don't misunderstand me. I mean it would please me a lot if you didn't."

Wilmot gestured to Biff to keep silent. "Why?" he asked quietly.

"Because he's a nice kid who got in wrong."

"You bet he got in wrong when he shot that cop. He went up to do 20 years for it. And you take it from me, Wilkes, I don't rest till I get him and send him back there—this time for good."

Dapper Don shrugged his shoulders. "What will that get you?" he asked almost gently. "It won't bring the cop back, or help his family, either, will it? . . . Tell you what I'll do—it's what I've come humanitarian paying five grand to that officer's family—$5,000 if you give Doyle a break—let him get away somewhere and begin all over again."

Behind his heavy lids, his luminous eyes rested quietly on Biff and the inspector. If they hadn't known him, the very persuasiveness of his tones might have fooled them. Dapper Don, posing as a humanitarian, paying five grand to a dead cop's family—and for what?

Biff couldn't restrain himself. "What is this?" he jeered. "A revival meeting?"

"Wait a minute, Biff," Wilmot ordered, sharply. "I want to hear more of this."

"There isn't much more," Wilkes murmured. "Only, inspector, if this boy was free, and cleared of the mess, he'd go so far away you'd never hear of him again. And wouldn't the money mean a lot more to those poor people than your revenge?"

The inspector's mouth hardened into a grim line. He did not for a moment believe the racketeer. He felt he was being made a fool of, and he gave an angry gesture.

"I've heard enough," he snapped. "That's all. But lay a bet on one thing. We're out to get Doyle. And this time we'll put him where he'll never have another chance. And now get out!"

Dapper Don merely nodded. He said good-night in his tired voice, but there was a pucker of a smile about his lips as he left.

For some minutes there was silence in the plain room with its desk and high windows.

Biff Myers, with his fist doubled up against his forehead, was thinking as if he were likely to burst a blood vessel from the effort.

What was the reason for Don's call? Not to pick up any information, so much was clear. And also it was plain he didn't know where the kid was himself.

But why all that soft soap about poor Whitey Blake's widow and kids, and that fake offer of $5,000? What did that mean? Perhaps it was an honest offer—perhaps Don Wilkes really meant it!

But if so, what was the reason. Not for young Doyle—the boy had scarcely been in the mob for six months. He was a raw hand. Wilkes wouldn't pay that money to get him off. Could he be doing it for someone else?

Biff gave a little grunt. There was that jane of Doyle's—that good-looking kid who had hung around during the trial!

A knockout, that girl! And Don Wilkes had a weakness for good-looking girls. Could she have something to do with this? Biff's mind raced fast. He moistened his lips. Then all at once he banged his fist down.

"I'm going to give Doyle's jane the once over?" he said.

Inspector Wilmot snorted: "Are you crazy? That's the last place he'd blow back to. Besides I sent Tommy just to keep a lookout on the house."

"Chief, I tell you I got a hunch!"

Biff Myers departed in a hurry. At about the time he was leaving headquarters a young man with his cap pulled over his eyes was slipping furtively down the side streets in the direction of Beebe Barrett's apartment.

Experimenting

By GUY SWARIGEN

Daily Short Story

AT THE end of the long room the telephone rang insistently. Plainly whoever was calling knew that Stephen Rawls was in. At that time of the day Stephen was always in.

Folks on first seeing Stephen usually think: "Why, he doesn't look like a genius!" The man lolled in a sagging chair, his legs stretching far under a table. He was very neat, in white shirt and gray trousers. His long face was tanned from his outdoor walks every morning and afternoon.

His gray eyes shifted regularly from one to another of six test tubes before him. By his hand lay sharpened pencils and a sheet of paper, at the top of which was scrawled: "Organic Atomic Evolution."

If you had asked Stephen what was in those tubes, he would not have heard you any more than he heard the telephone. Then if you had gone into the front office and asked John Lang, president of Chemical Utilities, Incorporated, you would have learned no more. Lang would not know—until the experiment, if successful, evolved into something useful to humanity. Then Lang's industrial genius would make humanity pay for it.

The telephone rang on.

A door opened, admitting sounds of distant industry and Lessie Wallace. Lessie was the kind of a girl called buxom, fair and plump, with dimpled cheeks and elbows. Her round face and baby-blue eyes gave a little hint of the shrewd, trained, intelligence back of them. Lessie received the salary of a high class secretary, with little secretarial work to do. Her real job was taking care of Stephen Rawls, the firm's most valuable asset.

She hung two towels above the white sink, and went to the telephone.

"Miss Lang," she told Stephen, "is calling."

"Thank you, Lessie," Stephen said amiably, without raising his eyes. "Tell her I'm busy."

"I did. She said she's coming here." Concern shadowed Lessie's placid face. She hesitated a moment and left the room reluctantly.

Stephen did not notice. Nor did he notice when, a little later, the door into the outer office opened. Mr. John Lang peered in at him, and turned back to the other person in the office.

"But, Agatha, he mustn't be disturbed. He is—"

Imperiously Mr. Lang's daughter strode past him, and shut him out. She was tall and pliant. Her blue-black hairs made a striking frame for her white face, coral lips and gray eyes. The latter gleamed angrily.

"Stephen," she asked, "why didn't you answer when I called you up?"

"Busy." Stephen's gaze remained on his test tubes, and his voice held a note of mild surprise. "I'm sorry if—"

"Busy!" Agatha's voice shook with angry self pity. "You're always too busy to have time for me. A fine husband you'll make!"

"Eh?" The man looked up in astonishment. "Why, you see—"

"Yes, I think I see!" With a passionate gesture Agatha knocked the test tubes from the table. "There!" despite her anger, she was suddenly a little scared. "You care nothing for me! Well, I just wanted to tell you I can't see you tonight. I'm going to a dance with—someone else. I don't care if I never see you again!"

Stephen was gazing sadly at the broken glass. "But Agatha—"

"Our engagement's ended!" raged Agatha. "I won't marry a—"

The door into the front office opened violently, and Mr. John Lang strode into the room. Mr. Lang was even more furious than his daughter.

"Now, look!" he seized Agatha's arm, as he formerly had sometimes seized a rather spoiled little girl. "You get out of here, and stay out!"

Agatha knew of old that her indulgent father could be driven just so far. She left herself be led from the room with surprising meekness. Stephen apparently did not know when they left him. He was gazing at his broken test tubes on the floor.

Nor did he notice when Lessie entered by the other door, with a dust pan and broom. Lessie's cheeks were rosy, her blue eyes snapping. In fact, she was stirred to the point of forgetting her usual respectful silence.

"I heard her—the— the huzzy!"

"Eh?" Stephen was startled out of his abstraction. "Oh, you mean Agatha—Miss Lang. You shouldn't call her a huzzy, Lessie."

"Well, she is!" Lessie's was a deep maternal instinct to comfort those in distress. It seemed to her that he must be grieving over his broken engagement. With honest, impulsive sympathy she patted his hand, where it rested on the back of his chair.

"Um!" Stephen started, and his face brightened with scientific curiosity. "Odd!" With the air of one cataloging scientific reactions, he murmured, "your touch gives me a distinct sensation of pleasure. Soft, warm, agreeable. Not like the touch of Agatha's hand. Strange!"

"Not at all strange!" Among her other excellent qualities, Lessie was a reader of love stories and a most sturdy romanticist. She knew all the approved methods of offering comfort to the disappointed lover. Besides, she was a creature of impulse. Abruptly she threw her strong, warm hands around his neck, raised herself on tiptoe, and planted upon his lips a firm kiss. "H-how's that?" she cried, suddenly stammering in a totally unexpected confusion.

"Fine!" Stephen cried enthusiastically. "I discovered altogether satisfactory reactions. Do it again."

"I won't!" Lessie backed away, her face crimson. "I—I—Oh, what must you think of me! I didn't realize—it—it isn't as though we were engaged or anything like—"

"That's it!" shouted Stephen, and he seized her shoulders. "That's what I was trying to think of. Marriage is doubtless an interesting experiment. We'll get married, if—"

He broke off, his face clouded with sudden anxiety. "I mean, if you'll have me," he ended humbly. "Will you?"

Lessie regarded him steadily. "Why do you want to marry me?"

"Why—" And the slow delight of realization palpably worked up through his surprise. "Why, just because I love you!"

Then the radiance of Lessie's smile left no need for an answer.

WILSON OFFERS PROHIBITION VIEWS

Clarence True Wilson, A. B., B. D., Ph. B., D. D., LL. D., "Deacon at 18," as he suggests in his biographical sketch in "Who's Who," and now general secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, author of "The Things That Are to Be," "Why Oregon Is Going Dry," "Prohibition vs. High License" and other works, including "Dry or Die" and the "Pocket Encyclopedia of Temperance," has submitted a plan in the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest.

Some of Dr. Wilson's ideas in connection with his entry are quoted in the following excerpts, as an evidence of the beliefs of ardent prohibitionists, despite the flood of competent testimony from an infinitude of disinterested sources respecting what has transpired under the whiplash of prohibition's strongest advocates.

These excerpts are likewise published out of a sense of fairness for those who appear to believe that all is well with the present law and with the land.

By THE REV. DR. CLARENCE TRUE WILSON.

We are all living today under the protection of law. The foreign power does not molest us; the burglar and the midnight assassin are not attacking us, and even the speed fiend does not run over us because of the protective power of law. What an ingrate I would be to enjoy this protection from the cradle to old age, and then the first time that the law interferes with some appetite or habit of mine, repudiate its right to govern me and society and show that I violate law with impunity!

And yet, there are rich men who are encouraging their sons to go to the dance and go around colleges and because they have more money than the average man in the street, carry in defiance of law a gold hip-pocket flask. I wish Sam Jones were here today, "Watch out, Bud, that thing will explode some day and blow your brains out."

Weems, the biographer of Washington, and Benjamin Rush, the sergeant general of the Continental Armies, got out the first two books, one "An Indictment of the Drinking Customs of American Society" and the Other "An Inquiry Into the Effects of the Ardent Spirits Upon the Human Mind and Body." This agitation led to experiments and they determined upon a course of moderation. It was resolved to pledge people not to drink to intoxication of ardent spirits except on the Fourth of July and other military muster days, and the more people signed up, the more drunkenness spread.

FIRST STORY

I recall the first anti-saloon victory I ever witnessed. We voted a rum-selling hotel out of its license in its precinct and the next day it moved across the street into a larger and better place and set up again. There was great discouragement on the part of the drys, but this writer made a speech, he said:

"We have done one of the most wonderful things ever accomplished. This is discouragement; this ought to encourage every one of us. Why, we have shown that we can make a saloon move. If we can make it move across the precinct line, we can make it move across the county line sometime, and the state line and the National boundary."

There is less violation of liquor laws in the United States today than there has been for 150 years. Does anybody think that a few bootleggers can make as many violations of law as 3,000 licensed saloons, every one violating law every hour, could do? If we want to achieve true temperance, we will not go back to that.

ASKS FAIR TRIAL

There is only one thing else to go to, and that is government ownership of the liquor traffic. Haven't we enough political corruption now without making bartenders of officers and saloonkeepers of public servants? I don't want any relative of mine to go into the saloon business on account of the effects of rum-selling upon the seller himself, and I shall do my utmost to keep my Uncle Samuel out of the trade.

I want him to be a Christian citizen among the nations of the earth and not a rum-seller with a red nose to illuminate the path of progress. This prohibition proposition will not stand still. It will move on to observance and enforcement, or will move down to nullification and lawlessness. Which shall it be?

Let's give it (prohibition) a fair trial. We were a long time getting to it. It is entitled to as fair a chance and as long a trial as the license system had, and when we have observed it and enforced it, if it does not succeed, it will be time to annihilate it. If it does succeed, all who believe in true temperance will be satisfied.

Only 4 Days More

Only four days until the close of the Hearst $25,000 Temperance Prize Contest, which ends at midnight, Standard Time, Tuesday, April 30. No entries postmarked after that hour will be considered by the board of judges.

Someone is going to win the big capital prize! Only a little time left. Send in your plan now.

7 Rules for $25,000 Temperance Contest

The purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

FIGHT TO FINISH OPENS AGAINST COAL POLICE

Admitting defeat in its drive for immediate sweeping reform of the coal and iron police system. The Pittsburgh branch of the American Civil Liberties Union last night announced that it would inaugurate an unremitting effort for complete abolition of private industrial police forces.

In a statement issued by W. Ellison Chalmers in the name of the organization's executive committee, there was outlined this program:

"First, we shall continue to denounce the whole system of privately paid police and demand its complete abolition.

"Second, we shall urge the voters of Pennsylvania to repudiate the political machine and its leaders for completely ignoring the demands of the people. The governor cannot assume the whole responsibility for defying public opinion, for influences working in secret have dictated policies which have been blindly followed.

"Third, we propose to ask every man who seeks state office at the next election whether he will stand for the complete abolition of the coal and iron police (re-named industrial police) system.

"Fourth, we shall, after a careful analysis, by competent legal authority, contest the constitutionality of the Mansfield industrial police act. We believe that the granting of soverign police power to a small favored group is a violation of the fundamental policy of equal treatment.

"Finally, so long as this system remains we shall protect in the courts every person who falls a victim of the industrial police.

"Our program is based upon a desire to eradicate from Pennsylvania the private police system. We shall need, in order to make this program effective, the moral and financial support of all who would remove this blot upon the name of Pennsylvania."

SAFE FLYING FOR STUDENTS

ALVIN BISCH AND HIS MACHINE TO TEACH FLYING

With a huge device built from this model, Bisch, Chicago, would teach student aviators without having them bang up themselves and nice planes. He'd suspend an airplane on a cable from each of these arms and have the planes hurled around in a circle by centrifugal force and the students all the while would learn control without using up gasoline.

G. M. Official Sees 10-Year Prosperity

DETROIT, April 27.—The United States for the next 10 years should enjoy the greatest and most widespread prosperity the world has ever known, Lawrence P. Fisher, vice president of the General Motors Corporation and President of the Cadillac Motor Car Company said today.

Mr. Fisher characterized the steady decline in the national debt, increase in savings deposits, continued stock and bond market activity, steady growth in the number of corporate shareholders, new high total of life insurance sales, and the record consupmtion of the products of industry and agriculture as indices on which part of his optimism is based.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 27.—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 2 to 10 points, with July selling up to 18.85c and December to 19.04c on week-end covering, probably stimulated by relatively firm Liverpool cables. Weather news seemed to make a generally favorable impression, however, and after the initial demand was supplied, trading was quiet with prices sagging under liquidation combined with home local and commission house selling. By the end of the first hour July had eased off to 18.77c and December to 19.01c, and the market was showing net declines of about 2 to 4 points. Private cables reported continental and Bombay buying in Liverpool, but said that Manchester was unsettled with buyers cautious. Cotton on ship board awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 98,000 bales, against 90,000 last year.

AIR PROPELLER FIRM SHOWS BIG PROFIT

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

Day and night operation of the plant of the Standard Steel Propeller Corporation was reflected in its earnings for the first quarter of the year. Net profit after all charges was $82,380. This was nearly as great as the dividend requirements on the preferred stock for an entire year.

The initial dividend on the 12,000 shares of $7 preferred stock will not be due until June 1. If normal dividend requirements for the three months were deducted from earnings there would be left 50 cents a share earned on the 123,000 shares of common stock.

Work is progressing satisfactorily on the addition to the plant at West Homestead but the increase in earnings in the first quarter was shown without the benefit of any of this added capacity. March was an exceptionally good month. Earnings were over $30,000 and April is expected to exceed this amount.

Standard Steel Propeller holds a rather unique position among the companies in the infant air industry. While many of the recent flotations of air craft and air accessory stocks have been sold on the basis of future profits, this company has demonstrated that its earning power is well established.

Net profit after all charges in 1926 was $56,544. This increased to $188,983 in 1927 and to $252,929 in 1928. Net sales in 1926 were $340,289. They grew to $748,119 in 1927 and to $1,099,508 in 1928. The results of the first quarter of this year indicate that a further substantial growth will be shown during 1929.

At the end of 1928 the company had physical properties valued at $523,344 after depreciation. The balance sheet also showed that a cash reserve of $408,000 had been set aside for the completion of new construction work. Current assets in addition to this cash fund totaled $579,817 compared with current liabilities of $183,214.

The preferred stock is convertible into common on a basis of one share of preferred for four shares of common until March 1, 1934. From that date until February 28, 1939, each share of preferred is convertible until three shares of common. The common shock is selling at a point at which conversion might be found desirable except for the loss in dividend return.

The services which banks offer their depositors are constantly being increased. In recent years there has been a movement toward obtaining increased trust department business and toward the expansion of their security sales organizations. The new functions performed by banks have ranged from such minor services as offering facilities for night deposits to improved methods of handling enormous trust funds.

The latest innovation in service to depositors is that of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., which is offering a means of spreading the cost of insurance evenly over all the months of the year. The plan also relieves the individual of the detailed work of making a large number of individual payments.

The bank will open special accounts in which a fixed deposit is to be made every month. Out of this the bank pays all insurance premiums and credits the account with interest at 3 per cent on the daily balances. Arrangements can also be made to use an account of this type for the payment of a loan made by an insurance company.

Hearings were adjourned at noon, so that a mantel clock and a bouquet of roses could be presented to him. After the presentation he was given the balance of the day off to spend with his wife, 79. STOCKS MOVE IRREGULARLY UPWARD

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—Stock prices moved irregularly higher at the opening of today's market. Columbia Graphohone opened with a block of 10,000 shares at 83½, up 1, and Corn Products with a block of 12,000 shares at 100, up ¼. Westinghouse Electric opened 2⅝ points higher, Allis Chalmers 2 and Pierce-Arrow common, Union Carbide, Prairie Pipe Line and Hayes Body showed initial gains of 1 to 1¾ points. Goodyear Rubber fell back 1⅜, International Combustion 1 and General Motors, Radio and Anaconda yielded fractionally.

The strong buying support provided for the industrial leaders in the face of 16 per cent call money yesterday, and the optimistic character of the weekly mercantile reviews had a bullish effect on speculative sentiment. A few new soft spots cropped out in the early trading, Grant Stores breaking nearly 5 points and A. M. Byers 3, but the general list moved higher.

Pool operations were again apparent in a wide assortment of specialties, one block of 10,000 Murray Corporation changed hands at 84¾, up 1¾ and a new high record. Other stocks to reach new high ground for the year included United Aircraft common and preferred, American Railways Express, New Haven Railroad, and Kraft-Phenix Cheese.

Motion picture shares moved upward on buying influenced by the popularity of the new "talking pictures" and the increased profits resulting therefrom, Warner Brothers leading the advance with an early gain of 4 points. General Refractories, Mathison Alkali and Marine preferred each advanced 2 points or more above last night's final quotations in the first half hour of trading.

Foreign exchanges opened steady with sterling cables unchanged at $4.85⅛.

March Business Index Up.

Output of manufacturers were reported by the Federal Reserve Board to have reached a new high level in March, with automobile production being exceptionally large and the steel ingot output above rated capacity for the mills. The value of building contracts increased seasonably during March and the first two weeks in April, the board said, but the total was smaller than in March, 1928. Contracts for residential buildings, public works and utilities were reported as lower than a year ago. The volume of factory employment and payrolls continue to increase and were found higher than in March a year ago, while production of minerals declined sharply due chiefly to an unusual slump in coal production. Preliminary reports in April indicated a slight slowing down in certain branches of the steel industry and a smaller output of petroleum. The board said sales by wholesale firms were seasonably larger in April than in February. Wholesale prices in March were higher than in February. In the middle of April prices on live stock and raw silk also were higher, while the price of cotton and wool declined. There were also marked decline in the prices of copper, lead, tin and zinc. Investment and loans of member banks showed a reduction in the period, but there was a growth in commercial loans. Reduction in holdings of acceptances carried the total to the lowest plank since 1924, while discounts for member banks increased.

Sen. King Defers Bill.

Senator King (Dem.), Utah, who at the beginning of the special session of Congress contemplated introducing a resolution in Senate to investigate the Federal Reserve System and policies, has decided not to introduce the resolution unless there is some further development which would justify such an investigation. He said he intended to watch developments, and as long as things moved along as they have been doing recently, he would take no action. Therefore, unless there is some further development which attracts public attention, it is likely that the special session will ignore the Federal Reserve system and credit situation, devoting itself entirely to other matters.

There is no one else who intends to press this subject, at least at the present session, so far as could be learned. Senator Brookhart still intends to introduce bills to fix the rediscount rate, and to forbid the making of loans for speculative uses, but these bills, from all indications, will be of such radical nature that they will not be heeded.

Trade Tend Favorable.

Dun's Weekly Trade Review says: "Despite rather more uneveness in the commercial situation, results during the month which soon will end have been mainly favorable, evidences of progress still predominating. That fact is made clear by most of the principal statistical indices and irregularities in reports from the leading mercantile centers have arisen chiefly from variable weather conditions. A quick and satisfactory response has been made wherver higher temperatures have prevailed, but a full reflection of the large public purchasing power has not been disclosed thus far in the spring season. The volume of railroad freight traffic, however, remains at a maximum level for this period, attesting the continued heavy distribution of goods and existing labor troubles are not sufficiently widespread to curtail consumption appreciably. Efforts to control strikes at southern cotton mills have become more effective, a new agreement on increased wages has been arrived at in a prominent division of the building trades, and the unparalleled operations in the steel industry mirror the activity in diversified manufacturing branches."

Carry Delayed—And Died; New Bank President's Tip

By B. C. FORBES

ANOTHER warning to over-busy men. From the time Edward F. Carry became president of the Pullman Company, in 1922, he worked prodigiously. It became apparent a year and more ago that his health was being undermined. This conversation occurred:

"Why don't you let up?" I asked.

"I intend to."

"Why wait longer? You have done your share of the world's work. Why not make your best man president and become chairman?"

"That's just what I plan to do. But I can't very well do it yet because there are some things—some kinks—I want to straighten out first."

Mr. Carry died this week at 62—without having carried out his plan to lead a less strenuous life.

There are others like him, men carrying unfairly heavy burdens who should transfer part of them to a younger executive. Some men can't bring themselves to do this because of their love for power. They want to be the whole thing themselves.

Ed Carry wasn't that type. He delayed selecting a younger man as president because he sincerely felt that he owed it to the company to remain at the presidential helm until certain important matters had been thoroughly straightened out.

Delays can prove not only dangerous but fatal.

NEW YORK'S newest big bank president, Harry A. Patten, elected this week, owes his progress, he feels, mainly to two things, "sticking to it and always being ready to listen to the counsel of wiser men."

Mr. Patten went with the Corn Exchange Bank in 1899 when it took over its first branch, with which he had been identified. He reached vice presidential rank in 1917 and now, at 58, becomes president of the institution having the largest number of branches in the metropolis. His predecessor, Walter E. Frew, becomes chairman of the board. In common with the latest banking trend, the institution is to become a trust company, the Corn Exchange Bank Trust Company.

"The fault of too many young men today is that they are too impatient," Mr. Patten remarked to me. "They are not well out of college when they chafe because they do not find themselves immediately rising towards the top. They don't want to take time to lay solid foundations, to create for themselves adequate background. The result is that some of them spoil their chances by flitting from one place to another instead of painstakingly making a place for themselves where they are."

THE Mellon family of Pittsburgh, of which Secretary Mellon is the head, have not had the important Gulf Oil, in which they are interested, take part in the oil industry's negotiations to bring about regulation of oil production. Some other oil leaders are annoyed.

The truth probably is that Andrew W. Mellon, because of his position in the government, is determined that he could not be even remotely accused of advocating anything of doubtful legality—the administration, you know, has not indorsed restriction. Too many people are ready to accuse high officials, no matter how honest, of using their influence for nefariously selfish purposes. Even Secretary Mellon has not been immune from slimy attacks.

MANY collar-and-cuff-workers will feel envious when they read this: New York bricklayers, under a new agreement, are to work only five days a week and receive $15 a day, an increase of $1 a day, until January 1, when the rates become $15.40 a day. Given 228 day's work, a bricklayer's pay—one is tempted to call it salary—would next year be $3,511.20. How many office workers and other clerks fail to earn nearly as much?

Were these figures published abroad, the people would conclude that it was a misprint; they simply could not imagine a bricklayer receiving any such pay. Is it that America is creating a new middle class, bricklayers and other skilled workers earning better than $3,000 a year?

THE financial world clings to the belief that Germany was more anxious to scare the Young Commission than to wreck the reparations conference in Paris. Dr. Schacht, head of the Reichsbank, is an extremely astute German, but it is felt that this time he overshot his mark and that he will maneuver to have the conference continue. New York and the New York Stock Exchange have exhibited no nervousness over the threatened deadlock.

THIS doesn't look the ideal time to go into debt to buy speculative stocks.

FLURRY IN PGH. PLATE FEATURES TRADING HERE

A flurry in Pittsburgh Plate Glass provided a little excitement on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange during the short week-end session today.

Buying of the stock made its appearance shortly after the opening and the demand uncovered a scarcity at the previously prevailing level of around 66. On the first few transactions the price jumped more than two points from yesterday's closing figure of 65⅝. The strength was due not only to technical conditions in the stock but to the fact that the Street is expecting a favorable earnings report for the first quarter. Pittsburgh Plate is regarded as one of the gilt edge issues in the local market, having a highly rated investment reputation based on performance over many years and management of the highest calibre. Its entrance into the automobile safety glass field in conjunction with the Du Ponts gives it a firm position in this newly developed market and friends of the company are predicting steady expansion from this phase of the business.

In other quarters the market was steady, with price changes generally of fractional scope. Witherow Steel lost a point in the early market, while other issues in the heavy industrial department held fairly close to the previous closing levels. Vanadium Alloy was in moderate demand and moved up a large fraction at the start of trading.

Pittsburgh Brewing was bought on a small rise, reflecting the accumulation reported to have been in progress in the stock for some time. Several weeks ago the stock took a sudden jump on buying, which was said to have been for account of persons closely in touch with the company's affairs, but the move developed too much speed at that time and the buying orders were withdrawn.

BUGS BAER Says

A MESSAGE IN A BOTTLE

"Bugs" Baer

Up until the second Tuesday after the first instalment on the automobile, we had never heard of Colonel the Master of Sempil and Gladys, Lady Swaythling.

It seems that they had a luncheon engagement at the Savoy in London. Traffic in London is as congested as a pickaninny in watermelon time.

Colonel the Master of Sempil solved the traffic business by hooking up his seaplane. Leaving his estate, he flew downtown, landed on the Thames in front of Cleopatra's needle on the embankment.

A swift Savoy guest launch picked up Colonel the Master of Sempil and Lady Swaythling and took them to lunch.

When the launch was skipping to the wharf, Colonel the Master of Sempil was served with cocktails.

It seems that Colonel the Master of Sempil has solved the traffic problem by drinking on a launch.

Another way of solving the traffic jam would be for Colonel the Master of Sempil to shorten his name to Jake.

We do not know how the Colonel's solution would work in America.

It isn't everybody who can stagger home in a seaplane and a launch.

Lacking the essential dividends necessary to garaging such expensive vehicles we intend to try the colonel's recipe with more economical ingredients.

The cocktails are all right. They can be mixed if you can find the right kind of paint.

A dinner in the Savoy costs money. But, they say the ancient game of chess was invented in the same hotel when two colonels started pushing the dinner check at each other.

Instead of the seaplane and the launch we intend to substitute a bicycle and an ironing board.

Amusements cost very little in America. Thanks to Grover Whalen's newest traffic plan in New York, visiting pedestrians to that city can now play the old childhood game of prisoner's base with real, uniformed policemen.

The only drinking launch we have left is the Leviathan.

All is jollity and mirth. In the middle of the Atlantic the passengers do not need lifeboats.

What they require most of all is lampposts.

The first radio message from the captain of the Leviathan was picked up by an amateur using a one-tube tomato can for a receiving set. It read:

"Ain't we got funnels?"

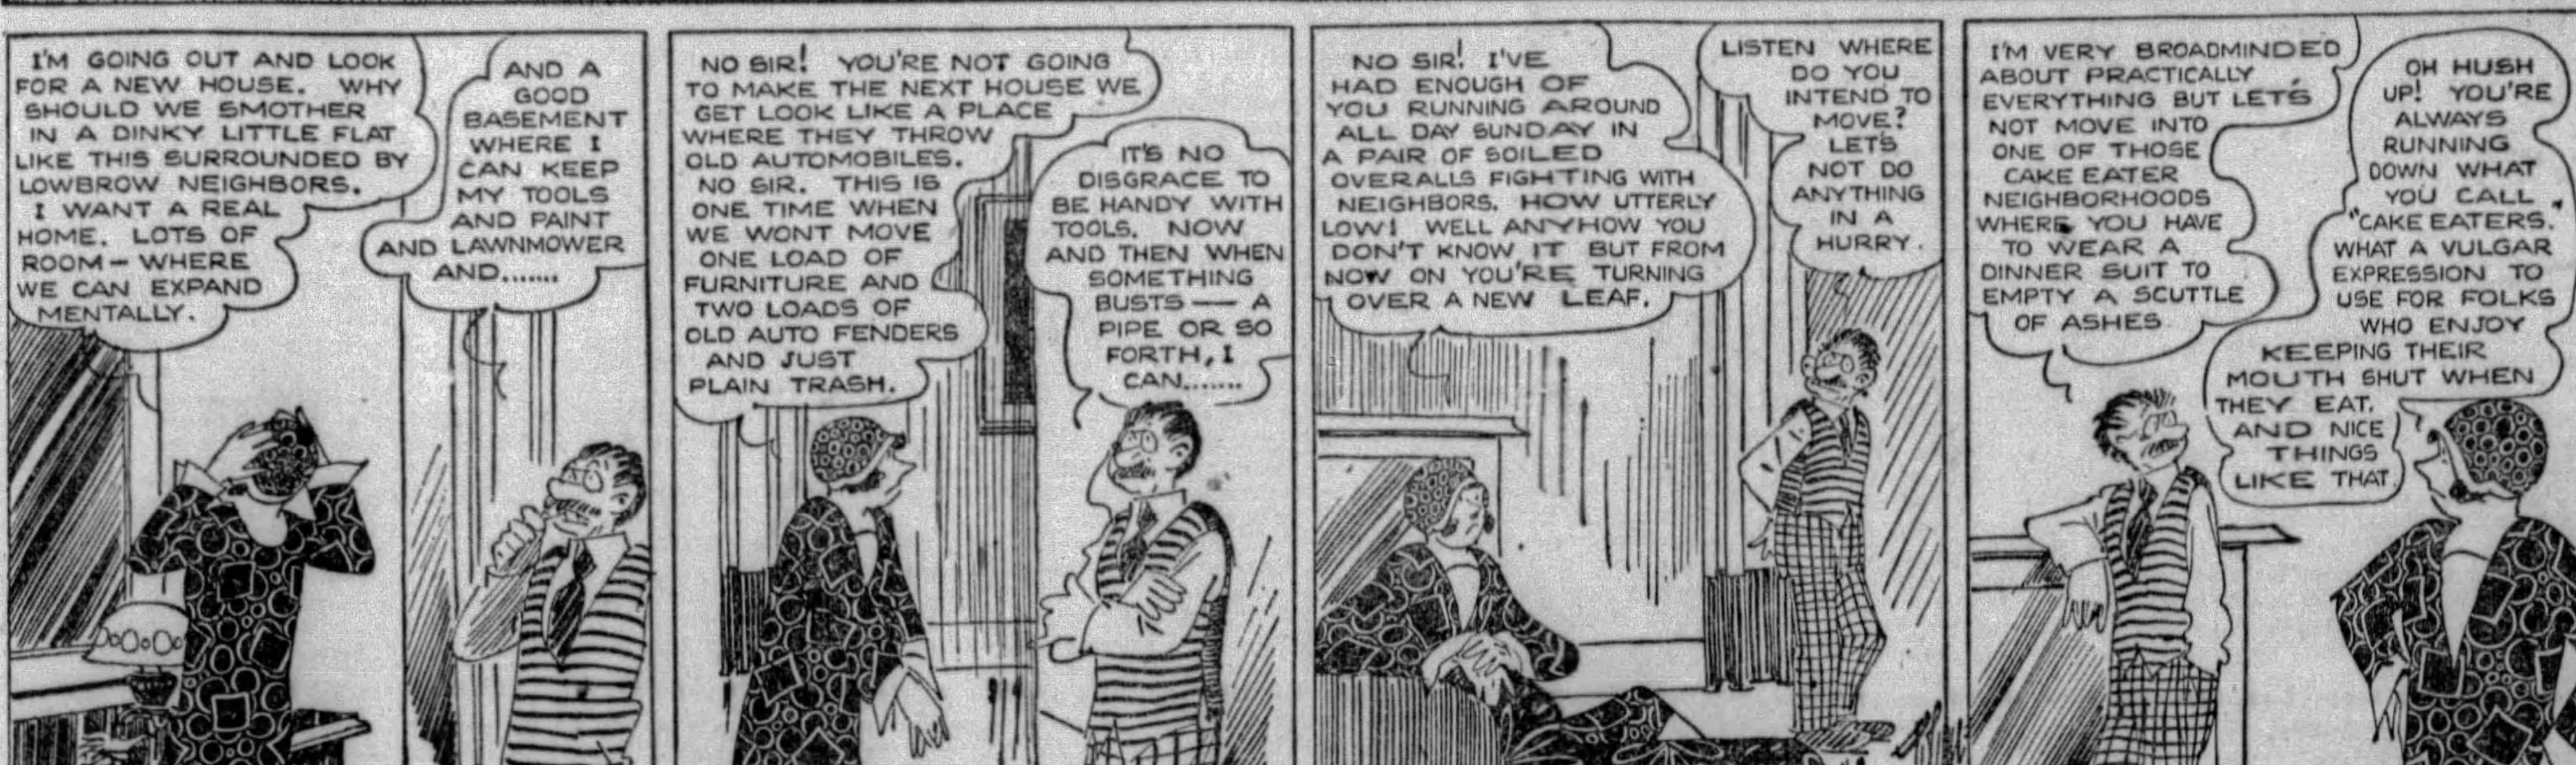
Going Up, Colonel



I'M GOING OUT AND LOOK FOR A NEW HOUSE. WHY SHOULD WE SMOTHER IN A DINKY LITTLE FLAT LIKE THIS SURROUNDED BY LOWBROW NEIGHBORS. I WANT A REAL HOME, LOTS OF ROOM—WHERE WE CAN EXPAND MENTALLY.

Frisby Finds Farm Conditions Worse Than He Expected

CONGRESSMAN FRISBY has just returned after a swing around the agricultural belt, and reports farm conditions worse than he expected. "I actually took pictures," says Mr. Frisby, "showing farmers sleeping on saw horses. They had been forced to feed their mattresses to the live stock. In another instance, a colt had eaten the farmer's whiskers and the farmer was unable to do anything about it, as the colt was standing on his chest.

The members of the Chamber of Commerce accompanied by their wives had their red letter dinner Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Fein stepped to the piano, played briefly, and then it came, rippling, flowing, gushing, soaring, rivulets, streams, finally an ocean of vocal melody that seemed first to cover the very skies.

Later the rich, vibrant and golden tenor voice of Phil Fein joined the silvery and heaven born soprano of his wife. Finally to these two voices, mellow gold and bejeweled silver was added the great baritone, which has so often charmed and pleased the people of Lamar—the deep, sonorous vacal melody of our own townsman, E. C. Haslet. Ed Young played the difficult accompaniments on the piano in a manner that made the local folks proud of him.

Will Senate Dare Turn Deaf Ear to the American People To Heed Voices of Elihu Root and International Bankers?

Q.—Have the people ever had a chance to say vhether they wanted the United States in the Vorld Court? A.—Yes, they had a chance in 1926, fter the Senate in February of that year voted for s to enter the Court "with reservations."

Q.—What happened? A.—Most of the Repubican Senators who had voted for the Court were deeated in the primaries or elections of that year.

Q.—What else? A.—Most of the Senators lected in their places based their campaigns on pposition to the World Court.

Q.—Anything else? A.—Yes, among the World ourt Senators who were re-elected, several in heir campaigns pledged themselves to the public ot to vote for the Court again.

Q.—Well, it looks as if the people did their best to say they wanted to keep out of the Court? A.—It certainly does.

Q.—But hasn't Elihu Root just prepared a proposition for the United States to enter the World Court and isn't the Senate going to be asked to vote on it? A.—Yes, Mr. Root's plan for entrance abolishes the protection of our "reservations."

Q.—How could the Senate now dare defy the expressed opinion of the people and the established American policy of keeping out of foreign entanglements, and put us into the World Court? A.—Perhaps the Senate will listen to other voices than the voices of the American people.

Q.—For example? A.—The international bankers.

Q.—Who are these international bankers, anyway, and how do they make their money? A.—In peace times they make their big money in commissions on international financial transactions, which in the main means the lending of American money to Europe.

Q.—So they could not prosper if we stayed at home and minded our own business and invested our money in the United States? A.—No.

Q.—How do they make their money in war? A.—That's the big time. Then the international bankers get themselves appointed fiscal agents for foreign governments, and they get a rake-off on all foreign government bonds floated here and on all war material purchased in the United States for foreign governments.

Q.—So it is to their interest to get the United States into Court and League and make sure we shall not miss a chance to take part in all international quarrels and international loans and bankruptcy proceedings? A.—Certainly.

Q.—Then the business of international bankers seems to be to look after the interests of other countries rather than the interests of the United States? A.—That's why they are called international bankers.

Q.—You don't mean to say that international bankers have more influence with the Senate than the people of the United States have? A.—Possibly. We shall see.

Hoover-House Farm Relief Bill Sound, Sensible and Practicable

The Hearst newspapers enthusiastically support President oover's farm relief bill, as presented by the House Commite on Agriculture.

It is the sound, sensible, practicable farmer legislation for hich the country has been waiting ever since President Coolge's election in 1924.

The House bill was written to carry out the promises to e farmers contained in both party platforms. So it is receiv the support not only of Republicans, but also of intelligent mocrats, such as Representative Aswell, of Louisiana.

It provides a revolving fund of $500,000,000, to be loaned farmer co-operative associations and enable them to store d hold their products and market them in an orderly manner.

The farmer at last will have a chance to share in the finanl resources of the country. Over five years ago, on Februy 14, 1924, W. R. Hearst said:

"His (the farmer's) financial difficulties can be overcome by taking the financing of this essential and fundamental industry out of the hands of bankers and private mortgage holders, and conducting his financing intelligently and sympathetically and soundly by the government, as it is done in most of the European states. In our alleged democracy, the government confines its financing to financing the financiers."

The half billion dollars to be appropriated under the ouse bill represents the greatest aid ever given by any govnment to any industry in all history.

The House bill is free of the unsound nostrums that used President Coolidge to veto two McNary-Haugen bills, hich would have meant government buying and selling, govnment price-fixing, increase of living costs to consumers, rmer taxation, and a stimulation of production, leaving the rmer worse off than ever.

The half billion dollar fund will be administered not by a litical body but by a farm board, appointed by President oover and controlled by him. He is allowed even to fix the lary of the board's chairman, so that he can attract to this sition the best of business brains.

The bill does not prescribe the amount, interest rates or curity of loans that may be made to farmer co-operatives. hat is the business of the board, left free to meet the very verse conditions of American agriculture in different sections the country.

The farmer is protected by the provision that no loan shall made if likely to increase the production of the commodity question.

The consumer is protected by the provision that no loan ay be used to hold a commodity off the domestic market if e price has been unduly enhanced.

The initiative and independence of our 30,000,000 farmg population is not to be replaced by government paternalm. They are to be encouraged, counselled, and financially ded to help themselves.

We suspect that Mr. Hoover's board, with its half billion help, collaborating with farmer co-operatives, is likely to d the answer to several questions that have been troubling e farmer and city man alike.

We believe it is likely to find out why people who eat ples are required to pay five and 10 cents apiece for them hile they are rotting in nearby orchards, because growers nnot get rid of them at 50 cents a bushel.

And why people in cities pay from a dollar to a dollar and ty cents for a watermelon, for which the grower in Georgia Alabama receives less than five cents.

And why farmers get five cents a quart for milk that costs e city mother 15 cents a quart.

In this price spread is plenty of room for getting more oney for the farmer without taking more out of the lean cketbooks of city workers.

We believe that President Hoover's letter on Monday namited the unsound Senate agricultural relief bill, with its port subsidy plan, a hang-over from McNary-Haugenism.

We believe that the House measure will pass, and bring al farm relief, we congratulate the House and President on is bill, and we pledge it our support.

THE HEARST PAPERS DEMAND FOR AMERICA:

SCHOOLS—More SCHOOLS, BETTER SCHOOLS, more ADEQUATE and more MODERN school buildings; the best TEACHERS and the best COMPENSATION for teachers; a SCHOOL SEAT and a LIBERAL EDUCATION for every child in America, native or foreign born.

America is the great melting pot of the world, and the product of the melting pot must be competent, educated, loyal, moral AMERICAN CITIZENS.

1.—That is the nation's duty to itself and its contribution to the social organization.

2.—No politics in the schools, no race antagonism in the schools, no religious prejudice in the schools.

The schools are for all children; and all the children should there be taught and trained and graduated in that KNOWLEDGE WHICH IS POWER and in an enlightened understanding of AMERICAN PRINCIPLES AND IDEALS.

The government of a Democracy reposes in the hands of the people, and the success of that government, the progress, the prosperity, the perpetuation of the nation, depend upon the EDUCATION of the people, the ABILITY OF THE PEOPLE TO GOVERN.

SCHOOLS are the foundation stones of the Republic. Make them STRONG and SOUND and SUFFICIENT.

This is printed in connection with Public School Week, April 22 until April 27.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I WAS talking with a girl in the Woman's Prison the other day. She is serving a sentence for forgery.

Her sulky, pretty face was stained with tears of self-pity.

"They don't know how a girl is tempted," she sobbed.

She was wrong. I do know how girls are tempted. I've been tempted a lot myself, and I have learned some humiliating facts about those temptations.

Like this young girl, I, too, used to blame temptation on society or God. I don't any more.

I KNOW THAT WE MAKE OUR OWN TEMPTATIONS.

Temptations don't just happen.

THEY RIPEN. THEY RIPEN WITHIN US.

THEY RIPEN WITHIN US FROM THE SEED OF OUR OWN GREED, VANITY, COWARDICE, MALICE, LAZINESS AND LUST.

They ripened in that girl from the seed of her own vanity.

She loved her pretty face and body. She yearned for fitting clothes to frame that face and body. She coveted every charming thing she saw. She wrapped her imagination about it—made it her own.

IF YOU BEGIN WRAPPING YOUR IMAGINATION AROUND THINGS IT'S USUALLY ONLY A LITTLE WHILE BEFORE YOU WRAP YOUR HANDS AROUND THEM.

Soon the girl found a way to wrap her hands around the things she coveted. She forged a small check—and took home a hat. Another check bought a beaded bag. She grew bolder. A dress came next.

Now she's in the penitentiary serving a sentence, being sorry for herself and blaming society for her temptation.

She thinks society placed that temptation in a showcase before her.

She does not realize that the temptation lay within her own heart. She herself wrought it far her own undoing. She wrought it by thousands of little mental jugglings with her own honor—exciting, illicit speculations—

Generally speaking, we are what we want to be. Our destinies are not thrust upon us. We create them within us. We truly make our own heavens and hells.

"YOUR SINS WILL FIND YOU OUT," is the truest and most tragic of all sayings.

You may have that sin so deeply hidden that you, yourself, can hardly remember it. You may only revert to it in rare moments of self-indulgence when you sneak away into the darkness and play with the thought of it furtively. Then you may face society again, clear-eyed, proud of your probity.

But make no mistake. That sin will not forget you, try as you may to forget it. As long as you keep it alive by secret indulgence it will thrive and grow until some day it betrays you before the world. It will leap into terrible, monstrous life and you, who were trusted and respected, will be revealed a thief, a murderer, a liar, a coward, a libertine.

HOWEVER SMALL THE THING YOU HAVE FONDLED IN THE DARKNESS IT WILL SOME DAY GROW GREAT ENOUGH TO OVERWHELM YOU IN THE LIGHT.

Nor is it only our secret sin which betrays us. Often it is our secret softness or silliness or weakness.

Our unfortunate marriages, our unfortunate business deals, our failures and frustrations are all directly traceable to some tendency within ourselves. Some tendency which we have probably dignified with a fine name.

Famous Bible Passages

Worship God

(Psalm 99)

THE Lord reigneth; let the people tremble: he sitteth between the cherubims; let the earth be moved.

The Lord is great in Zion; and he is high above all the people.

Let them praise thy great and terrible name; for it is holy.

The king's strength also loveth judgment; thou dost establish equity, thou executest judgment and righteousness in Jacob.

Exalt ye the Lord our God, and worship at his footstool; for he is holy.

Moses and Aaron among his priests, and Samuel among them that call upon his name; they called upon the Lord, and he answered them.

He spake unto them in the cloudy pillar; they kept his testimonies, and the ordinance that he gave them.

Thou answeredst them, O Lord our God: thou wast a God that forgavest them, though thou tookest vengeance of their inventions.

Exalt the Lord our God, and worship at his holy hill; for the Lord our God is holy.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 27.—Many theatrical performances have been saved by a quick gesture or a deftly spoken word. There is no place where the trigger mind is so essential as on the stage, and it is but fair to chronicle players who possess this quality to a marked degree.

The other night at a musical comedy a hiccoughing gentleman swayed down a middle aisle in the midst of a performance, tossed a note across the footlights, staggered back to his seat and was in turn escorted roughly out into the mild spring air. But the note was in full view, absorbing the audience's interest.

A pair of fancy steppers came on during the agony and it was marvelous to watch the adroit manner in which one of them jockeyed the envelope over to the wings and with a back kick flipped it out of sight. To all appearances he did not know it was there.

Nothing causes an audience or players to suffer as much as a performer "going up in his lines." This happened in a dialogue on a half darkened stage recently between two finished actors. It was a tense scene upon which the entire action of the play hinged. And it was opening night.

One of the actors merely spoke his own lines, sensed the paralyzing fright, and changing his voice slightly, spoke the lines of the player who forgot. It was done with such magnificent realism only a few members of the company, standing in the wings, realized what was taking place. To the audience there was not a hitch.

The neatest bit of lightning fast thinking followed a rousing first-night reception to George Kelly, the young playwright, called before the curtain for a speech. He spoke low and a rowdy boomed: "Louder!" Kelly like a shot responded "It isn't important!" and continued in his modulated tone.

In a musical comedy first night some scenery behind a back drop suddenly slipped moorings and landed with a series of resounding crashes. "Just a shower of feathers!" piped up a comedian, and what might have been a boxoffice tragedy became what Variety terms "a belly laugh."

Beethoven, Bach and Brahms are giving away to stunt recitals even in such stately musical sanctuaries as Carnegie Hall. Following the didoes of such modernists as Antheil, Krenek and Les Six, came the harmonies of a big group of street urchins picked up on the East Side, who played harmonicas, jew's harps, ocarinas, gourds, tuned ginger ale bottles, pebbles in cocoanuts and musical saws. But the latest is a recital to be held this summer by a group of gar-mouthed Middle West farm hands, who will render familiar tunes by blowing on peach leaves. That will be a concert!

Braided morning coats with pin-striped trousers were once seen only at weddings or Fifth avenue Easter parades. Today they are as numerous as ermine wraps—my war on them has just begun—at first nights. Many men, occupying those exalted posts at glass-topped desks in banks, brokerage houses, hotels and smart shops, are so habited, and some of the bolder spirits even wear a bout—you know, a lapel flower.

Then there is a rich Wall Street broker who is reported never to wear the same hat more than a day. Paul Whiteman has 24 evening suits. George Jean Nathan has 40 overcoats and Mayor Walker 60 walking sticks. Raymond Hitchcock is sole proprietor of six pearl gray derbies—three of which are constantly at the cleaners. And there is a hot tip going around that Heywood Broun has another necktie.

The newest in hotels to open in the Smart Sixties soon will have just 55 suites at $45 a day. Only those with Social Register—that's the one that includes Kip Rhinelander—connections may make reservations. One of these days we intend to perfume ourself like a sweet-smelling gourd, dress up like a Park avenue squash champion, and walk fast through the lobby.

House and Home

ALONG the busy city street
Some gay, some dim, they wait to greet
Us all, who come and go.

They wait to greet light step and loud,
And footsteps slow or swift;
Some hasting through the changeful crowd
And some that seem to drift.

And down the quiet country lane
The lonely houses, too,
With patience face the sun and rain
Fierce heat and cooling dew.

As far apart the destinies
Of those who dwell within
As stars that flicker in the skies
When twilight shades begin.

One traveler without the gates
(How restless hearts will roam!)
Prays always: "Lord, each house that waits,
Make it in truth a home!"

YOUR father's grandfather heard his father pine for the "good old days." So did Methuselah.

A hundred years ago, several New England editors shrewdly discovered that America could not accommodate any more enterprises.

The Nineteenth Century died convinced that the choice corners on Success Street were all bought and occupied.

And now you're at it.

There aren't any permanent monopolies—capital and cunning can't corner the brain market.

Wit always finds the weak heel of power. The history of men and nations is written in three chapters: Triumph, Complacency and Demotion.

The next idea regularly thrashes the last one.

Dynasties pass and empires fall; Babylons vanish and Romes rise; Spains and Portugals straddle the world and promptly topple, not because they're out-fought, but out-thought.

So don't worry about the permanence of any local Colossus—bright young men eventually upset and replace 'em all.

No real purpose ever lacked for root room. Opportunity won't be fenced off.

Fortune is a muchly mental attitude. Look at a problem from a fresh angle and you'll see new sources of wealth, as well.

Men think themselves rich—and, obversely, poor.

There's always a quicker and thriftier method.

Whatever has been done is worth less than the things still unaccomplished.

The piking landmarks of McKinley's day aren't visible—block-covering cloud-scrapers have erased them.

Thus each generation revises skylines and play-limits on a bigger scale. The game's open—sit in.

Please remember that the best cards, not the largest stacks, take the pots.

Bet your vision against their chips. Harriman did.

Croakers will jeer, "you were born too late for a whopping winning."

Frederick Brown and Benjamin Winter, ex-immigrants with title deeds to the prime porterhouse cuts of Fifth Avenue in their safes, were so informed when they landed here, with nothing but aspiration and credulity in their pockets.

Like remarks were made to the young recent peddler, now in control of Manhattan's most important coal and ice companies.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

IF YOU would lower your standard of living a little you might be relieved of much worry.

Aren't you traveling a pace too fast for you?

Of course, you want to associate with those who are congenial.

And that is laudable in itself, but what about the windup?

Where will you be then?

You cannot figure, so far, any possible increase in your income.

To reducing your expenses you have not given enough thought, perhaps.

You might reduce them without denying your family necessities.

You might relieve the tension of living beyond your means if you would shave some unnecessary expenses and yet enjoy much the same pleasures and even luxuries.

It might be worthwhile to get some expert advice, even, on how to budget your income so as to keep within the circle you wish and yet not suffer mentally as you do now, trying to keep up to a standard too lavish for you and yours.

After all, it is the state of mind, rather than the material possessions, that makes a man and his family happy.

Temper your expenditures to the proper measures.
